Victory Over Polio Drive Enters Final Stages Today

Victory Over Polio enters its final stage in Ouachita Parish and 12 surrounding parishes today. Type III of the Sabin oral polio vaccine will be fed in the mass vaccination effort.

Types I and II of the vaccine — taken on a sugar cube — have already been administered this year. Today's feeding, followed by make-up clinics next Sunday, will conclude the program in the area.

The program is sponsored in Ouachita Parish by the Monroe Junior Chamber of Commerce and the Ouachita Parish Medical Society. Dr. Roy Kelly, medical chairman for the drive, said Saturday that everyone, regardless of whether they had taken the other two feedings, should take the Type III. He also said age was not a factor and that persons of all ages should be immunized.

DIFFERENT TYPES

He explained that each type of the vaccine combats a different form of polio and individuals are not safe from all polio unless thew have taken the complete series.

Dr. Kelly also explained that minors will not be given the vaccine unless they have a signed consent from their parents or guardian. In line with this, Joe Maggio Jr., Jaycee chairman for the drive, said that minors — unmarried persons under the age of 21 — should bring their consent forms to the clinics today already filled out. He said this would speed up the feeding considerably.

Here is a list, parish by parish, of the clinic sites for today's feeding. A copy of the consent form for minors will be found on page 10A.

Mangham Man Dies In Blaze; Rites Set Today

MANGHAM (Special) — Louis O. Boughton, well-known Mangham resident, died in flames which partially destroyed his frame home here following what police believed was an explosion that touched off the blaze Saturday afternoon.

He was the brother of J. G. Boughton of West Monroe.

City police said the 72-year-old man was in the yard with his wife when the fire started about 5:40 p.m. He rushed back into the house and became trapped in the flames, police surmised.

Fire trucks from Rayville and Winnsboro assisted in quelling the fire which only destroyed part of the seven-room dwelling. Mrs. Boughton was uninjured.

Mr. Boughton was a charter member of Franklin Parish Cattleman's Assn., past member of Tensas Levee Basin Board and a member of the Masonic Lodge here.

Funeral services will be at 4 p.m. today in First Baptist Church here with the Rev. Paul Brooks and the Rev. Clarence Young officiating.

Burial will be in Gwinn Cemetery under direction of Mulhearn Funeral Home of Winnsboro.

The body will lie in state at the funeral home until it is taken to the church at 2 p.m. to lie in state.

Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Dora Boughton; Mangham; a son, B. N. Boughton; Manham; a daughter, Mrs. C. W. Jones Jr., Winnsboro; two other brothers, W. O. Boughton, Rayville and Homer Boughton, Mangham; and two sisters, Mrs. G. W. Stark and Mrs. Ira Bruce, both of Mangham; four grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Pallbearers will be deacons of First Baptist Church here.

Clouds To Dot Sky Over Area

Cloudy skies will dot the Twin Cities area today and might drum up some moisture as the weatherman says there is a slight chance of afternoon thundershowers.

CLOUDY

Today's high is expected to reach 84-88 degrees with the low falling near 65 degrees tonight. The mercury stopped its climb Saturday at 88 degrees from a low 68 degrees.

Easterly winds of 8 to 12 miles per hour again will prevail today.

To Graduate

John Spencer Stone of Monroe is among 658 seniors who have applied for bachelor's degrees to be awarded at North Texas State University May 31.

Commencement exercises will be held at 8 p.m. at Fouta Field.

Stone, the son of J. S. Stone Jr., 1909 John Circle, is a candidate for the bachelor of science degree in education.

Training

Airman Second Class William A. Lewis Jr. of Monroe has completed the United States Air Force technical training course for radio equipment repairmen at Keesler Air Force Base in Mississippi.

Airman Lewis, son of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Lewis of 511 Eason Pl., Monroe, was trained in electronic principles, circuit analysis, service and inspection of high-powered radio transmitters, receivers and related ground radio equipment. He is being reassigned to a permanent base for duty in his new technical specialty.

The airman is a graduate of Neville High School and a former student at Northeast State College. He entered the Air Force in June 1962.

KNOWS 'NOTHING OF FIDEL'

Woman, Age 102, Among Refugees

PORT EVERGLADES, Fla. (UPI)—Another boatload of 759 Cuban refugees sailed to freedom Saturday, led by a 102-year-old great - great - grandmother who swung a machete in Cuba's 1895 battle for independence but knew "nothing of this Fidel."

Primitiva Nunez Rodriguez of Havana, spry despite her years, was the oldest of the passengers debarking from the U. S. vessel American Surveyor after a smooth overnight sail from Havana.

The youngest was 12-day-old Jacqueline Martha Orduna, a namesake of the U. S. first lady. She came off the black-hulled freighter in a Red Cross worker's arms and her father, Roberto Orduna, proudly confirmed that he named the child "after the first lady of this great country."

The refugees seemed quietly happy at their departure from the Fidel Castro regime. And they repeated many of the stories told by some 6,000 other refugees who have come to this country since December—of hardships in their homeland.

Mrs. Nunez Rodriguez sipped heavily sweetened coffee in a wheel chair as she talked with newsmen and proudly told how she carried a machete in the army of Cuban patriot Antonio Maceo during the 1895 battle of Cacarajicara in Pinar Del Rio province.

"I know nothing of this Fidel," she said. "I am here to see my son."

One new exile, Vicente Rodriguez of Havana, said he left Cuba under his own brother's threat of death should he return.

"My own brother told me he would shoot me if I returned," Rodriguez said. "His name is Reynaldo and he is chief of a local Communist group. Before I left he told me, 'Vicinte, go with the worms. But if you ever return, my rifle will find you.' "

Soviet Union Warned By NATO Allies

Western Powers Reject, Ridicule Kremlin Protests

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States, Britain and West Germany told the Soviet Union Saturday the North Atlantic Treaty Organization allies are compelled to deploy nuclear weapons in Europe to defend themselves against Soviet rockets threatening their destruction.

The Western powers ridiculed and rejected protests registered by the Kremlin last month against the projected formation of a NATO nuclear force including West Germany. It is not German defense measures under NATO but the division of Germany and Berlin which creates the dangers for peace that arise there, the U.S. note declared.

PREPOSTEROUS

"It is preposterous," the note said of the Soviet protest, "to maintain that the Soviet Union should itself be privileged to deploy nuclear weapons in positions which threaten the cities of Western Europe and to hold that reciprocal measures cannot properly be taken by NATO."

Russia was told that NATO has the right and the duty to protect its member nations against Soviet conquest. Soviet leaders were told sharply that since 1949, when NATO was formed, not one of the nations of Europe has fallen under Red rule as they did in Eastern Europe before the alliance existed.

The British note said the Soviets have 700 missiles ready to rain destruction upon Western Europe.

The notes from the three Western powers were delivered in Moscow Saturday and released immediately. This handling showed they were regarded as primarily propaganda documents.

This phase of the propaganda campaign over nuclear weapons began on April 8 when the Russians accused the Western powers of preparing aggressive new plans

Mrs. Trousdale Dies; Funeral Services Today

Mrs. Lucile Mangham Trousdale of 206 Old Country Club Rd. in Monroe died Saturday morning after a long illness. She was 49.

Mrs. Trousdale was the wife of J. Harvey Trousdale Jr., a Monroe attorney and member of the Ouachita Parish School Board, and sister of H. S. Mangham of Rayville, editor of the Richland Beacon News.

A native of Rayville, Mrs. Trousdale was daughter of the late Mr. Horace A. Mangham and Mrs. Ella King Slaughter Mangham who resides in Rayville.

Episcopal services will be at 4 p.m. today in the residence with the Rev. W. Bradley Trimble officiating.

Burial will be at Riverview Cemetery under direction of Mulhearn Funeral Home of Monroe.

Mrs. Trousdale graduated from Rayville High School, Sullins College of Bristol, Tenn., and Louisiana State University where she was a member of Delta Delta Delta Sorority. She was married Nov. 7, 1934 and had resided in Monroe until death.

Other survivors include two sons, James Harvey Trousdale III and David Mangham Trousdale, and two daughters, Ella King Trousdale and Ann Mangham Trousdale, all of Monroe.

Pallbearers will be William King Stubbs, S. E. Huey, John C. Theus, George M. Snellings Jr., W. Gilbert Faulk and Clyde R. Brown.

At Least 27 Drowned In Bus Mishap

PAHOKEE, Fla. (AP)—At least 27 men, women and children drowned Saturday in a farm workers' bus that flipped over a canal after a collision.

Fifteen struggled to safety from Florida's worst traffic accident within police officers' memory.

Four of the dead were found in the scummy Hillsboro Canal. Three hours earlier bodies of 23 victims, aged from about 6 to 65 years, were taken by divers from the canal and from the wreck of the bus after it was hauled out of 20-foot depth by a wrecking truck. All the bus occupants were said to be Negroes living in the Pahokee-Belle Glade market farming area 80 miles north of Miami.

Florida Trooper Glenn Bocker said a light truck, passing the bus on state road 827, cut back in on the bus and the two vehicles' bumpers hooked. The bus plunged into the 50-foot wide canal that parallels the road.

CHARGED

James Tulley Sconyers, 34, white, of Belle Glade was booked on charges of manslaughter and improper passing and bond was set at a total of $2,300.

Sconyers said in a statement that "we hung bumpers and the bus went into the canal. He was crowded (sic) the road."

Farm folk from the vicinity clustered silently near the tragedy scene while victims were being extricated but moans broke out from relatives clustered around the Belle Glade Armory when identities of some victims were made known.

ROARING WELCOME

Kennedy Tours Troubled South

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (UPI) — President Kennedy made a flying tour of the racially-troubled South Saturday and got a roaring welcome from more than 225,000 Southerners who turned out at his three stops.

Segregationist Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama greeted Kennedy with a stiff handshake.

He told a capacity audience of 32,000 in Vanderbilt Stadium at Nashville that the South must put aside prejudices that have led to recent racial disorders. His remarks were cheered.

SUIT FILED

From Nashville he proceeded to Muscle Shoals, Ala., for a talk marking the 30th anniversary of the Tennessee Valley Authority. Gov. Wallace, who just a few hours before filed a suit in the U. S. Supreme Court demanding the withdrawal of troops from Alabama, was there to meet the Chief Executive.

Thresher Hunt Plans Revised

PORTSMOUTH, N.H. (UPI) — A search flotilla probed the ocean depths off New England Saturday, spurred by the possibility that the shattered hull of the lost submarine Thresher may have been located.

The Navy revised completely its plans for the search after photographs taken on the ocean floor some 220 miles east of Cape Cod showed debris which could have come from a sub torn apart by extreme pressure.

The Navy Marine research ships Gilliss and Conrad, and Atlantic II, the research vessel of the Woods Hole, Mass., oceanographic institution, were ordered to converge on a 300-yard area near where Thresher made her last fatal plunge April 10 with 129 men aboard.

ALL ESCAPE INJURY

Climbers 'Blown' Down Mt. Everest

KATMANDU, Nepal (UPI) — Two American mountain climbers and four Sherpa guides were blown 100 feet down Mount Everest by howling 80-mile an hour winds two nights ago, it was disclosed Saturday. All six escaped injury.

The two Americans were identified in a report from the expedition's base camp as Allen C. Auten, 36, of Denver, Colo., and James B. Corbet, 26, of Jackson, Wyo.

They were in one of the five tents whipped down the mountain by the winds. The four sherpas were in one of the other tents.

The expedition leader, Norman G. Dyhrenfurth, 44, of Santa Monica, Calif., said full details of the accident were not known but the group had decided to press on to the peak, 29,029 feet in the air.

He said the climbers told him by raido, "we just kept hanging on to the tents and managed to get back."

"How they got back we just don't know," Dyhrenfurth said.

Sentimental Reunion Kept With Family

HONOLULU (UPI) — Astronaut L. Gordon Cooper who rocketed to glory by orbiting the earth more than 22 times returned to United States soil Saturday to be greeted by his tearful wife and a record crowd of cheering, banner-waving fellow countrymen.

"I can't tell you how wonderful it feels to be back in Hawaii," he said. "I don't know why I ever left." It was the first time he had touched land since blasting off from Cape Canaveral last Wednesday.

Later, at an official reception given by Hawaii Gov. John A. Burns, Cooper told guests he was ready to go to the moon if called upon. "All we have to do is build the hardware."

NO QUESTIONS

He said there was no question but that he could have remained aloft in his capsule, Faith 7, for another three days with sufficient food and water.

Cooper also described how he managed to catch moisture in the air to drink. His water supply leaked, he said, and he gathered the weightless drops by swinging his handkerchief through the air and then sucking on it.

The handsome, 36-year-old astronaut landed at Hickam Air Force Base aboard a helicopter after a brief flight from the aircraft carrier Kearsarge, the ship which scooped him from the ocean just minutes after he completed a 575,000 mile trip around the world in his capsule.

An airport crowd of 2,000 cheered and whooped encouragement when Cooper embraced his wife, Trudy, whom he met and married when they were both students at the University of Hawaii.

The couple's two daughters, Camala, 14, and Janita, 13, ran up to add their excited greetings to

Cape Canaveral Preparing For Hero Welcome

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — This spaceport city that adopts astronauts, watches them hurled into orbit and prays for their safe return, prepared Saturday to welcome Maj. L. Gordon Cooper with brass bands, a parade and a red carpet.

"There is a great deal of excitement," said Mayor Robert Murshe. "Everyone is talking about it. While this is not his hometown, he is going to get a home town welcome."

Cooper, who flew 575,000 miles around the world in his "Faith-7" spacecraft, will ride today in a motorcade 5.3 miles from Patric Air Force Base to Cocoa Beach.

The astronaut, his wife, Trudy, and their two teen-age daughters, are scheduled to arrive at the air base by jet transport at 11 a.m. today.

Cooper will undergo a medical debriefing, eat lunch with his family at the officers club, then ride in a convertible to a motel where he will hold a news conference.

Girl Scouts Hold Court Of Awards

Court of Awards for the northside Girl Scouts was held this week at Lexington School. This is an annual ceremony in which outstanding troops and scouts are recognized.

Mickie Varnado, senior scout of Troop 1 was the mistress of ceremonies. Success in the cookie sale was announced by Mrs. W. H. McElroy, cookie chairman, who presented the grand prize winner of the Silver Water Council, Marianne Salisbury of Troop 15, with a sleeping bag and a gift certificate. Certificates for Girl Scout equipment were also awarded to the 53 girls who exceeded their quota in the cookie sale. Honor award certificates were given to the leaders of troops that went over troop quotas.

Troops 34 and 46 contained 12 girls who earned the First Class rank. They were Peggy Breard, Candy Cain, Betty Lovelady, Terry McDonough, Susan Mayo, Evaline Jones, Patricia LaDart, Debby Keller, Margaret Horton, Linda Green, Diana Mickel and True Guerriero.

The Curved Bar award, the highest rank in intermediate scouting was presented to those girls who had been active in Girl Scouts for at least six years and had completed the requirements for First Class previously. Receiving this award were Susan Stone, Marianne Salisbury, Dianne Boyd, Gay Gannaway, Kyle Gregory, Martha Allen, Barbara Kurtz, Marilyn Maxwell, Delores Schneider, Peggy Breard, Sheila Devereux, Carmela Sampagnaro and Laurie Spatafora. These girls are from Troops 15 and 34 and will now become Senior Girl Scouts.

Meredith Starts Education Fund For Negro Youth

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Negro James H. Meredith has established a "Meredith Educational Fund" which seeks a goal of $1 million to "help our deserving young people" receive an education.

Meredith, center of rioting when he arrived at the University of Mississippi campus last fall, is scheduled to meet with Negroes here Tuesday in his funds raising drive.

The appearance will be made at a mass meeting of local Negroes organized by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People in its current drive to end racial practices in Jackson.

Mention of the fund came Saturday in a letter from Meredith printed in the Mississippi Free Press, a weekly newspaper.

Meredith said he made "the first contribution of $1,000" to the drive.

6 From Ouachita Degree Hopefuls At Northwestern

Of the total 94 candidates, 29 are seeking the graduate degree. Successful candidates will be awarded degrees at the annual spring commencement exercises to be held in Demon Stadium at 8 p.m. on Tuesday, May 28. Congressman Joe D. Waggonner, of the fourth district, will be speaker.

Airport Work Moving Ahead At Jonesville

JONESVILLE (Special) — Land clearing and construction is underway at the site of the new municipal airport here.

Sen. J. C. Gilbert said public works director Claude Kirkpatrick reported the contract was awarded to the Morrison Engineering and Construction Co., of New Roads.

A firm headed by Roy Snider of Delhi will do part of the work in constructing new facilities.

The project is expected to be completed this summer.

Rumored March Fails To Come

OXFORD, Miss. (AP)—Expected demonstrations by Negro students from nearby Rust College and Mississippi Industrial College failed to materialize here Saturday.

The students were reported planning to march on Oxford near the campus of the University of Mississippi where James H. Meredith is the sole Negro student.

Swift Action Is Predicted On General Appropriations

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Rep. Bryan Lehmann Jr., House Appropriations Chairman, predicted Saturday his committee will act with unusual speed in clearing the administration's $546 million money bill for a House floor vote Wednesday or Thursday.

The general appropriations bill provides most state funds for operating expenses in the new fiscal year beginning July 1.

The bill represents a $44 million increase over the general appropriations bill passed by the legislature a year ago. Also, it forms a key part of the $933 million record state budget which includes federal aid and other funds.

"The intention of our committee as communicated to me," Lehmann said, "is to clear the bill in time for a House floor vote by next Thursday at the latest, possibly earlier."

Never before have plans been made for such high speed in House appropriations hearings on the administration's general money bill.

But the administration timetable for this 30-day fiscal session is geared to speed. All money measures must be on the governor's desk June 6, or five days before the session ends.

Once the big money bill travels over to the Senate, it will be in the experienced hands of the Senate Finance Committee, headed by Sen. W. J. Cleveland, Crowley.

Lehmann and Cleveland are legislative leaders for Gov. Jimmie H. Davis. Cleveland, as budget chairman, helped draft the $933 million state budget.

The administration again is counting on his tact, which led to smooth approval of the general appropriations bill in the 1962 legislature.

His explanation for the expected swift action:

"It is my impression that the prime factors for a prompt acceptance by the appropriations committee are:

(1) The legislative budget committee gave ample time the last two months to a full discussion of the needs in each state agency, with a proper determination of need established during those extensive hearings with department officials, and

(2) For the first time, not only the commissioner of administration but other qualified officials or groups took part in giving the important estimates of state revenues for the coming year."

Lehmann referred to State Treasurer A. P. Tugwell, Revenue Collector Roland Cocreham, the Public Affairs Research Council, Louisiana State University economists and others.

"I know it will surprise everyone to know that the budget committee invited these people to submit sealed estimates," the appropriations chairman said, "and all were within $1 million of the estimate given by Commissioner of Administration James S. Reily's office."

Viet Namese Kill 40 Communists In Smooth Raid

MOC HOA, South Viet Nam, (AP) — In the smoothest military operation seen in South Viet Nam in months, government forces scoured the Cambodian border along the Plain of Reeds Saturday, killing at least 40 Communist guerrillas and capturing a dozen.

Late reports said 84 guerrillas died under gunfire from armored personnel carriers, but these figures could not immediately be confirmed.

SNCC Member In Police Scuffle

GREENWOOD, Miss. (AP) — Hospital authorities said Milton Hancock, Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee worker, was in good condition Saturday after being involved in a scuffle with police.

Police Commissioner B. A. Hammond said Hancock was struck with a police nightstick after he resisted arrest by officer Roy Logan.

Hammond said Hancock was struck when he tried to pull away from Logan when ordered into a patrol car.

Castro Rejects Visits To Red China, Algeria

MOSCOW (AP)—Usually well-informed sources said Saturday Fidel Castro has rejected an invitation to go to Red China, and decided against visiting Algeria.

These sources, not official, said the Cuban leader, in rejecting the Red Chinese' invitation, had felt it advisable also to reject the Algerian invitation since, as one informant observed, "if he could go to Algeria, he could also go to China."

It was officially announced Friday in Algiers that he was expected there May 28.

It has been reported here the Russians are not eager to have him go to China. They have given him an enormous reception in every major city in this country. Clearly the trip and the reception were intended to impress him with the force of Soviet industry and perhaps discourage him from the idea of also dealing with the Red Chinese, who have far fewer of the industrial resources needed by Cuba.

Baptists Favor Birth Control At Detroit Meeting

DETROIT (AP)—The American Baptist Convention is in favor of birth control by artificial means and urges that "safe, reliable, inexpensive and acceptable methods" be found.

The convention, which represents 1.5 million American Baptists, took its stand in a resolution adopted at its annual meeting Friday.

In addition, the convention called on the U.S. government to provide overpopulated foreign countries with "information and equipment" on birth control.

The convention urged "acceptance of the principle that parents have the right for responsible family planning." It called for medical research to "speed the development" of methods for artificial birth control.

With respect to overpopulated foreign countries the resolution said:

"We urge dissemination by the government of the United States, as opportunities occur, not only of food to hungry people but of technical equipment and personnel to aid in economic growth and of information and equipment needed for family limitation."

Former Republican Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota, a Baptist lay leader in Philadelphia, was elected convention president. He was unopposed.

3 Memphis Men Held In Swindle

COVINGTON, Tenn. (UPI) — Three Memphis men accused of cheating a wealthy widow out of about $3,900 in a roofing swindle waived a preliminary hearing Saturday and were ordered held for grand jury action.

The three are charged with larceny and obtaining money under false pretenses from Mrs. L. P. Flippin, 91, widow of a former president of the Covington State Bank.

Officers said the men were accused of obtaining the money from January through March for roofing work which apparently never began.

The defendants were Walter Lee Bledsoe, 36, S. M. Brandon, 37, and Dan Parham, 29.

Girl Scouts Hold Court Of Awards

Court of Awards for the northside Girl Scouts was held this week at Lexington School. This is an annual ceremony in which outstanding troops and scouts are recognized.

Mickie Varnado, senior scout of Troop 1 was the mistress of ceremonies. Success in the cookie sale was announced by Mrs. W. H. McElroy, cookie chairman, who presented the grand prize winner of the Silver Water Council, Marianne Salisbury of Troop 15, with a sleeping bag and a gift certificate. Certificates for Girl Scout equipment were also awarded to the 53 girls who exceeded their quota in the cookie sale. Honor award certificates were given to the leaders of troops that went over troop quotas.

Troops 34 and 46 contained 12 girls who earned the First Class rank. They were Peggy Breard, Candy Cain, Betty Lovelady, Terry McDonough, Susan Mayo, Evaline Jones, Patricia LaDart, Debby Keller, Margaret Horton, Linda Green, Diana Mickel and True Guerriero.

The Curved Bar award, the highest rank in intermediate scouting was presented to those girls who had been active in Girl Scouts for at least six years and had completed the requirements for First Class previously. Receiving this award were Susan Stone, Marianne Salisbury, Dianne Boyd, Gay Gannaway, Kyle Gregory, Martha Allen, Barbara Kurtz, Marilyn Maxwell, Delores Schneider, Peggy Breard, Sheila Devereux, Carmela Sampagnaro and Laurie Spatafora. These girls are from Troops 15 and 34 and will now become Senior Girl Scouts.

6 From Ouachita Degree Hopefuls At Northwestern

Of the total 94 candidates, 29 are seeking the graduate degree. Successful candidates will be awarded degrees at the annual spring commencement exercises to be held in Demon Stadium at 8 p.m. on Tuesday, May 28. Congressman Joe D. Waggonner, of the fourth district, will be speaker.

Airport Work Moving Ahead At Jonesville

JONESVILLE (Special) — Land clearing and construction is underway at the site of the new municipal airport here.

Sen. J. C. Gilbert said public works director Claude Kirkpatrick reported the contract was awarded to the Morrison Engineering and Construction Co., of New Roads.

A firm headed by Roy Snider of Delhi will do part of the work in constructing new facilities.

The project is expected to be completed this summer.

Rumored March Fails To Come

OXFORD, Miss. (AP)—Expected demonstrations by Negro students from nearby Rust College and Mississippi Industrial College failed to materialize here Saturday.

The students were reported planning to march on Oxford near the campus of the University of Mississippi where James H. Meredith is the sole Negro student.

Meredith Starts Education Fund For Negro Youth

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Negro James H. Meredith has established a "Meredith Educational Fund" which seeks a goal of $1 million to "help our deserving young people" receive an education.

Meredith, center of rioting when he arrived at the University of Mississippi campus last fall, is scheduled to meet with Negroes here Tuesday in his funds raising drive.

The appearance will be made at a mass meeting of local Negroes organized by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People in its current drive to end racial practices in Jackson.

Mention of the fund came Saturday in a letter from Meredith printed in the Mississippi Free Press, a weekly newspaper.

Meredith said he made "the first contribution of $1,000" to the drive.

Swift Action Is Predicted On General Appropriations

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Rep. Bryan Lehmann Jr., House Appropriations Chairman, predicted Saturday his committee will act with unusual speed in clearing the administration's $546 million money bill for a House floor vote Wednesday or Thursday.

The general appropriations bill provides most state funds for operating expenses in the new fiscal year beginning July 1.

The bill represents a $44 million increase over the general appropriations bill passed by the legislature a year ago. Also, it forms a key part of the $933 million record state budget which includes federal aid and other funds.

"The intention of our committee as communicated to me," Lehmann said, "is to clear the bill in time for a House floor vote by next Thursday at the latest, possibly earlier."

Never before have plans been made for such high speed in House appropriations hearings on the administration's general money bill.

But the administration timetable for this 30-day fiscal session is geared to speed. All money measures must be on the governor's desk June 6, or five days before the session ends.

Once the big money bill travels over to the Senate, it will be in the experienced hands of the Senate Finance Committee, headed by Sen. W. J. Cleveland, Crowley.

Lehmann and Cleveland are legislative leaders for Gov. Jimmie H. Davis. Cleveland, as budget chairman, helped draft the $933 million state budget.

The 37-year-old Lehmann, appropriations chairman under both Davis and former Gov. Robert Kennon, is sticking to his task despite recent hip surgery which forces him to walk with crutches.

The administration again is counting on his tact, which led to smooth approval of the general appropriations bill in the 1962 legislature.

His explanation for the expected swift action:

"It is my impression that the prime factors for a prompt acceptance by the appropriations committee are:

(1) The legislative budget committee gave ample time the last two months to a full discussion of the needs in each state agency, with a proper determination of need established during those extensive hearings with department officials, and

(2) For the first time, not only the commissioner of administration but other qualified officials or groups took part in giving the important estimates of state revenues for the coming year."

Lehmann referred to State Treasurer A. P. Tugwell, Revenue Collector Roland Cocreham, the Public Affairs Research Council, Louisiana State University economists and others.

"I know it will surprise everyone to know that the budget committee invited these people to submit sealed estimates," the appropriations chairman said, "and all were within $1 million of the estimate given by Commissioner of Administration James S. Reily's office."

Viet Namese Kill 40 Communists In Smooth Raid

MOC HOA, South Viet Nam, (AP) — In the smoothest military operation seen in South Viet Nam in months, government forces scoured the Cambodian border along the Plain of Reeds Saturday, killing at least 40 Communist guerrillas and capturing a dozen.

Late reports said 84 guerrillas died under gunfire from armored personnel carriers, but these figures could not immediately be confirmed.

SNCC Member In Police Scuffle

GREENWOOD, Miss. (AP) — Hospital authorities said Milton Hancock, Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee worker, was in good condition Saturday after being involved in a scuffle with police.

Police Commissioner B. A. Hammond said Hancock was struck with a police nightstick after he resisted arrest by officer Roy Logan.

Hammond said Hancock was struck when he tried to pull away from Logan when ordered into a patrol car.

Castro Rejects Visits To Red China, Algeria

MOSCOW (AP)—Usually well-informed sources said Saturday Fidel Castro has rejected an invitation to go to Red China, and decided against visiting Algeria.

These sources, not official, said the Cuban leader, in rejecting the Red Chinese invitation, had felt it advisable also to reject the Algerian invitation since, as one informant observed, "if he could go to Algeria, he could also go to China."

It was officially announced Friday in Algiers that he was expected there May 28.

It has been reported here the Russians are not eager to have him go to China. They have given him an enormous reception in every major city in this country. Clearly the trip and the reception were intended to impress him with the force of Soviet industry and perhaps discourage him from the idea of also dealing with the Red Chinese, who have far fewer of the industrial resources needed by Cuba.

Baptists Favor Birth Control At Detroit Meeting

DETROIT (AP)—The American Baptist Convention is in favor of birth control by artificial means and urges that "safe, reliable, inexpensive and acceptable methods" be found.

The convention, which represents 1.5 million American Baptists, took its stand in a resolution adopted at its annual meeting Friday.

In addition, the convention called on the U.S. government to provide overpopulated foreign countries with "information and equipment" on birth control.

The convention urged "acceptance of the principle that parents have the right for responsible family planning." It called for medical research to "speed the development" of methods for artificial birth control.

With respect to overpopulated foreign countries the resolution said:

"We urge dissemination by the government of the United States, as opportunities occur, not only of food to hungry people but of technical equipment and personnel to aid in economic growth and of information and equipment needed for family limitation."

Former Republican Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota, a Baptist lay leader in Philadelphia, was elected convention president. He was unopposed.

3 Memphis Men Held In Swindle

COVINGTON, Tenn. (UPI) — Three Memphis men accused of cheating a wealthy widow out of about $3,900 in a roofing swindle waived a preliminary hearing Saturday and were ordered held for grand jury action.

The three are charged with larceny and obtaining money under false pretenses from Mrs. L. P. Flippin, 91, widow of a former president of the Covington State Bank.

Officers said the men were accused of obtaining the money from January through March for roofing work which apparently never began.

The defendants were Walter Lee Bledsoe, 36, S. M. Brandon, 37, and Dan Parham, 29.

JOURNALIST REPORTS

Far East Leadership By U.S. Is Said To Be Good

EDITOR'S NOTE — A distinguished American newspaper executive who has just returned from an extended tour of the Far East, Roy Roberts of Kansas City, finds himself much impressed by American leadership in that area. At the same time, however, he sees Red China and the population explosion as great threats to world peace. Here are his observations on these and other matters.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — American leadership in the Far East, while defensive at the moment, nevertheless amounts over-all to a "tremendous achievement," says Roy A. Roberts, chairman of the board of The Kansas City Star.

Assessing the United States position in a series of articles published in the Star, Roberts wrote: "Mistakes and blunders — yes, waste and millions of dollars down the drain—yes, but over-all a tremendous achievement. Personally, I can't subscribe to the cult of the 'ugly American.' It should be instead, the 'magnificent American.' "

Roberts recently returned from a tour of the Orient and the South Pacific that lasted nearly three months.

He came home, he wrote, with a dominant impression that there are two great threats to the security of the United States and to world peace, Red China and the population explosion.

"Communist Red China presents a far more dangerous threat to world peace and our own future security than Russia," he wrote. "Of that I am completely convinced."

In several articles Roberts described the impact from the sight of Asia's teeming millions.

"The sheer mass of humanity is almost overwhelming. The bulk of these people are just existing on the razor edge of subsistence . . . I brought home the feeling that this pressure of people is almost as dangerous as the nuclear threat itself."

U.S. POSITION

The American position in the far east, Roberts wrote, "adds up to a series of plus and minus factors, and right now the minus sign predominates." But he added: "By no means is the situation hopeless."

The problem of the United States in Asia is complicated by history, the years of colonialism, poverty, illiteracy, the rise of Red China, the lack of political expierence in the newer nations.

Along with his observations on political issues in the Far East, Roberts added numerous little vignettes of every day life.

He said that if he were permitted to return to only one city in Asia, it would be Hong Kong.

"It is a shoppers' paradise," he wrote, "based on cheap labor and small margins. You can get a suit made within 48 hours." He appended "a word of advice to American husbands: Don't take your wife to Hong Kong unless you are prepared to loosen your bankroll."

He labeled Japan "the miracle story of the Orient" because of its booming industries and economic growth rate since the Pacific war.

"Somehow the average newcomer to Japan generally thinks in terms of cherry blossoms, geisha girls, and mystic shrines. They've got those, of course."

But what Struck Roberts, he emphasized, was the giant new steel-producing centers and the Westernizing process, in general.

"As you cross Japan on the magnificent electric railway system," Roberts wrote, "those drab, gray and grimy steel towns look like the steel cities of America . . . Even some of the ancient cities, like Kyoto, are thoroughly industralized. The holy shrines are almost lost in the gray shadows of factories . . . Today, their steel plants are more modern than ours."

The Westernizing process appears not only in industrial techniques, but in sports, nightclubs and clothes, he reported.

Still, he said, copying Western ways has not reached everywhere in Japan.

TAXI DRIVER

"I did run into a taxi driver who refused a tip," Roberts reported.

As for the Chinese, he said, "I like the Chinese especially. All through the Orient I found them intelligent and appealing."

Having been a reporter, editor and publisher for more than 50 years, Roberts looked at newspapers and talked with newspapermen everywhere he went in the Far East.

He wrote: "The press services —Associated Press and United Press International — the news magazines and broadcasting networks all are making tremendous outlays to keep the world and especially the U.S. informed of this awakening Orient and its problems.

"I was very proud of my profession, seeing how they are meeting the challenge of covering this increasingly important world crisis spot. The costs are tremendous more than half a century, I would be remiss if I did not comment that the newsgatherers in the Orient by and large are doing a splendidly competent job, probably a better one that we at home are doing in publishing their efforts."

Describing an individual newspaper plant in Tokyo, Roberts wrote: "I visited Asahi Shimbun, their top newspaper with the biggest circulation of any in the world, some 6 million. I found that they had a huge plant, in some respects more advanced than any in America."

He said that in every major port he got in touch with the resident correspondents and "picked their minds" on the situation in that country and in the Far East generally. He queried the newsmen particularly on four major questions regarding Communist China:

A. When will Red China become a nuclear power?

A. "No one knows and nearly everyone is trying to find out. Some thought Red China might set off its first explosion within the year." However, Roberts said, his informants all said, "Don't panic." He pointed out that it is a far cry from exploding a nuclear device to developing an armament of atomic weapons.

Q. What are present conditions inside China?

A. "No one disputes that conditions in Red China . . . are somewhat better than they were a year ago. But that isn't saying too much. Statistically . . . on the average, food production was up 20 per cent this year. But that's a rise from an almost impossible starvation level."

Q. What about relations between China and the Soviet Union?

A. "The split between Mao, the Red Chinese boss, and Khrushchev, the Russian dictator, is far more serious and deep-rooted and could have far more far-reaching consequences than we have recognized so far over here." Roberts cautioned, however, that this might work in either of two ways: to the advantage of the free world, "or it could make more difficult our immediate job of finding a way to live in the same world with Russia and Red China."

Q. What are the pros and cons of American recognition of Red China?

A. "I found that most of those I talked to gave the opinion that nothing was to be gained at this time by recognition and that possibly there was something to lose. But some day . . . we will have to take China into the family of nations, even if it is still Red. We will have to work with them somehow."

Roberts also made some general observations.

"Australia is much more of a welfare state than we are, and they like it. I was interested also in their medical aid program. . . . We were asked why all the fuss over medicare. They just couldn't see why there would be any debate."

"You couldn't find a better spot than the South Pacific to just sit and watch life go by. Most of these islands are out of this world and its troubles."

"I wonder if we're paying enough attention here at home to the efficiency of our industrial complex and the soundness of our dollar. Both are just as vital, maybe more so, as more missiles, more Polaris submarines, more military bases.

"The admission of Hawaii as a full-fledged . . . member of our union is one of the smartest things we ever have done. It is certain to become one of our biggest states in both population and influence."

"We can all take pride in that (the U. S. record in the Philippines) chapter of American world leadership."

"Foreign aid is as definite a part of our foreign policy as nuclear and military strength, and we must continue it."

"Right now the United Nations carries more prestige in the Orient than ever before, with U Thant, a Burmese, as secretary-general. His appointment and his success in the job have done more to give the Far East pride and hope than any single recent event."

EUROPEAN DATING

Red China, With No Place To Go, Is Moving Upward

EDITOR'S NOTE: Richard P. Lister, British author and former industrial metallurgist, has just come out of Red China after a three-week British travel agency tour. In this special article he offers a rare look at people and life inside Red China today.

By RICHARD P. LISTER

PEKING (AP) — Red China, which had no place else to go, is going upward.

The Red revolution is 14 years old and looks it—gangly here, scruffy there, disciplined in one spot, and untidy in another.

But after three weeks with a group of tourists from London, the conclusion has to be that the Red Chinese are going forward in their own way. If it's not the "Great Leap" yet, it's at least a purposeful stride.

Not everyone in China goes along with the order of things, so refugees still stream by the thousands into Hong Kong. Starving, hopeless, they abandoned their homeland because it holds no future for them. What about the half billion or more left behind?

ABOUT THEM

We tourists addressed ourselves to finding out about them.

We traveled 3,000 miles from Peking to Wuhan, Canton, Shanhai, Nanking. Everywhere the people were calm, purposeful, hard-working; the children plump, brisk, and cheerful.

China is vast, and we saw only a fraction of it. All the same you cannot spend half a day in Naples without knowing the deep poverty or a morning in Stockholm without seeing that the Swedes are thriving. In the China we saw there were no signs of despair. There were poverty and hard living, but the people seemed to have enough to eat and enough to wear. Above all they had hope. Things were getting better, and they could see that happening.

Floods, harvest failures, international complications all appear to be things to be overcome rather than moaned about. Do they worry about overpopulation? Indeed not. For the moment it's perhaps a blessing.

The Red Chinese need manpower, in the absence of mechanical aids. Where you would see one bulldozer in the West you see a hundred men or women in China, carrying earth on their backs.

Output of food is increasing at a specular rate. Floods are being brought under control, irrigation has improved, and the organized labor of the village commune does lift the individual peasant somewhat from the despondency of fruitless toil.

The cities are exploding; Peking's population shot from 1½ million to 7 million since 1949. But birth control is not enough thought of.

Everywhere we went Albanian delegations were greeted with enthusiastic handclapping and welcoming smiles. Portraits and plaster busts of Castro aground. He takes his place alongside Mao Tze-tung, Marx, Engels, Lenin, and Stalin.

Landmark Home Is Destroyed

The ante-bellum home of the R. M. Breard Sr. family, at 2900 DeSiard St., was beyond saving by the time units from the Monroe fire department arrived. Blazing flames raced through the empty, 15-room mansion, set fires to ancient old pecans surrounding the home and burned off grass before firemen could bring the fire to any semblance of control. The flames, reaching sometimes as high as approximately 200 feet in the air, could be seen for miles around the Twin Cities.

The two-story home, empty now for the past five years, was referred to as the "Old Breard Home," by Monroyans and was believed by some youngsters to have been "haunted."

It was built in 1899 by Robert M. Breard Sr., whose wife was a direct descendant of Don Juan Filhoil, credited with being the founder of Monroe. It has passed down through inheritance from Breard's daughter, Mrs. Fred M. Hill Sr., to her three children. Members of the family said it was only partially insured, and the antique furniture inside was uninsured.

Firemen fought the raging inferno for hours in an attempt to extinguish the blaze. Units five and three responded to the alarm, and cause and origination of the fire had been undetermined late Saturday. Firemen were able to keep the blaze from spreading to narby houses, but unable to save the old home.

This is the second ante-bellum home to be destroyed by fire in Ouachita Parish this year. Last month, an old home owned by the Norris estate on the Milhaven Road burned to the ground.

NEW DELHI (UPI) — The last British-owned newspaper in India will be taken over by a group controlled by Indian capital, it was announced Friday.

Airlines Fighting Retreating Action Against Hike In Rate

NEW YORK (AP) — Two U.S. airlines are fighting a retreating action in resisting a general transatlantic fare increase, yielding only country-by-country as the U.S. government advised.

The pattern became clear Saturday after Trans World Airlines and Pan American World Airways — the only American carriers serving Europe — announced 5 per cent fare boosts for flights to France and Germany.

They yielded to British threats of confiscation earlier in the week in hiking rates to the United Kingdom. TWA also agreed to higher rates for Portugal and Switzerland, and Panam said its flights to Sweden also may be affected.

A Panam spokesman said the Civil Aeronautics Board advised the two carriers to conform only as each foreign country applied pressure. The CAB opposes the general increase dictated by the International Air Transport Association.

The increase actually is a halving of the 10 per cent discount allowed for economy-class, round-trip flights. This New York-London fares go up from $486 to $513, New York-Paris $525 to $554, New York-Frankfurt $561 to $592.

Panam and TWA now are charging the higher rates only on flights to Great Britain. But they have advised France and Germany they will comply with demands from those countries. The rates probably becoming effective this week.

France had threatened legal action if the two U.S. carriers did not yield by Friday midnight.

What pressure Germany applied on the two, or Portugal and Switzerland on TWA, was not learned.

Sweden refused to let Panam passengers board flights in Stockholm until they paid $35 more than the prices printed on their tickets.

Last October, the International Air Transport Association, an organization of more than 90 air carriers, adopted the fare increase. Most European carriers, being state-owned, obtained their governments' approval before agreeing. The boost went into effect a week ago.

But the CAB refused to go along until advised to do so by Secretary of State Dean Rusk, who said Panam and TWA should not subject themselves to "penalties for the violation of laws and regulations of foreign countries."

Canada continues to resist the change. That nation has agreements with other countries that until air fare disputes are settled current fares automatically stay in force.

No Headway

HAMILTON, Bermuda (AP)—A meeting of the International Air Transport Association (IATA) went into recess Saturday with no headway reported in the dispute that arose from its decision to boost Atlantic economy air fares.

Another meeting was scheduled for Wednesday at IATA headquarters in Montreal. The delegates opened the meeting here Thursday.

H. Don Reynolds, IATA traffic director, said the recess was called to give the airlines of member countries an opportunity to consult their governments about the fare increase. Asked if the recess meant the air lines could not reach accord, Reynolds said: "The point came to the meeting where it was necessary to consult governments before going on. This breather now gives them the opportunity to do so."

European airlines and governments have already put the fare increase into effect.

REGIONAL UNIT

Laboratory Moves Into New Quarters

The new location of the Monroe Regional Laboratory at 2915 DeSiard St. will place the unit in the mainstream of city life after 19 years of an almost wall-flower-like public existence on the third floor of the old Post-office building.

A part of the Division of Laboratories of the Louisiana State Board of Helath, the regional laboratory in Monroe is under local direction of Miss Florence C. Drach, administrator.

However, as a part of the Division of Laboratories since World War II, the laboratory is not a part of any of the local health units. Supervision comes directly from Dr. George H. Hauser, director, Division of Laboratories.

The new structure was built at a base cost of $186,223. After including other expenses such as laboratory equipment, outside paved parking areas, etc., the overall figure is roughly estimated at $250,000.

As soon as construction was completed and the building accepted, it was deeded to the Ouachita Parish Police Jury.

The staff which has no direct contact with patients or individuals is comprised of five technologists; four typist-clerks, a laboratory helper and a custodian.

The unit handles all specimens taken by physicians and health units involving communicable diseases, examines all public water supplies in the region, all supplies of milk and milk products and makes a host of other tests and examinations.

Demonstrators Try To Invade H-Bomber Base

MARHAM, England (AP) — Several hundred antinuclear demonstrators tried to invade the Royal Air Force H-bomber base here Saturday and were flung back by strong police contingnets.

Nearly 350 police with snarling Alsatian dogs were on hand as the ban-the-bomb column deployed around the base. The guards were reinforced by several truckloads of airmen. As the demonstrators charged across a field and tried to swarm through the wire fence, loudspeakers warned them:

"Keep out. You are in a prohibited area."

Then the guards closed in and forced the demonstrators off the wire, which they had attacked in two waves.

More than 70 were arrested and charged with obstruction. Some were taken into custody for sit-down incidents outside the courthouse.

It was the second successive weekend an attempt had been made to breach the base's defenses. Sixty-three members of the anti-nuclear Committee of 100 have been charged under the official secrets act as a result of last week's demonstration.

Local Woman Named To Post

Mrs. Billie Harrell of West Monroe was elected chairman of the Business and Professional Women's Club state nominating committee Saturday at the state convention in New Orleans.

Mrs. Harrel is first vice president of the Monroe B&PW Club.

The Monroe club placed first in the program contest and third in the best news picture in a daily paper.

Freighter Safe Following Fire

GULFPORT, Miss. (AP)—The Norwegian freighter Thor Odland arrived in Gulfport Friday night after being delayed by fire which broke out when the vessel was 50 miles at sea.

Channel pilot John Foretich said the master of the freighter told him the Thor Odland was hit by fire in the engine room while en route here with a cargo of nitrate of soda.

Foretich said the fire, which apparently did not cause heavy damage, delayed the vessel's arrival by six hours.

'GENEROUS WELCOME'

Kennedy Pleased With Reception

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — President Kennedy and his advisors wondered what kind of reception he would get on his first post-Birmingham foray into the South. Now they know — and they're happy.

More than 180,000 citizens of Nashville turned out Saturday to cheer the chief executive. And, in a major address at a nearly-jammed Vanderbilt University Stadium, Kennedy thanked the city for the "generous welcome."

Aides had feared the route of his 13 miles of driving through the city might be lined with hostile banner-wavers, but the overwhelming majority of the signs held aloft were clearly friendly.

Typical was one little girl standing on a well-tended suburban lawn, who waved a crude pasteboard placard which said simply, "Hi!"

Whenever street crowds were particularly thick, Kennedy stood up in the back of his open-top limousine and waved grinningly in every direction.

Noting that some 40 school bands had serenaded his motorcade, the President expressed his thanks and quipped:

"I feel the musical future of this state and city is assured."

As the presidential motorcade moved on, many bystanders waved American flags. The stars and bars of the Confederacy, often displayed in the nation's capital by touring high school students from the South, was seldom seen.

But there were occasional hostile banners—all obviously produced professionally and stemming from a common source.

These bore such legends as "Disarmament Means Surrender," "The South Shall Rise Again," "Remember Mississippi" and "Kennedy For King—Goldwater For President."

But there were many more signs saying "Welcome Mr. President," "You're The Best," and "All The Way With JFK."

Seaman Is Killed Woman Injured In Balcony Fall

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—A seaman died and his female companion was seriously injured when they fell from a balcony here Saturday.

Police said the couple had been struggling during a drinking spree on a second-story balcony when they tumbled over the side.

The victim was identified as John Prigden, 50, New Orleans.

In serious condition was Ann Max, 49, New Orleans.

Bingo, Bowling Similar; Judge Frees Women

WARREN, Mich. (AP)—"Bingo for women is the same as bowling for men," Warren Municipal Court Judge Edward J. Gallagher ruled Friday in dismissing all gambling charges against 142 persons—most of them women—arrested Tuesday night in a raid on a bingo game in this Detroit suburb.

The defendants, including white-haired old ladies and younger women carrying children in their arms, jammed Warren's City Council chamber where Gallagher holds court.

Six of the 142 arrested in a raid at the Knights of Columbus Hall here were charged with operating an illegal game. The others were charged with patronizing it.

"To be perfectly truthful," Gallagher told the defendants, "I hope you can find a way to play bingo legally." He indicated later that he was "trying to solve a problem" and could not legally promise such leniency every time.

Hotel Segregation Ruled Unconstitutional

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Louisiana's long - standing state law sanctioning segregated hotels was ruled unconstitutional by a special 3-judge federal district court Saturday.

Two of the judges said the decision "dooms the . . . statewide custom that white hotels may not accept Negro guests."

The third judge, while concurring in the decision, took issue with its meaning.

Whether a hotel's doors remain open or closed to Negroes, said district judge E. Gordon West, depends on the hotel owner.

Judge West said the only issue the case presented was whether a state could — by legislative enactment — force a hotelman to refuse a room to a Negro.

"Just as I believe that the federal government may not legally force the owner or operator of a private business to integrate," said West in his opinion, "so do I believe that the state or local government may not compel the owner or operator of a private business to segregate."

Appeals judge John Minor Wisdom and district judge Herbert W. Christenberry said:

"Although the narrow question before the court relates only to the constitutionality of R.S. 14:317 (the state law involved), the applicability of the equal protection clause to such public accomodations as hotels is certain to suggest new and only dimly disernible questions having far-reaching legal and social consequences."

The case involved two Negroes and three New Orleans hotels.

Cabin Cruiser With 4 Aboard Found, Rescued

GULFPORT, Miss. (AP)—A 38-foot cabin cruiser with five Baton Rouge, La., residents aboard was brought here late Friday by the port pilot boat after the cruiser was taken in tow near Cat Island, seven miles off the mainland.

Capt. John Foretich, a channel pilot, said the boat party was composed of Joe Whitehead, his two teen-age daughters and two of his daughter's high school classmates.

The pilot boat attempted to locate the party earlier Friday but was unable due to an inaccurate position report.

The cabin cruiser was later located by a Coast Guard helicopter which directed the pilot boat to the area.

Foretich said the cruiser ran out of fuel while en route here from Empire, La.

'Copter Pilots Branded As 'Air Pirates'

PANMUNJOM, Korea (UPI) — Communist North Korea Saturday branded as "air pirates" two American Army officers whose helicopter was struck by gunfire and forced down in North Korean territory Friday.

A brief Radio Pyongyang broadcast made no mention of the fate of the two airmen, Captains Ben Weakley Stutts, 32, Florence, Ala.; and Charleton W. Voltz, 25, Frankfurt, Mich.

The Communists so far have turned aside all attempts by the United Nations Command (UNC) to negotiate the release of the airmen.

In a meeting of the Military Armistice Commission at this truce village Friday the Communists confirmed the helicopter had been hit by Communist ground fire but said this was a "defensive" action.

UNC authorities said the helicopter was on a "routine" flight, checking identification markers along the south side of the demilitarized zone in the Han River estuary when it was fired on and forced to land on the north side of the river.

A UNC spokesman said "We are making every possible effort to get the pilots returned." But he declined to say specifically what these efforts were.

In March, 1958, an Air Force jet pilot, Capt. Leon K. Pfeiffer, parachuted out of a crippled F86 and landed in North Korea. He was returned after a series of negotiations at Panmunjom.

MEETS WITH MACMILLAN

LONDON (UPI) — Sir David Ormsby-Gore, British ambassador to Washington who was recalled Thursday for briefing on U. S. nuclear policy, met Friday with Prime Minister Harold Macmillan and Foreign Secretary Lord Home.

Pope's Health May Be Key To JFK Visit

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope John XXIII's health may have been a key factor in President Kennedy's decision to visit the pontiff next month, informed sources said Saturday.

The Vatican had no official comment on the subject.

Kennedy, a Roman Catholic, had been expected to by-pass Rome on his coming European visit and defer any possible meeting with the 81-year-old Pope until a state visit to Italy next year after Mrs. Kennedy has her expected child.

Word from Washington Friday night said the President had decided to include a meeting with the Pope in his itinerary for next month after all. This led to immediate speculation that the meeting had been moved up because the pontiff has been ailing.

Kennedy's apparent decision to request an audience with the leader of the world's half billion Catholics follows an increase in the Pope's activities in international affairs.

Pope John recently issued an historical encyclical outlining his ideas on how to secure the peace. He also has been pushing a campaign to improve relations between the Vatican and the Soviet bloc.

No date for a meeting between the Pope and Kennedy has been set, but there were indications it would probably be during the week beginning June 17.

Italy is the first country on Kennedy's tour, which also includes West Germany and Ireland. The President plans to visit Milan and possibly Florence.

Vatican sources said only that the meeting between Pope John and Kennedy would be "a very important, very solemn affair."

There have been indications lately that the Pope may be suffering from a recurrence of a stomach ailment that confined him to bed last December. Published reports that he may have cancer have been neither confirmed nor denied by the Vatican.

Negro Faculty Urged Kennedy To Send Troops

TUSKEGEE, Ala. (UPI) —The faculty of Tuskegee Institute in a letter revealed Saturday urged President Kennedy to send U. S. troops into racially-troubled Birmingham to "assure the impartial maintenance of law and order."

"We are disturbed," the letter from the famed Negro school said, "lest you relax your vigil in the mistaken belief that the public officials of Alabama now have the capacity and will to maintain law and order."

"We deplore the events of the last several weeks which have witnessed the ruthless supression of the rights of Negro citizens of Birmingham to assemble peacefully to protest the accumulated assaults upon their personal dignity and self-respect," the letter said.

"While we unequivocably condemn violence, whatever the source, we cannot be blind to the extreme provocation to which the Negro population has been subjected for many years."

Monroe's Art Center Gallery Slated To Open Today

By FRANK NOONAN
World Staff Writer

Monroe's cultural scope will expand today with the opening of the Art Center Gallery at 1504 Riverside Drive.

The gallery, the first of its kind in Monroe, is a non-profit project, operated by five local artists and art teachers. The Junior Charity League will assist in sponsoring the center which is aimed at providing area artists with an opportunity to display their work and find a market for it. And in turn giving the public an opportunity to see a variety of creations representing the artistic talents of the Monroe region.

The gallery will be open without charge to the public for viewing art, and to artists with the stipulation that a small fee be paid on art sales made there.

To launch the gallery, a tea will be held there today between the hours of 2 p.m. and 6 p.m., open to all who would like to visit the the center of art.

PLANNERS

The artists behind the gallery project are Mrs. Bess James, 1403 N. 2nd St.; Mrs. Dotty McKinley, 1412 Riverside Drive; Mrs. Chiquita Squires, 1500 block Riverside Drive; Ed Schutz, 319 Holly Ridge Drive, and Miss Mary Anita Lennon, 1904 Riverside Drive.

Schutz is an associate professor of art at Northeast State College, and the others hold private art classes. All of them sell art.

Two members of the Junior Charity League will serve on the center advisory board along with three business men.

The gallery is housed in an old two-story frame house in a large tree-shaded yard. Four large, high ceiling rooms will be used to display painting, drawings, sculptured art pieces and creations in other media.

Said Mrs. McKinley, "This is the first gallery like this in Monroe. We've all needed a place to show work, and we hope to stimulate a real active interest in art in Monroe."

Explaining the gallery's operational plan, Mrs. McKinley said, "There will be a small service fee assessed on all sales, which will be used to maintain the gallery. If this will amount to enough, we will bring in some shows from outside and have exhibitions."

As for the scope of the exhibits, she said, "We will have sculpture, oils, water colors, and other media on exhibit. We can take care of about any size of art because we have huge ceilings that go way up."

Continuing, she said, "Since we have been in Monroe we have long wanted to find a place to show art. Exhibits in shopping centers are inadequate. Art needs to be in its place. The gallery is going to accept exhibits that have been judged by a five-man board as being professional level art."

After opening day, plans are to open the gallery from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. daily. Schedule details will be announced later.

Today's exhibits will represent the work of artists from many sections of the district.

When the first pieces of art were being moved into place last week, the five artists who organized the gallery setup were busy with an assortment of tools in making necessary alterations.

Bare spots in the rooms took on new interest as colorful paintings were moved into position and sculpture was placed on stands. There were myriad problems to be ironed out dealing with lighting and other elements, but by the end of the week the arrangement was shaping up, and the stage was set for Monroe's step forward in the world of art.

TO START TODAY

Salvation Army Week Scheduled

National Salvation Army Week will be observed in the Monroe-West Monroe area and across the nation starting today and continuing through next Sunday May 26.

"With Heart to God and Hand to Man" is the theme for the Week, which focuses on Salvation Army services, aims and accomplishments.

Captain W. E. Grantham Jr. announced plans for the week-long observance.

During the entire year, the Salvation Army works to ease the burdens of the poor, the lonely, the troubled, aged and hungry.

The Citadel, at the corner of Hart and Harrison Streets, is the site for the Army's local family welfare department, youth programs which are character-building, and applied Christianity programs for adults.

The transient relief program providing lodging and meals for the needy is carried on in the Strauss Memorial Welfare building, next to the Citadel on Harrison Street.

Army workers participate in League of Mercy work, visiting patients in rest homes and hospitals.

While the Army uses modern facilities, procedures and equipment to help the less fortunate, its service is based on an old and time - tested conviction that man best serves God by serving his fellow man.

The Salvation Army continually adapts its programs of service to fit the changing needs of the community. But officers stress that "Love and patient understanding are our most important tools in combating the hopelessness of the aged, the hostility of the neglected youngster and the agony of the alcoholic.

The Army is 98 years old. It was founed in London's worst slums.

Today in the United States, the Salvation Army maintains 8,551 centers of operation, including 6,405 service extension units.

Other services which the Salvation Army offers in the nation include:

A total of 183 mobile canteens, on call 24 hours a day to serve at fires, floods and other disasters; 124 centers for homeless men and alcoholics; 55 camps for boys, girls and senior citizens; 36 homes and hospitals for unmarried mothers and their babies; and 15 Evangeline Residences for business women with limited incomes.

Mortar Fire Reported On Plain Of Jars

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — Mortar fire was reported on the Plaine des Jarres Saturday. It was the fourth straight day of some kind of shooting in the tense area and diplomats in Laos expressed concern.

Informed sources receiving reports from the Plaine said they could not determine whether Neutralists or pro-Communist Pathet Lao were responsible for the new outburst of mortar fire.

Breaking the pattern for the past three days, the Neutralist government failed to publish a communique on the situation on the Plaine, where pro-Communist Pathet Lao forces faced Neutralist troops backing Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma.

Earlier, Pathet Lao chief Prince Souphanouvong charged that American aircraft were shuttling troops and ammunition to the Plaine in an attempt to break a deadlock in Neutralist-Pathet Lao peace talks. Souphanouvong, Souvanna's half-brother, charged that the American planes were bringing in troops of right-wing Gen. Phoumi Nosavan.

"Deeds and words of your highness demonstrate that you do not want to settle peacefully pending problems," he said. "You are preparing to use force."

Sources here reported that Pathet Lao forces fired 23 mortar shells into Neutralist positions on Friday. They said the Neutralists replied with 9 rounds. Despite the artillery dueling, there has been no indication that either side attempted to launch an offensive, informants said.

161 YEARS SERVICE

Legion To Honor Veteran Members

Three veteran members of the American Legion will be honored Monday night by the L. B. Faulk Post No. 13. The special meeting will be held at the Hotel Frances roof, beginning at 7 p.m.

Slated to receive the honors are Sam A. Orchard, Sam Rubin Sr., and Saul Adler.

The three have had a total of 161 years of service to the Legion.

Rubin has been a Legionnaire since 1920; Adler since 1922; and Orchard since 1926.

First joining the American Legion in Homer, Rubin was a charter member. The same year he transferred his membership to the L. B. Faulk, Post No. 13, and was chairman of the child welfare activities for 15 years in the 40 & 8 organization. For two years he served as Chef de Gare of the localvoiture, and served one year as Grand Chef and Grans Cheminot.

While serving as Grand Chef, he presented a printing press to the United States Public Health hospital at Carville with which the patients began publication of the magazine known as "The Star."

Among the high offices which he held in the national 40 & 8 are Drapeau of Voiture Nationale and Sour Chef de Chemin de Fer (national vice commander for the southern district.

He has attended 30 national conventions of the American Legion, and served on the Americanism Committee representing the Legion as good will ambassador in Paris. He was decorated by the mayor of Paris for work in connection with Franco-American relations.

Adler, a member in the local post since 1922, has been active for many years in promotion of membership, American Legion Junior baseball teams and headed the drive for raising the funds to build the American Legion memorial stadium in 1950.

Adler was instrumental in bringing Shreveport to the Texas League and organized the Twin City Sports, professional baseball club which operated here in the Cotton States and Evangeline Leagues.

He has been a member of the American Legion statium committee since its organization in 1950. He is a member of the Monroe Chamber of Commerce, 40 & 8, B'Nai B'Rith, Lions Club of Monroe, and the YMCA.

412 Negroes Arrested In Demonstration

GREENSBORO, N. C. (UPI)—Young Negro demonstrators jammed area jails Saturday in the wake of a massive anti-segregation demonstration which saw 412 persons arrested in less than three hours.

The arrests came Friday night at the segregated S&W Cafeteria and two downtown movie theaters when an estimated 600 Negro students from North Carolina A & T and Bennett Colleges marched on the business district.

All 412 persons arrested elected to be jailed rather than be released on their own signature, or in some cases post $100 bond for appearance in municipal court May 28. Bond was required of the "repeaters"—those included in the 241 arrested during similar demonstrations Wednesday night in this textile-tobacco city that gave birth to the sit-in movement.

The city jail and second floor courtrooms were jammed Friday night as paddy wagons delivered group after group of hymn-singing, umbrella-carrying demonstrators to the building for processing. The jail is located on the floor above the municipal courtrooms.

"Our purpose is to fill the jails and overfill them and then some," said Williams Thomas, a student at A & T College and president of the Congress of Racial Equality (Core) chapter here. "We will keep up these demonstrations as long as necessary."

The theaters and the two downtown cafeterias—S & W and Mayfair—have been the targets of anti-segregation protests for the last six months.

At Wilmington this morning 56 Negro youngsters staged a "freedom march" seeking equal employment opportunities in city and county government and removal of all signs designating segregated facilities in public places. The group, ranging in age from 3 to 18, was led by Leo Shepard, 27, NAACP executive secretary and youth advisor.

Second Guerrilla Band Smashed

HAVANA (AP) — The government announced Saturday it has smashed another counterrevolutionary guerrilla band in Matanzas Province. It was the second such claim in a week.

An official account said army and security forces had seized the leader of the band and his four lieutenants in a cave near Manguito, 112 air miles southeast of Havana.

The account said the guerrillas killed four peasants in raids on farms.

The same dragnet netted another group of insurgents near Jaguey Grande, west of Manguito, the announcement said.

William Brown Services Today

Funeral services will be held today at Jones for William P. Brown, 68, of Hot Springs, Ark., who died in a Monroe hospital Friday night after a brief illness while visiting his son in Monroe.

The Rev. N. C. McNeil will conduct the services at the Zachary Baptist Church at Jones at 2 p.m. with burial to be in the Zachary Cemetery under the direction of Mulhearn Funeral Home of Monroe.

Mr. Brown was a veteran of World War I, and a member of the DAV.

Survivors include his four sons, Ben Brown, Monroe, Bradford and Glen Brown, both of Topeka, Kan., and Billy Brown, Hot Springs; and one sister, Mrs. Eva Bradford, Oklahoma City, Okla.

Pallbearers will be Woodrow Brown, Barney Dean Williams, J. D. Williams, Harold Hidabridle, Ralph Williams and Marvin Platt.

LAND REFORM

CULIACAN, Mexico (AP) — Gov. Leopoldo Sanchez Celis last week turned over to 674 peasants about 124,627 acres the government had expropriated under land reform laws limiting the size of holdings.

UNDERGROUND RESEARCH IN BAHAMAS

Navy Denies Latest Red Claims Of Missile Tests

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy denied Saturday new Communist claims that the undersea research facility to be built in the Bahamas will be a Polaris submarine base to menace Cuba and Latin America.

A spokesman, in reply to questions, reiterated that the site is only for experimental work and test of underwater listening equipment, will not be a combat facility and will have "nothing to do with Polaris missile testing."

He also again denied that the United States intends to abandon its Navy base at Guantanamo Bay Cuba—a report that has circulated in the United States.

Friday, Havana radio, in a Spanish language broadcast apparently aimed at Latin American nations, declared the facility in the Bahamas arises from an agreement by the United States and Britain to open, "in Latin American soil, a test center and a submarine base for atomic weapons." Havana said "this is the way the United States government greets the proposal by various Latin American governments to turn Latin America into a zone that is free from nuclear weapons.

The Anglo-U.S.-Bahamas government agreement, announced on Monday, provides for building an "Atlantic Undersea Test and Evaluation Center" (AUTEC) in the deep water between Andros Island and Exhuma Sound, with the facilities ready for a start of operation in 1965 and in full operating condition three years later.

The Navy says the site will be used for research and development in underwater sound, deep water effects on sonar equipment, research in oceanography and the testing of underwater weapons.

But no weapons tested will have warheads, either nuclear or conventional, the Navy says.

In addition to denying reports that the function of the Guantanamo base might be moved to Roosevelt Roads, Puerto Rico, the Navy also says there is no intention of moving any part of the Guantanamo facility to the center.

The Havana claim that AUTEC is intended as a Polaris submarine base may have been designed, in part, to counter rumors in the United States that Russia is or has built a submarine base in Cuba to use as a service and supply center for its undersea ships working out of Soviet ports.

The Pentagon has said it has found no evidence of a Soviet sub base in Cuba. During the Cuban crisis last fall there were several sightings of Russian submarines in the Atlantic.

ATTRIBUTED TO FRENCH TERRORISTS

Canada Authorities Start Effort To Halt Bombings

MONTREAL (AP) — Canadian authorities poured money and men Saturday into an effort to halt a wave of anti-government bombings attributed to a French terrorist underground band campaigning for secession of Quebec.

Special urgency was attached to the manhunt because this is the Queen Victoria weekend. Canada observes Victoria Day Monday, moving up the celebration of the British monarch's birth May 24, 1819, to give Canadians a long weekend.

Still probing the mail box bombings in suburban Westmount Friday, police said there will be continuous vigilance in case the holiday may have some symbolic attraction for the terrorists.

Montreal set up a special 200-man anti-terrorist detachment to work around the clock. Civic authorities assured funds estimated at $5,000 a day. Police forces of smaller towns were put on a 24-hour alert.

Some hotels in Ottawa, the national capital, have received notes threatening bomb attacks if they accommodate delegates to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's council meeting there May 22-24. Ottawa is in Ontario Province about 100 miles west of Montreal.

A spokesman for the St. Charles Hotel said one threatening letter in French bore a Hull, Que., postmark.

Police Director J. Adrien Robert met with Royal Canadian Mounted Police officials and Quebec Provincial Police.

Meanwhile, Sgt. Maj. Walter Leja, 45-year-old army explosives expert, remained in critical condition in a hospital, victim of a bomb he was preparing to dismantle in Westmount.

City authorities said the Westmount bombs gave every indication of being the work of Le Front de Liberation Quebecois, self-styled suicide commandos pledged to achieve Quebec independence by violence.

Sentimental Reunion Kept With Family

Burns, leading the official welcoming party, told Cooper:

"You have traveled a greater distance than any other person in history to reach our islands. We hope your stay will be as memorable for you as it will be for us in having you here."

A police - escorted motorcade winding 12 miles through Honolulu from Hickam to Iolani Palace, seat of the state government, took a half an hour longer than scheduled because of huge crowds along the street straining to catch a glimpse of Cooper and his family.

Bikini-clad girls and men in slacks and bathing suits jammed four and five deep up to the sun scorched curbs, waving signs and banners. "Heartiest congratulations Maj. Cooper," said one. "Super Cooper," read another.

HALF OF ISLAND

Police estimated nearly half of Honolulu's population of 300,000 had turned out to welcome America's longest flying space pioneer, a larger crowd by far than that which greeted newly elected President Eisenhower in 1953, or Gen. Douglas MacArthur upon his return from Japan in 1951.

Cooper and his family were scheduled to fly non-stop to Cape Canaveral at 2:30 a.m. EDT Sunday aboard a jet transport where he will receive a technical debriefing.

At Iolani Palace he told a crowd of 5,000 that "another four minutes and eight seconds later and I would have landed right off Diamond Head."

"It's been a great day," he said. "I'm thankful everything worked out successfully on the flight and that I landed in the right spot." This was a reference to the scant five miles which separated him from the Kearsarge when his capsule hit the water.

GETS MEDAL

Cooper received a special statehood medal from Burns, and another medal from regents of the University of Hawaii.

Then the party, including Honolulu mayor Neal Blaisdell and Adm. Harry D. Felt, commander Pacific forces, went to the reception where his wife reluctantly let go Cooper's hand so he might chat with some of the 200 guests.

Admitting he was "pooped," the astronaut and his wife later left the reception for the VIP quarters at Hickam where they rested prior to flying back to the mainland.

Lt. Col. Richard Johnson, Air Force protocol officer, assured their complete privacy in the luxurious apartment and ordered for them a dinner of New York steak, baked potatoes, fresh vegetables, tossed green salad and individual cheesecakes.

For the Coopers it was a sentimental reunion. It was here they met in 1946. A year later they were married and Mrs. Cooper has not been back since 1947.

Soviet Union Warned By NATO Allies

and said NATO nuclear armaments would set back disarmament hopes for a decade.

The replies were timed to be made public on the weekend before the meeting of the 15-nation NATO Council in Ottawa next Wednesday.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara will represent the United States. They hope that the council will create a nuclear command structure headed by the deputy—probably a Dutch general—under U.S. Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, supreme Allied commander in Europe. U.S. officials believe that France under President Charles de Gaulle will go along with formation of a nuclear special staff.

What the Russians are now objecting to, however, is something more real and concrete—a U.S. plan to create a 200-missile force of jointly owned and manned surface vessels equipped with U.S. nuclear warheads and operating in European waters.

The United States has argued that without such a joint enterprise West Germany will eventually demand its own NATO nuclear weapons force to gain admittance to the nuclear club made up of the United States, Russia, Britain and, incipiently, France.

Keeping up its side of the propaganda battle, Moscow threatened Saturday to attack and destroy any U.S. or NATO merchant ship armed with Polaris nuclear rockets. Adm. Sergei Gorshov, commander in chief of the Soviet navy, made the threat in an article in the government paper Izvestia.

Kennedy Tours Troubled South

Later the President and Wallace flew to Huntsville together in the same helicopter and briefly discussed the Birmingham racial situation enroute. Details of the discussion were not disclosed.

At Huntsville, home of the Redstone Arsenal and the George C. Marshall Space Flight Center, Kennedy spoke briefly from a temporary platform set up on the arsenal airfield.

He said the United States is "committed in this decade to be the first in space," and that the price of space supremacy is to keep working "here and all around the world."

A small but enthusiastic crowd massed around the platform to hear the third and last of Kennedy's three speeches of the day. Following the talk the Chief Executive took off for the return flight to Washington.

Kennedy told his Huntsville audience that today as in the days of Columbus there were those who did not want to move further and to keep exploring. He said that when Columbus was halfway to America, there were people who asked why he should go any further.

OMITS RACIAL ISSUES

As he did in Muscle Shoals, Kennedy omitted any reference to racial issues. He confined his Huntsville talk to space and vowed that the United States would be the first within this decade.

In the crowd of well-wishers at Huntsville was actress Tallulah Bankhead, who chose a front-row seat to watch the President.

He departed from normal procedure to ask the crowd how many were connected with the armed forces and how many with the space mission. About half the people raised their hands each time.

He told them: "You who are building the missiles are not only shooting them into space but you are also raising the prestige of this country."

The President said his visit made him "realize again what a strong, great country we are," and added that as the country moves faster into the space age "no place is going to play a more important role than this community (Huntsville) in Alabama."

Dr. Wernher Von Braun, America's top space scientist, was on hand to greet the President when Kennedy first arrived at the flight center. The Chief Executive had a brief private chat with Von Braun before proceeding with the ceremonies.

About 165,000 persons lined the streets of Nashville to watch the President during his visit there. Another 5,000 were at the airport, in addition to the 32,000 that turned out at the stadium.

At Muscle Shoals, Kennedy attracted about 15,000, and that group, too, was friendly.

Kennedy drew cheers when he paid tribute to the Alabama delegation as one of the most distinguished in Congress, and when he added:

"I am proud to be in the state these outstanding men represent," he said.

CONFEDERATE FLAGS

There was a sprinkling of confederate flags in the crowd, but many more American flags which had been distributed in advance of Kennedy's arrival.

The Muscle Shoals crowd was predominantly a white audience, but there were some small groups of Negroes back from the platform.

In an earlier Nashville speech, the President drew thundering applause while urging an end to the prejudices that have resulted in racial disorders.

Gov. Wallace arrived by car shortly before the President's helicopter set down.

Asked whether he was prepared to discuss the racial issue with the President, Wallace said: "I'll talk to the President about anything he wants to talk about. After all, he is the President and he is here."

On the walk from the helicopter to the speaking stand Kennedy and Wallace walked side by side, with the much taller Kennedy towering over Wallace.

GRIM WALLACE

Wallace looked grim as he walked with Kennedy but the President managed to draw a smile from the governor when he mentioned that "you have a nice climate here."

Wallace asked Kennedy if he had a nice flight and Kennedy responded, "It was fine."

"The President, with former Rep. Frank Smith, D-Miss., now a member of the TVA board, walking beside him, made his way from the landing pad, through the chemical engineering building, to the bunting - draped speaker's stand.

A loud welcoming roar went up when Kennedy appeared, and he smiled and waved back.

During his Muscle Shoals speech the President said he had "read much of George Norris," the former senator from Nebraska who is regarded as the father of TVA.

Kennedy noted that one of Norris' favorite phrases, "recurring throughout all of his speeches, was his reference — and his dedication — to generations yet unborn."

"The first of those generations is now enjoying the fruits of his labor as will others for decades to come," Kennedy said, and added:

"So let us all, whether we are public officials or private citizens, Northerners or Southerners, farmers or city-dwellers, live up to the ideas and the ideals of George Norris — and resolve that we, too, in our time, 30 years later, will build a better nation for 'generations yet unborn.'"

EXAMINES CROWD

While the President was speaking, Gov. Wallace looked over the crowd and said, "These folks don't want federal troops here." He referred to the 3,000 riot-trained troops Kennedy ordered into the vicinity of Birmingham, Ala., following the riots of last Saturday night.

"Did you hear those calls for me?" Wallace asked.

Wallace, prespiring in the hot sunshine, walked over to a fence and began shaking hands with the crowd jammed against the bars.

"Real good job, governor," a man in overalls shouted.

Wallace kept shaking hands and said over and over "it's good to be here. It's good to see you."

The handshaking took place while President Kennedy waded through a mob that surrounded him on the speaker's platform.

Wallace said he was "pleased" with the number of confederate flags waving in the audience.

When a reporter asked him about the reaction Kennedy received at Muscle Shoals Wallace replied "the President's always entitled to a good crowd."

At Nashville he addressed a capacity audience of 32,000 in Vanderbilt Stadium, and was interrupted frequently his his appreciative listeners.

Kennedy began his Nashville speech by expressing appreciation to local officials for their "very generous welcome," and particularly voiced thanks to the young men and women in the dozens of high school bands.

GETS LAUGH

He drew a big laugh when he said the youngsters assured "the musical future of this city."

When Kennedy settled into the serious portions of his speech, he drew applause when he asserted that the nation's debate over its citizens' rights will go on until "all Americans have equal opportunity and liberty under law."

He again was interrupted when he talked of the 'citizens' responsibility in that regard, and particularly the responsibility of the "educated citizen."

He drew an extra cheer when he denounced "modern cynics and skeptics" whom he said "see no more reason for landing a man on the moon—which we shall do—than the cynics and skeptics of a half millenium ago saw for Columbus crossing the ocean."

The President left no stone unturned to present a friendly image to the crowd. He was nearly mobbed when he left the area of the speakers stand to talk with a group of veterans from a local VA hospital. He arranged to mail back an autographed book to a Negro when he didn't have time to stop at the moment to sign it.

NOT AN ENEMY

In his remarks at Muscle Shoals he said that the "federal government is not a stranger or an enemy" to the South.

Shortly before the chief executive started his tour attorneys for segregationist Gov. George C. Wallace filed suit in U. S. Supreme Court seeking removal of the troops that Kennedy sent into Alabama in view of the racial situation at Birmingham.

Despite the strained relations between the two officials, Kennedy arranged to have Wallace accompany him on the helicopter flight between Muscle Shoals and Huntsville, the last stop on the President's nine-hour tour.

More than 5,000 flag-waving well wishers turned out to greet the President at his first stop in Nashville. Additional thousands lined the route to the Vanderbilt Stadium and gave the President an exceedingly warm welcome.

Tennessee's governor, Frank Clement, was out to receive the chief executive, bands played and pretty cheer leaders and majorettes were stationed at frequent intervals along the President's route.

TVA ANNIVERSARY

The President officially made the trip for the purpose of honoring Vanderbilt University on its 90th year, and to pay tribute to the Tennessee Valley Authority, which is marking its 30th anniversary.

But the President took advantage of the occasion to drive home his civil rights message to the South, which has experienced growing anti-segregation demonstrations in recent weeks.

Kennedy told his Tennessee audience:

"No one can deny the complexity of the problems involved in assuring to all our citizens their full rights as Americans.

"But," he added, "no one can gainsay the fact that the determination to secure those rights is in the highest traditions of American freedom."

The President called on all educated persons to assume a special responsibility in face of the racial struggle.

"In these moments of tragic disorder," he said, "a special burden rests on the educated men and women of our country—to reject the temptation of prejudice and violence, and to reaffirm the values of freedom and law on which our society depends."

Institutions Board To Show Costs

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Sen. J. C. Gilbert, chairman of Gov. Jimmie H. Davis' prison committee, said Saturday the State Institutions Board will have to show him where proposed reform legislation will cost more money.

Gilbert, of Sicily Island, said in a telephone interview the committee will meet with the institutions board Monday.

The House will return to work at 4 p.m. and the Senate at 7 p.m. to open the second week of the 30-day fiscal legislature.

Other key committee meetings will be concerned with money for state operations next fiscal year and with the problem of reapportioning the legislature.

Gilbert said his committee will meet with the institutions board at request of board chairman Chester Green of Franklinton. He said the only thing he knew officially was that the board requested the meeting and he agreed.

Green said last week his group was concerned about the four-bill package of legislation the prison committee drew up and its effect on the budget. He recessed the board meeting Thursday instead of adjourning it, so the board could return after meeting with Gilbert's committee.

There were indications the institutions board was unhappy with the way the legislation would hit the budget of the State Penitentiary.

Institutions director E. R. Anderson and warden Victor Walker of the penitentiary are scheduled to meet with the two groups.

The board reportedly fears the bills, one of which would boost from $20 to $40 the amount of money given prisoners upon discharge, would cost an extra $25,000 or so and cut the prison short.

Other proposals would cut prisoner incentive pay in half and boost the amount of "good time" off to be earned by prisoners and the prison revolving fund.

Gilbert said that when his committee announced the proposals members estimated an overall $140,000 a year could be saved.

"They are going to have to show me in black and white," Gilbert said, "where it is going to cost them that much money."

The House Appropriations Committee, under the chairmanship of Rep. Bryan Lehmann Jr., of St. Charles Parish, will return at 3 p.m. Monday.

Souvanna Hits At Charges By His Half-Brother

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI)—Coalition Premier Souvanna Phouma Saturday denounced charges against the neutralist and rightwing factions by his half-brother, pro-Communist Prince Souphanouvong, as "unproven, without foundation or invented."

Souvanna lashed back at the chief of the Pathet Lao forces, in a sharply worded letter to Britain and Russia, co-chairmen of the 1962 Geneva Conference on Loas. The letter wes made public here Saturday.

Souphanouvong has accused Souvanna of trying to settle the current Laotian crisis by force by building up his neutralist forces in the Plaine des Jarres with the aid of U.S. arms and equipment and rightwing troop reinforcement.

"I vigorously protest and regret having to declare that the Pathet Lao president's allegations, particularly those concerning neutralist forces are unproven, without foundation or invented," Souvanna's letter said.

Souvanna said Souphanouvong's series of accusations "circumvent the established organization and governmental solidarity" of the coalition government.

UNDERSCORED BY LEGAL SHOWDOWN

Security Lid Is Tightened On Uneasy Race Troubles

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Police clamped tighter their security lid on uneasy Birmingham as sputtering racial troubles across the United States were underscored Saturday by a legal showdown between the President and Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama.

Hundreds of armed state troopers, city and county policemen patrolled Birmingham streets and secret security measures were taken in the wake of continued bomb threats by anonymous callers.

Still on standby at two Alabama bases were about 3,000 battle-ready soldiers, called up by the President for possible use in Birmingham after last weekend's bombings and rioting.

Wallace petitioned the U.S. Supreme Court for injunctions against use of federal troops in the Alabama city. He asked the court to rule that Kennedy violated the Constitution by ordering in the soldiers.

The court move came a few hours before the time set for Kennedy and Wallace to meet in Tennessee Valley Authority ceremonies at Muscle Shoals, Ala.

The dramatic meeting came admid these developments:

—Kennedy said in Nashville, Tenn., scene of recent sporadic racial violence, that Americans must reject temptations of prejudice and violence. He emphasized respect for law.

—The President told Alabamians at Muscle Shasol, "The people of this area know that the federal government is not a stranger or an enemy. For without the national government, there could be no TVA."

—Most of 412 Negro demonstrators arrested Friday night in Greensboro, N.C., chose to stay in jail. They marched in protest to downtown segregation policies.

—A federal judge ordered desegregation next fall of the first and second grades of New Orleans public schools.

—Integration groups set Sunday for a rally in Englewood, N.J., in a campaign to end racial imbalance in schools there.

—Racial imbalance in schools of Malverne, N.Y., was reported by the state education commissioner's special committee.

—A group of prominent white citizens met in Cambridge, Md., with Negro leaders to work out a restaurant integration plan after week of picketing, marching and arrests.

—Presidential aide Charles A. Horsky said in Oakland, Calif., that Democratic Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, a New York Negro, and Malcom X, a Black Muslim leader, are helping inflame racial troubles in Washington, D.C.

—Fifty-six Negroes staged a march in Wilmington, N.C., in support of better job opportunities. They were not arrested.

Birmingham Judge William Conway convicted 70 Negroes for demonstrating in mass marches that landed more than 2,400 in jail before a biracial truce May 7.

Charges against 15 others were dropped for lack of evidence.

In a surprise move, the Birmingham Board of Education decided that student demonstrators charged with truancy would be allowed to attend summer school despite expulsion or suspension.

This apparently was another step toward maintaining racial peace in the Deep South industrial city.

One point of the biracial agreement reached a week ago by white and Negro leaders involved charges against demonstrators and expulsion of participating pupils.

The agreement, in present form, calls for gradual desegregation of downtown store facilities; better jobs for Negores; further efforts to settle the demonstrators-pupils issue, and reopening of biracial talks this week.

Voter Interference Trial Continued

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—An elderly, crippled circuit clerk testified Saturday he "didn't see or hear a thing pertaining" to Justice Department charges two Negroes were struck by Rankin County officers in the clerk's office when they were attempting to register to vote.

But the Justice Department presented a statement which J. R. Bradshaw said he "apparently made" to an FBI agent indicating he had known of the alleged incident.

The government charged Edwards and two other men, believed to be his deputies, forced the Negroes out of the courthouse before they could fill out voter registration forms.

Rankin is adjacent to Jackson, the state capital.

Bradshaw, who mounted the witness stand with the aid of canes, told the court he suffers great pain and takes a medicine for the pain which sometimes affects his memory.

Bradshaw had testified earlier the voter registration deadline forces a rush in his office — which was the case when the Negroes were involved in the alleged incident.

Bradshaw told the court about 11,000 persons were registered voters and "I think there are 93" Negroes registered to vote.

During the past seven years, Bradshaw said, about 75 Negroes have sought registration and about 60 per cent have been registered.

The government told the court it would prove Sheriff Edwards "came into the office and beat up one of the Negroes."

Justice Department attorney Robert Owen said "two of the other Negroes" were hit by an unidentified assailant. He said the alleged incident was "without provocation."

The defense acknowledged there was an incident in the courthouse on the date involved, but attorney W. E. McIntyre Jr. said "there was no connection whatsoever with voter registration." He said the incident was "with provocation."

Wallace Davis, 30-year-old Rankin County Negro, told the court he was filling in a voter registration form and someone "struck me back of my head with something." 'A 23-year-old serviceman, M. C. Carr, said he was in the clerk's office and someone "hit me twice."

Carr and Davis both identified J. B. Collum, no further identity, as the man who struck them.

Earlier, the Justice Department attorney asked for permission to allow Davis to identify Collum. A marshal summoned Collum and just as he stepped into the courtroom McIntyre objected.

Collum and two other witnesses then were presented and David picked Collum as the man who allegedly struck him.

Carr, however, picked Collum from four witnesses.

None of the other Negroes allegedly involved in the incident appeared Saturday. Carr and Davis testified they met accidentally at the courthouse as individuals seeking registration.

They told the court they were completing the process when they were struck. Carr and Davis said they fled the courthouse.

'Wide Open' Republican Contest Is Developing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Thruston B. Morton, R-Ky., said Saturday a "wide open" contest is developing for the 1964 Republican presidential nomination.

Morton, former party national chairman, said his travels to all parts of the country as head of the GOP Senatorial Campaign Committee indicate to him no candidate is likely to attain before the convention the kind of commanding lead former Vice President Richard M. Nixon enjoyed in 1960.

"As of today," Morton said in an interview, "the potential candidate with the most solid strength in certain states is Arizona Republican Sen. Barry Goldwater. His strength is in the South, the West and the far West."

On the other hand, he said, New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller has support where it counts most.

But Morton said a burgeoning crop of potential favorite son candidates may act to block off substantial early ballot support for both Goldwater and Rockefeller at a convention where 655 votes will be required for the nomination.

Republican members of Congress from Michigan are booming Gov. George Romney as a favorite son candidate who would have the state's 48 convention votes as a starting base for a run for the top prize.

Ohio could tie its 58 votes to Gov. John A. Rhodes.

Although he has said he could support Rockefeller enthusiastically as the nominee, Gov. William W. Scranton might yet be persuaded to become Pennsylvania's favorite son and the beneficiary of its 64 votes in the early counting.

Morton, mentioned by former President Dwight D. Eisenhower along with Romney as a potential presidential nominee, said that if Kentucky Republicans want to go for a favorite son, he will suggest that they give their 24 votes to Sen. John Sherman Cooper, his GOP colleague.

Wisconsin Republicans are talking about the possibility of making Rep. John W. Byrnes their favorite son. If any such action were taken, it probably would wash out any presidential primary battle for the state's 30, convention votes.

As matters stand, the primaries may not offer much enlightenment on the relative strength of Goldwater and Rockefeller.

The New York governor is expected to enter selected contests. Goldwater said he will not give his consent to enter his name, but would not ask to withdraw.

That would limit Goldwater's participation to a maximum of eight primaries. In only three of these — that in Illinois with 58 votes, Florida with 34 and the District of Columbia with nine— would Goldwater be regarded as the logical favorite.

The Disirict of Columbia law is clouded, but officials said it would be possible for a delegate slate, unofficially supporting Goldwater, to be entered without his consent.

Other primaries in which consent of the candidate is not required included those in New Hampshire, Delaware, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Oregon.

States like Indiana, Nebraska and South Dakota, where Goldwater could be expected to run strongly, require the candidate's consent. Massachusetts has a provision for a write-in vote, but Goldwater expects no surge of support there.

Sen. Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., who opposes Goldwater as the nominee, said on a taped television program he does not believe Rockefeller's remarriage will affect materially the New York governor's chances for the nomination. He said he thinks the convention's decision will be made "on the basis of a man's qualifications for office, his experience and his judgment."

CHERISHED gathering place

Annual family gatherings at small rural churches of their earlier years recall to many fond memories of all-day singing events and dinner on the grounds. Near the Louisiana line in Arkansas is such a meeting place which has been in use 123 years. Many from Northeast Louisiana have attended gatherings there.

Of all the old customs which cling to the rural sections of the South, one of the most cherished is the annual gathering of families at the little churches of their fathers for "all-day singin' and eatin' on the ground."

Sleek cars fringe the edge of dusty roads and park every-which-a-way in the old church yard where wagons and buggies once hitched up. Women's dresses today are up to the knee, where once they fell in voluminous folds to cover the ankle with proper modesty. But the tables spread with white cloths under the old trees and laden with fragrant food, the singing echoing through the surrounding woods, and the embracing of long-absent kin all are the same — an unbroken link with early America.

REUNION

One such reunion of old families will take place on Sunday, May 26, on grounds that have been continuously occupied for 123 years by the Antioch Methodist Church, five miles south of Hamburg, Ark., just north of the Louisiana line.

The first building went up in 1840 as a meeting place for the pioneers of the area, four years after Arkansas became a state. There was no sawmill at that time, so the men built their church as they did their homes, of pine logs from the surrounding forest. The logs were cut, mortised and hoisted in place for the walls, and the roof was made of hand-drawn boards.

Mud filled in the spaces between the hewn logs, and the floor was of packed earth. Two windows, each two feet square, were cut in the thick walls, and there were two doors.

This one-roomed wilderness church was then named for the ancient Biblical city of Antioch, where the followers of Jesus were first called Christians — possibly because it was the first public meeting place for Christians in that section of the new state, later to become Ashley County.

DISTANT TRAVELERS

Some members of the congregation lived so far from the church that their trip was broken with an overnight stay at the homes of friends who lived closer to the little log building. On Sunday mornings all who were to attend church set out early, carrying their lunches for the all-day meetings. It was customary to have two sermons, one at 11 in the morning, and the second at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, in order that the people could return to their homes before dark. There was great danger from wild animals and highwaymen, and the men carried their guns for protection.

As the area drew new farmers and fur trappers from the eroded fields of South Carolina, Georgia and Alabama, the tiny log church became inadequate for the growing congregation. A rip-saw mill or so had appeared in the county, and people decided to build a "modern" church of boards.

In 1858 a boxed building with a plank floor, two doors and six glass windows made room for everyone. In front of the new church stood two giant oaks, while a silver maple and a magnolia tree grew at one side. A native catalpa stood in back, where its seedling descendants fill the spring air with fragrance today. The men cut a huge stepping block from a single virgin tree, and placed it where the ladies could mount their horses and alight with dignity from buggies and wagons. The old split log benches were replaced with pews made of hand-planed pine boards held together with square nails.

STORIES ON STONE

A grassy cemetery behind the church tells much about the early settlers. The century-old grave markers of three small Goodwin children who died within four years of one another before the Civil War, and their parents who were buried before they were 40, paint a picture of little medical help when croup turned swiftly to pneumonia, when home remedies failed to cure malaria and other frontier diseases.

Many of the families who gathered through the years to sing and worship and break bread together under the shade of the great oaks are recorded on the marble stones in th little burial ground—the Goodwins, Neels, Franklins, Whites, Waldrups, Hills, Walkers, Byrds, Millers, Johnsons, Purdues, Jarvises, Honeycutts, the Morris family, Boyths, Bennets, Chandlers, Slater, Alexander, Payne, Ramsey, Weaver, Glass, Douglass, and Montgomery families have all been members of the Antioch Church.

ANOTHER BUILDING

In 1888 the post Civil War population growth called for further expansion, and a new building with three doors and nine glass windows was built. This is the building which stands today, set off from the busy Hamburg-Bastrop Highway by a big, shaded church yard, where the original log cabin church stood in 1840. The pine board pews were moved to the new church, and more made for the growing membership.

In 1922, when people began to move to nearby cities, and paved roads with swift cars made city church membership convenient even for the rural families, the Antioch Church became inactive. However, descendants of the pioneer families continued to bury their dead in the Antioch Cemetery, and felt the need of some organization to keep the building in repair for funeral services and the burial ground tidy.

In 1940 Mrs. Otis (Honeycutt) Ingrum and Mrs. Clara Belle (Miller) Shields announced a Homecoming for the first Sunday in September. Descendants of the Antioch Church families — grown men and women who had gone to school there (it served a period as a one-roomed school) and grown up with the memory of dozing on those hard pine benches through countless long sermons, met and pledged money to repair the church and care for the cemetery. It was that year that the Antioch Cemetery Association was formed. This group sparkplugs the semi-annual "all day singin'," at which times the hat is passed for maintenance of this oldest church in Ashley County, and the cemetery in which many members of the old families continue to be brought to rest.

ARRIVE EARLY

Sunday, the 26th of May, cars will begin to arrive early. Children will spill out first to play in the church yard while their mothers bring covered dishes, cakes, pies and great platters of fried chicken, deviled eggs, pickles, jams and breads — to spread on board tables under the trees where picnic lunches have been shared for more than a century. The singing will begin with a little knot of men humming — then the leader will set them off on the old Gospel hymns that have been sung since the oldest of them was a boy in knee breeches.

Spencer Jarvis, of Crossett, co-chairman with Robert Johnson of the Antioch Cemetery Association, says, "We're looking forward to this being the best homecoming we've ever had out here." He says the families usually gather around 9 in the morning, and begin singing around 10. "The singers generally let the preacher have thirty minutes at 11:30."

A. B. Cummings, of Hamburg, will bring the sermon, as he has almost at every homecoming since they started. But Jarvis says, "So many of the people like the singing so well 'til we give in to the singers," and the sermon time is short. Some of the people never go into the little church — just stay out under the trees, exchanging news of old friends and families, joining in the singing, and watching a new generation of children play the old games in the church yard.

As old as our South, and as new as the youngest baby who will spend the day cradled on one of the old pews brought under the trees, the homecomings at Antioch Methodist Church remain a tie in this Space Age with the men who cut trees from the virgin forest to build a Meeting House 123 years ago.

Kennedy Purge List?

Reportedly, President Kennedy is denying privately, but not publicly, that he has compiled a list of southern senators and representatives he wants purged in next year's elections because they won't go along with his civil rights and economic programs.

Most congressmen in the south are Democrats. There can be no doubt that Kennedy would like to get rid of some of those who have opposed his integration and socialization programs most strongly. He would have relatively clear sailing if he could replace these men with others of his own choice.

There are two solid reasons, however, why the president may not want to start purge action. One could be that such a program, if effective, could result in defeat of these men and election of Republicans in their places. The other could be that Kennedy has all too strongly in his mind what happened when the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt attempted congressional purges when he was at the height of power. Not only were the purge attempts unsuccessful, many of those whom Roosevelt opposed received stunningly high votes, revealing that the people had no relish for presidential interference in the state elections.

Although many of the southern Democratic congressmen have teamed up with conservative northern Republicans to defeat New Frontier proposals, Kennedy at least gets the support of these men on strictly partisan matters. If he were to cause the defeat of Democrats and the election of Republicans, this partisan support would go to the Republican side.

Ralph de Toledano, astute Washington correspondent of the Monroe Morning World, says the New Frontier administration is experiencing some pangs of uneasiness over the probability that Governor Nelson Rockefeller of New York may not get the Republican presidential nomination. This was stimulated by the divorced Rockefeller's recent marriage to a woman whose divorce had just been obtained.

The man the New Frontier now fears most in the presidential race is Senator Barry Goldwater of Arizona, a conservative with more color, vigor and public appeal than any who has appeared on the national scene in years. Logically enough, the New Frontier has concluded it can't be defeated by any "me too" candidate who tries to convince the public he can "out-liberal" the so-called liberals. Every thoughtful person knows that can't be done and most of them don't want to see it tried.

At this time, because of President Kennedy's relentless efforts to hammer segregation down the throats of the people of the south and because of his virtual turning over of Cuba to Russia, the president's stock in the southern states is running low.

If an election could be held tomorrow, with Senator Goldwater pitted against Kennedy, we might see a solid south in the Republican column. The south might not be absolutely solid against Kennedy but the votes against him would look like an avalanche if Goldwater were his opponent.

President Kennedy probably is smart enough to know that he can't afford to risk a purge of southern conservatives in the 1964 elections. If he isn't smart enough, he has a politically cunning brother, Attorney General Robert Kennedy, who will tell him.

Far from fearing any purge efforts by the president, the southerners want to dissociate themselves from him as far as possible in civil rights action, figuring that, thereby, they will improve their chances for election. This is undoubtedly a correct assumption.

Speed Limits Change

Recent enactment of legislation in Texas permitting speeds of 70 miles an hour on some highways emphasizes that, as safer highways and safer automobiles are built, higher maximum speeds are as safe, or safer, than the former lower speeds.

In 1938, three states had a maximum speed limit of 35 miles an hour, seven states had a 40-mile maximum, 13 states had a 45-mile limit, two had a 50-mile limit and one had a 60-mile limit. All of the others had a "reasonable" or "safe speed limit, with no actual miles-per-hour fixed. States which allowed only 35 miles per hour were Idaho, New Hampshire and Wyoming. Mississippi and Utah permitted 50 miles and Colorado allowed 60 miles. Colorado was the first state to venture up to the 60 miles now allowed in those states in which the limit is not higher.

Louisiana now has two rural maximum speed limits — 60 miles on two-lane highways and 65 on four lanes. Some other states have at least two rural maximums.

The year 1938 might be considered about the halfway mark in number of years since automobiles came into general use. That has been 25 years ago and 25 years futher back than that there were not many automobiles.

Maximum speeds, of course, should conform with the safety of the highways and the automobiles. Because of greater safety, the trend in speed limits has been upward.

Italy Faces Crisis

Italy, which had a fascist government, under Dictator Benito Mussolini, prior to and during most of World War II, now is in the throes of a crisis brought on by huge communist gains in the recent elections. How long that country can escape communist domination is problematical.

Amintore Fanfari, Christian Democratic premier, who has been under heavy fire because of his party's losses to the Reds and liberals, submitted his resignation to President Antonio Segni after a five - minute cabinet meeting.

Anyone would have to be gullible indeed to doubt that communist advances throughout the world have been largely aided and abetted by the wishy-washy and irresolute international policy of the United States. Many actions taken by administrations prior to that of President Kennedy showed an attitude of appeasement toward Russia. During the New Frontier administration of Kennedy this attitude has degenerated into what looks like absolute submission to or condonement of Russian advances.

At a time like this, such adages as "Nothing succeeds like success," and, "Everybody caters to the boss," come sharply to mind. There are some who will inevitably believe that if communism can make democracy kow-tow to it, it must be superior. And the New Frontier lets them think it.

Lo, The Poor Farmer

Winnsboro, La.

To the Editor:

"Lo, the poor farmer" and "Lo, the poor farmer's wife!" Hogwash! Who ever heard of such.

My husband and I have lived on a farm for over 26 years and we have never wanted to change. We have a better life than any "city folks" we know. We have a truck and car and live nine miles from town, and believe me that is close enough. We both just finished high school and have a better income than our "city cousins."

Sure, we have worries, who doesn't? But the fellows in town don't have to worry over making a living because his wife is bound to work. They just can keep up with the Jones' if she doesn't. Well, we know what each makes here and we live as good neighbors, as our kids have everything in common as we do. And what better feeling is there than to work with the soil. Maybe you do get your hands dirty and maybe your hands never really come clean from shelling peas, but when those two hands meet and you look at them you know that there is true love for you, your family and your land. Oh, if everyone could know this just once.

Sure, we farmers' wives like to look as pretty and keep up with the city ladies to a degree, but we know we have so much more than they can ever know, we don't mind if they out run us some.

And, if you think we don't know real life you are the ones living in a dream world. This is where life began. Our five-year-old knows more about nature than some college graduates I have known.

When an eight-hour working man wants his job to make him more, what does he do? He asks for a raise. Well, do you know who we ask? God! Don't you think that if all our country, including our leaders, would have to do that what a better world this would be, and to appreciate what we do have with the greatest sense of the word. For after you have planted, gathered and placed food in the freezer and done your canning, when you place a table with that food, well, there is no greater pride. Or when you dress for church and you see how nice your family looks and you realize you made most of their clothes and yours, you know contentment.

My husband does have many a worry, but so does everyone else. What would there be to strive for if everything was sugar and cream, and what man can just take off and go fishing for a while, or what husband can come home when he feels like it. We have our own land and are our own boss. So what other business can you find that gives you greater strength in God and your fellow man.

As for the wife's being frustrated for not having enough contact with the busy world outside her "remote village" in the "sticks", you are crazy. When was the last time these men have been to the country? Or did this all come out in 1910? We live on a farm of small size and I have an electric stove, large refrigerator, automatic washer and a dryer and many small electric appliances. Oh, yes, I can't leave out an indoor bathroom.

So what does anyone work for in a job? Satisfaction, contentment and love of it. Well, if you are a farmer and stay with it you have those things not only for your farming for farming goes beyond all this to a greater power at work. And if you can get this from life, I'll stay where I am. If we do have ulcers where would I rather have them than here.

I am writing on the article in your paper. I hope you print this in your next editorial out and prove them wrong on a lot of things. I just can't stand that idea of us being as they said we are. Give us a chance!

Mrs. Glynn Porter

Editorial Complimented

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

We, the taxpayers of Ouachita Parish and Monroe, wish to compliment you on your editorial of last Sunday on our school board mess. It has come to the finish wire as to what should be done and you had some very good suggestions and I am glad to see that Mr. Drennan last evening followed through in more detail on some of them. His idea of the State Board investigating this problem is a sound one and let's hope that you and other interested parties will follow through and see that action is taken.

Certainly we agree that any parish board member who has sent his children or is sending his children to the city system should not be a member of the board that he has taken an oath of support and uphold. This is the type of disloyalty that plays havoc on the morale of our high school teachers and students. I feel that we the voters are guilty to a large part in electing men who are not qualified educationally and businesswise to serve on our boards and police juries. I agree heartily with Mr. Drennan that there is much waste and duplication in operating two different systems and it is time that we stop passing the buck to our children as our parents have done to us and demand that something be done about it and now.

How many of the taxpayers have taken the time to drive out on Nutland Road to see the new Junior High School and Elementary school being built? Why, it is only a few blocks from the Thomas Jefferson Junior High School (city operated) since the new subdivisions and bypass have been cleared out. Do they know that there are over 20 empty rooms at Jefferson and that Minnie Ruffin is only half filled? As well as Shady Grove, which is only a mile and a half away? Do they know that the Parish buses pick up hundreds of students for Ouachita Jr. High School within a ten block area, (inside the city limits of Monroe) of Jefferson and haul them to Ouachita? If they doubt it, take time and drive down there any morning and see them picking them up even across the street from Jefferson.

We will be asked shortly by the city board to give them more money to build additional classrooms at Neville. Why were we not informed of this need when the last bond issue came up? When are they going to give us in Ward 3 the high school they promised us two years ago? When are we in Ward 3 going to wake up and find that we don't have representation on the city school board and have not had any for the past three years? Is this fair when we have the largest number to educate?

I say let's stand up and be counted and get some recall petitions going if our elected officials don't get busy and remedy this situation.

Harry Stewart

Editorial Called Timely

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

The World's editorial of May 12 - Unity of Purpose Needed by Ouachita School Board - was very timely and, I think, badly needed. There must be hundreds of citizens, citizens directly concerned with this problem as stated by you, who will readily agree and offer support to your ideas.

I have lived in Ouachita Parish for seven years, with a child, or children, attending school in the parish system. I have, at times, been utterly amazed at the blickering and quarreling, the factions and splits, that seem to dominate so much of the boards activity. I do not speak against any member personally. Definitely not. However, I do very definitely marvel at the seeming lack of organizational leadership, not on the part of one member but possibly on the part of several members, to weld this group into a cooperating unit.

Without attempting to break into the many (many) rumors of "suppression", "fear", "jealously", "individual member domination", etc., I decidely want to endorse the World's idea of the formation of a Citizens Committee to formulate a workable plan. It also seems to me that our board members should realize that even though such rumors are baseless, that constant bickering tends to lend an air of credulence to those rumors.

Many think that last week's vote of confidence was not in true keeping with the actual total feeling present. What a shame, if this is true! I think that all eyes should watch to see if that resolution holds water. Once confidence, support it wholeheartedly! Lack of confidence, for Pete's sake, give reasons to the people and have the guts to stick by those reasons! Then, work hard with the majority to do the best job.

In my opinion we have many highly qualified people guiding our children through our parish schools. It has been a distinct pleasure to me to see first hand the very fine, the very kind and very capable personalities of those who are with my children so many hours of the day. If this is true, I would then insist that those people be given every possible bit of the capabilities possessed by those who constitute the board, in all areas affected by the board, in order that all of the children shall be adequately provided for.

R. B. Martin

Congratulations Given

West Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

I wish to congratulate you for your fine editorial in Sunday's Morning-World regarding the Ouachita Parish School Board. Your suggestion to lower the number of school board members is a positive step in the correct direction towards eliminating the constant bickering and controversy that has prevailed in the board for a number of months. It may also be well to discontinue any remuneration for serving on the school board, as I am sure that there are any number of good businessmen that would consider it a privilege to serve and would do so without pay.

How Do You Stand, Sir?

By BARRY GOLDWATER

U.S. Senator From Arizona

What's best for the economy right now?

The answer to this now or at any other time, it appears, is just what President Kennedy proposes. At least that's the way it is in Washington.

For example, only a few weeks ago, everyone in the administration, from the President on down, was warning that the nation could expect its fifth post-war recession in the not-too-distant future unless the tax program of the New Frontier was enacted immediately.

The American people were told over and over again that it would be economically dangerous to cut federal spending or forego tax cuts in a time of persistent unemployment. They were led to believe that only the speedy adoption of President Kennedy's program could prevent serious economic trouble.

But nothing happened. Congress refused to be stampeded. The the President's tax program was introduced in the House and referred to the Ways and Means Committee for hearings and study. And, at this writing, it remains in the House Committee where all the facets of ramifications of the President's program are being given careful attention.

MEANTIME, BACK ON the economic front, things were undergoing a change. The picture began to brighten. The nation's economic indicators began to point upward, the stock market showed signs of turning bullish, the number of new jobs increased and personal income hit a new high.

In fact, things have reached a point where the administration's economic advisors have begun to talk about a "Kennedy Prosperity." This might have some validity, if it weren't for the fact that the economic upturn began despite administration predictions of recession and a generally unfriendly attitude toward business — and if it weren't for the fact that it began without any help from a Kennedy tax program.

Of course, there can be no doubt that the Kennedy tax program came into existence as a course of action the White House decided was needed to pull the nation out of the economic doldrums. But now that the nation has started to climb on its own—without the benefit of the Kenneday program — there is no lessening in the official demand for its enactment.

For example, Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon told the U.S. Chamber of Commerce during its recent annual meeting here that it would have been "unrealistic" four or five months ago to expect conditions to be "so favorable" for a tax cut. As it is, he explained, the time is now ripe.

IN OTHER WORDS, NO matter what the state of the economy, no matter whether we are faced with the prospect of a fifth post-war recession, no matter whether the state of the economy shows marked improvement, the administration still insists on new tax cuts, greater spending and heavy deficits.

The administration still holds to its old worn-out thesis that more money must be put into circulation so that consumers will have more to spend and the demand for American products will increase. And it contends this must be done no matter how deeply the government goes into debt.

If there ever was any justification for this kind of fiscal thinking, it belongs in a period of deep recession or actual depression. To push this kind of a program during a period of increasing prosperity can result in only one thing — ruinous inflation.

I suggest that if the administration persists now in jamming through its tax cut and spending program, the value of the collar will shrink even further, and the American people will be saddled with what has been called "the unfairest tax of all" — the loss of purchasing power.

How do you stand, sir?

Red U-Boat Bogey

All But 12 of 400 To 500 Russian Subs Called Obsolete

For some time, viewers-with-alarm have stridently warned of a Soviet submarine fleet numbering between 400 and 500 vessels. These cry-wolf accounts have painted our top Navy officials (and, indeed, all of our military) as shortsighted and complacent men unable to perceive the dangers and blinded by a dangerous disdain for Soviet undersea power.

The precise opposite is true. The U. S. Navy, which has never looked lightly on Communist threats, has carefully examined every scrap of evidence available to the viewers-with-alarm (and much they have never seen) in order not to be caught unaware.

Our Intelligence officials know that the Soviets have these 400 to 500 submarines. But they also know the capabilities of these German-model, World War II style U-boats. All but 12 of these underwater craft are useless in an age of atomic weapons. And those Soviet submarines that are armed with missiles—the 12—have a maximum speed of 18 knots, which makes them easy prey for our modern hunter-killer submarines. The missiles they carry have a range of 200 to 300 nautical miles, but these could be launched against the United States coast only if our Navy had specific orders not to sink them before they were properly positioned.

THERE HAVE, HOWEVER, been stories in the newspapers about a "fleet" of Soviet atomic submarines. On the basis of my own experience with Communist propaganda claims, my brief look at the Soviet's visible naval power, and the detailed accounts of its "reviews" off Leningrad, it has been obvious to me that this scare talk was based on nothing but a few hints dropped to the right reporter at an impressionable moment. The Communists are adroit at this.

American Intelligence cannot rely on this kind of information. It derives its conclusions from a dull and painstaking process — the kind of brilliantly routine work which in World War II enabled us to break the Japanese code and clobber the Emperor's navy. In Intelligence, the Mata Haris and the flamboyant spies are few and far between. The most successful kind of espionage consists of putting together hundreds of thousands of tiny scraps of information until the jigsaw has been completed.

On this basis, small contradictions assume great importance. So too does the even smaller giveaway — which is why all combat soldiers are told never to try to fool the enemy if captured — simply to give their name, rank, and serial number. A lie is frequently more revealing than the truth.

As a result of this kind of work, it can be stated that the Soviets do have an atomic submarine — just one atomic submarine. We know what it looks like, how it is constructed, and how it is operated. We know its speed and its performance. Compared to ours, it is a primiative model. We know it has made at least two trips under the Polar cap. We know without any doubt that it is incapable of any voyage around the world without surfacing. (The Soviets revealed this.) It is possible that other atomic submarines are under construction, but this is the kind of assumption made about an enemy service for safety's sake.

PERHAPS THE MOST interesting piece of Intelligence concerns the 400 to 500 conventional (and obsolete) submarines in the Soviet fleet. Why, when the rest of the world was looking ahead to more modern weapons, did the Kremlin opt for a vast fleet of craft which would not compare with what was on Western drawing boards?

The answer, simply, is that the Kremlin has always operated this way. When jets were first coming in, the Soviet Union quickly developed one design and than mass-produced it. Today these two-engine TU-104s fill Russian airfields. The planes are lumbering and inadequate, but Comrade Khrushchev sure as blazes has a lot of them. The same has been true of other weapons. The Soviets always seem to have one aim — to achieve numerical superiority. They can then boast of so many of this and that — but while they boast, the United States and Great Britain are developing new and more effective models.

If the Soviets go true to form, their scientists and engineers will work on new plans — waiting for the flow of stolen U.S. and British blueprints. Then the Kremlin will decide on a new model for its submarine fleet. The West changes and adapts with each new effort. The Communists will mass-produce. Then they will announce that they have X number of atomic submarines. This will exceed the number under commission in the U.S. Navy, but in an era of fast-moving technology, there will be no comparison between ours and theirs.

THE ALMANAC

By United Press International

Today is Sunday, May 19, the 139th day of 1963 with 226 to follow.

The moon is approaching its new phase.

The morning stars are Venus, Jupiter and Saturn.

The evening star is Mars.

On this day in history:

In 1536, Anne Boleyn, wife of King Henry VIII of England, was beheaded.

In 1856, Sen. Charles Sumner delivered a blistering attack on slavery and the people of the South.

In 1945, more than 400 U.S. Superfortress bombers soared over Japan, attacking Tokyo and laying mines in vital sea lanes.

A thought for the day—Greek playwright Epictetus said: "No man is able to make progress when he is wavering between opposite things."

The Week In Focus

GORDON COOPER

Drama In Space

For some 30 hours, astronaut Gordon Cooper was a man waiting for a challenge last week, as he circled the earth. It came and he met it magnificently.

For most of the trip, Cooper's flight seemed almost dull. He even took cat naps, then slept for one 7½ hour period as his space capsule whirled around on its 22-orbit flight.

But at the last with only two orbits to go, drama took over. Cooper saw it on his instrument panel. The green light was on indicating his spacecraft had encountered the "first smidgeon" of gravity force, something that should not have happened until he was re-entering the earth's atmosphere.

AFTER TENSE minutes, it was discovered that what the trouble did was limit the ways Cooper had to control and to sense the position or attitude of his spacecraft. And it knocked out the accurate sensing devices that gave an instrument reading of the spacecraft's attitude.

As a result of this and other trouble, Cooper ended up doing much of his reentry work manually, such as firing the slow-down rockets, controlling the spacecraft position, jettisoning the spent rockets. And he did it all well.

The landing was beautiful. He hit the Pacific ocean less than four miles from his target and less than two minutes off schedule. As he was picked up, Cooper, who is known as Gordo, was given a hero's welcome by the sailors and marines aboard the vessel, then later he talked to his family and received congratulations from President Kennedy. Cooper himself said he was "just a little woozy."

THUS ANOTHER American space hero was born. With 34 hours in space and 22 orbits, he set a new American record and drew the praise of the world.

Space officials said Cooper's feat would aid greatly in sending an American to the moon.

Local, State Headlines

The top local story of the week developed at the Ouachita Parish School Board meeting Tuesday night when President Charles Drennan came up with a suggestion aimed at establishing a boundary system in Ouachita parish, with the river possibly being the dividing line.

DISCUSSING controversies and problems which have confronted the board in recent months. Drennan declared "the only solution is some system of boundaries."

As a result of the suggestion, the board voted unanimously to ask the State Board of Education to make a study of the local school setup and make recommendations.

Drennan said it was time to eliminate overlapping services by both the Monroe City and Parish school boards, such as duplicating bus routes, schools and other expenditures. He pointed out that in many cases city buses were bringing in parish children to city schools and that in Monroe city children were going to parish schools.

JUDGING from the response, Drennan's proposal was welcomed by numerous residents.

Meanwhile, a member of the board, Dr. F. H. Hammonds released figures showing what coaches in other schools were receiving above their base pay for handling various sports as compared to Ouachita parish where assistants receive $750 per year extra.

For example, Fair Park pays its head coach $1698 per year extra for coaching duties, the first assistant $1213, the second assistant $1090 and the other $1053.

Bolton $2628.23 and $875; Bastrop $2122—$1122—$950—$850; Bossier $2000—$1100—$1000—$1000—$1000—$1000, and Neville $2200—$1300—$1000—$800—$700.

Dr. Hammonds said he obtained the figures from the various schools.

ON THE STATE level, Governor Jimmie H. Davis apparently couldn't stand his austerity program. As the Legislature opened its fiscal session the past week, the governor asked for a record $933-million budget, punching at his critics with a $15½ million surplus that came from unexpected oil leases.

A major bond issue was voted to help make up the deficit, plus a $60 million highway bond issue — which will have to be paid off over the next several years.

There was good news for Monroe City residents. Mayor W. L. Howard and the city council reported that Monroe would operate in the black again. The council voted a budget of $3,659,832, slightly higher than last year. From the budget, $354,255 was set aside for capital improvements which will allow the expansion and improvement of public facilities without resorting to special fund raising.

School Dropouts

The single most remarkable fact about school dropouts is that the father and mother were dropouts, too. This is the prime conclusion of an intensive study by the Maryland Department of Education. In the study group, nearly 80 per cent of the mothers and more than 80 per cent of the fathers of dropouts had quit before completing the public school course.

The second most remarkable fact, the report said, is this: Slightly more than half the dropouts are from families in which the head of the household is unskilled, frequently unemployed and in the lowest income brackets. The third is this: More than two-thirds of the dropouts never participated in athletics or extracurricular activities of any kind. The fourth: On the purely academic side, the most common factor in the dropout is the inability to read.

It reached this conclusion — For most of these dropout conditions the school cannot be held directly responsible. But at one point it is directly accountable — to pass him beyond the fourth or fifth grade, say, without exhausting every technique to develop and sharpen his reading ability is no act of kindness, or to pass a student when he doesn't make it because of his ability on the athletic field, which is too frequently done, is simply to push him beyond his depths into waters where he will eventually drown.

Saving Face In Japan

There's always something new under the sun. Now the most popular souvenir from Tokyo is plastic surgery, performed in one of the Eastern city's booming hospitals that specialize in such operations, at considerably lower cost than in western hospitals.

Japanese medical reports on foreign clients reveals that most American patients checking in are women over 40, requesting removal of facial wrinkles or fatty tissue. Most popular requests from younger U.S. visitors are for (1) larger bosoms; (2) shorter or straighter noses. French women, another sizable patient group, are mostly in their 30's seeking massages, hormone injections or dietary treatments to improve the skin, rather than more drastic surgery. Leading requests from the Italian contingent: Larger bosoms, better hip lines, removal of fatty tissue. Most Asian women want the bridges of their noses made higher or want their eyelids westernized.

Average fee for a nose job is $28-58; removal of "bags" under the eyes runs to only $19.50.

Birmingham Case

A NATIONAL publication — Insider's Newsletter — reports the racial situation in Birmingham, Alabama — which was touched off by Negroes trying to bring the U. S. government into the case — may be giving President Kennedy and his little brother, Bobby, the attorney general, a lot to talk about in their late night conferences.

Actually, what the administration is trying to do is racing to get enough Negroes registered to offset a swing of disgruntled Southerners to a vigorous Southern GOP in next year's presidential election. But observers with an ear attuned to Southern Negro sentiment contend that many Negroes are so unhappy with the gap, as they conceive it, between White House promise and performance that they might set out the presidential race and concentrate on local candidates. Spread of this dissatisfaction to Northern Negroes — in Chicago, for example — could create trouble, the magazine said. The GOP in the South appears to be recruiting new members from long-time solid Democrats. Clues to the GOP's strength include the $100,000 raised in Mississippi at a Barry Goldwater dinner. And reports say Democrats take seriously the possibility that Mississippi might elect a Republican governor. This seems a little far-fetched, however.

DEMOCRATIC leaders also are concerned that Birmingham, plus action the White House may have to take to insure integration of the University of Alabama's Huntsville center could lose Alabama. Another spot is Virginia where there's liable to be Birmingham-type trouble before election next year.

MEANWHILE, the vast majority of white Birmingham citizens continued to be caught in the game the Kennedys play on integration.

In one interesting facet, it is hard to conceive of how in the bombings the past week in Birmingham, someone wasn't killed. A Negro motel and the home of the brother of Martin Luther King were bombed and destroyed. The amazing thing—no one was hurt although the event occurred late at night. Many wonder if it wasn't planned by radical Negro groups themselves in an effort to get U. S. troops in and to touch off a riot which did follow.

POLICE OF Birmingham conducted themselves admirably despite the charge by Negro leaders of police brutality. It speaks well for police discipline that in the face of the mass rioting, officers killed no one or seriously hurt anyone. In fact, more police officers were injured than anyone else. At least one was stabbed.

As a result of the riots, the President acted as Negro leaders had hoped; he sent U. S. troops into Alabama, although presumably none were in Birmingham, although Gov. George Wallace, a strong segregationist, said some were. The President expressed hope that troops would not be needed.

Wallace telegraphed Kennedy: "In my judgment, these mobsters want federal troops and your action only tends to aggravate and inflame."

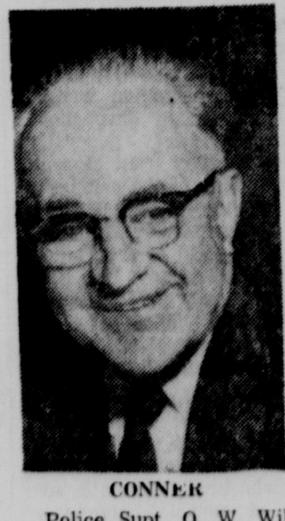
Wallace also announced intention of filing suit to challenge Kennedy's right to send federal troops into Alabama to settle racial turmoil. He said — "this is a military dictatorship and it must be nipped in the bud."

Kennedy's action actually posed a legal point, particularly if he sends troops into Birmingham in the event of another riot. The question — Does he have a right to use troops in such a situation when no federal law, court order or function is specifically involved?

The trouble developed in Birmingham when Negroes tried to force desegregation of the city. Later an agreement was reached between Negro leaders and some so-called prominent citizens of Birmingham on the issue.

BUT AT week's end, trouble was developing for some of Alabama's most prominent businessmen who participated in the agreement. Their names were disclosed Wednesday night amid reports of a budding boycott of stores by white persons opposing the bi-racial agreement.

More Negroes are appearing in the stores, but merchants report fewer white shoppers. The merchants are worried, and some say the city's economic plight, already bad, is becoming more serious. They realize that Negro trade alone will not keep them from going broke.



CONNER

Commission Mayor Arthur Hanes and Police Commissioner Eugene (Bull) Connor have called on white residents to boycott the downtown merchants in retaliation for the desegregation pact.

MEANWHILE racial unrest was reported elsewhere. In Chicago Negroes stoned police after a Negro youth had been wounded in a burglary investigation. As usual the South was blamed.

Police Supt. O. W. Wilson said — "This was an outgrowth of the Birmingham situation. It wouldn't have happened a year ago."

Youth Crime — French Cure

The answer to worldwide juvenile delinquency may have been found in France; credit goes to mountain-climbing author Maurize Herzog, President de Gaulle's high commissioner for youth and sport, for whom a brilliant political future is now being predicted.

In two years, the number of youthful offenders appearing before Paris courts has dropped more than 60 per cent. Key factor in the Herzog plan involves the setting up of "maisons de jeunes" (young people's homes) where offenders are brought to live and given personal projects of accomplishment — anything from a scientific study to farm work to writing a novel. The project chosen must be completed before the youth is released. French officials report impressive results of this program are now being studied eagerly by foreign authorities.

The French point proudly to the fact that theirs is the only country in which rising prosperity since 1960 has produced a sharply declining youth crime rate.

Washington Scene

ATTORNEY General Robert Kennedy testified the past week at a Senate hearing that "to a serious extent, the scales of justice in this country are weighted against the poor." He appeared before the Senate Judiciary Committee as it started hearings on an administration bill to provide counsel and other legal services in federal criminal cases for defendants who can't afford to pay for them . . . The Supreme Court, always pulling surprises, ruled against former Venezuelan dictator Marcos Perez Jimenez in his unprecedented legal battle against extradition to face trial in the country he once ruled. By refusing to hear his appeal from a lower ruling, the Supreme Court opened the way for Secretary of State Dean Rusk to decide whether or not Perez Jimenez should be sent back to Venezuela. Meanwhile, Mrs. Jiminez and her four children have asked President Kennedy an audience to plead against allowing the former ruler to be extradited by his homeland on embezzlement charges . . . Newton N. Minow's resignation as chairman of the Federal Communications Commission has been accepted by President Kennedy. Minow, who once aroused the ire of the television industry by chiding it as operating in a vast wasteland, will step out June 1. He will be succeeded by another commissioner, E. William Henry . . . Meanwhile, the President may visit Rome at the start of his European trip late next month to see Pope John. There have been published reports that the 81-year-old head of the Roman Catholic church has cancer . . . Rep. Adam Clayton Powell the free-wheeling Democrat from New York who calls the President and his brother by their first names, received a setback the past week. The House refused to approve a trip to Geneva next month for four members of Powell's Education and Labor Committee. However, the action won't prevent Powell and a GOP colleague from making the trip anyway as official House delegates to the International Labor Organization Conferences . . . Three Russian fishing trawlers were spotted off the Florida coast last week . . . presumably to witness and take notes on the fantastic space feat of Gordon Cooper's 22-orbit space shot . . . Senator Thomas J. Dodd has protested to Secretary of State Dean Rusk any move to restore normal relations with the Communist regime in Hungary. Dodd sent Rusk a telegram on the basis of reports the department is weighing decisions to resume relations with Hungary and drop its opposition to seating the Hungarian delegation in the UN . . . Despite GOP opposition, the House the past week approved a bill that would permit the national debt to soar to a new record high next month so the government can keep paying its bills. The debt now stands at $303.5 billion. Now it will surge in mid-June more than $1 billion above the record high of $305.5 billion peak reached Nov. 30 . . . And the House Education subcommittee also voted to deny federal funds to segregated schools which do not come up with a desegregation plan this June and do not have a plan in operation by June 30, 1964 . . .

Expect Moon Will Provide Big Surprise

EDITOR'S NOTE — Man's first trip to the moon probably will be a lot less fearsome than Columbus' voyage to the New World. And while conditions on the moon may seem terribly inhospitable, scientists figure there will be some marvelous advantages also.

By WILLIAM C. HARRISON

Associated Press Science Writer

SUNNYVALE, Calif. (AP) — When man lands on the cosmic wasteland of the moon sometime this decade, he'll find it loaded with riches, well disguised.

The lunar surface is lifeless and airless, baked by day and frozen by night. The earth's antarctic ice shelves, by comparison, are hospitable as a hearthside.

But there are many advantages in low gravity—about a sixth that of the earth—and no atmosphere.

No atmosphere means no breezes, clouds or storms, no weather at all—just a monotonous succession of days — about 14 earth days long—and nights.

"That long period of sunlight is a tremendous energy source," Homer A. Boushey, retired Air Force brigadier general, pointed out in an interview.

Boushey heads the scientific and product planning department of Lockheed Missiles & Space Co. A speech he made in January 1958, proposing the moon as military "high ground" for deterring an atomic attack on the United States, aroused widespread interest and controversy.

With no weather and little gravity, large devices to capture, conserve and utilize the moon's undiffused solar radiation can be flimsy structures by earth standards.

"And something as simple as a parasol might be extremely effective in protecting personnel from the radiation," Boushey said.

He and Jack A. Kraft, a planning scientist in the department, predicted, however, that the first men visiting the moon will land just after the lunar night begins, when the insulation problem will be even simpler.

The insulation provided by the hunar vacuum will make the minus 240 - degree Fahrenheit nighttime temperature easy to deal with. The same applies to the 214-degree daytime heat. The vacuum can be employed much in the manner of the picnic bottle idea.

Vacuum insulation should greatly simplify electricity transmission, he pointed out. And there'll be no corrosion of metals.

Discoveries and developments in low-temperature and low pressure physics, infant sciences on earth, will boom on the moon, where a vacuum of unlimited extent and subarctic temperatures will be available just outside the air lock door. Natural insulation may make heat reservoirs feasible.

The moon almost surely will become a communications center with the coherent light beam of lasers carrying millions of messages. Ordinary radio communication will be crippled by lack of an ionosphere such as earth signals bounce against.

In theory a space vehicle could achieve the 5,200 miles per hour for lunar escape — it's 25,000-m.p.h. on earth—on the moon surface without consuming any of its own fuel.

Earth escape, impossible by catapult, requires energy estimated at 20 times as much and enormous fuel loads.

The moon will become a way station to other planets. Tanker rockets placed in earth orbit from the moon will be used for refueling of earth rockets, scientists predict.

"We are much more well prepared for lunar colonization than men were in Columbus' time for earth colonizing," said Boushey. "And the men aboard Columbus' ships were far more isolated than moon colonizers will be. His crews faced greater emotional problems—lice, scurvy, thinking they might fall off the earth at any moment."

Dr. Kraft, a psychologist, was asked about possible behavioral problems.

"With proper personnel selection as we have in our astronaut program now, proper indoctrination and training, behavioral problems will not be formidable," he replied.

THIS IS A general view of Robert College atop a hill behind Bebek at Istanbul, Turkey. College In Istanbul Was Established By American

By HAL MCCLURE

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP)—During the final phase of the Crimean War a New York tourist was startled to see a boatload of white bread moving across the Bosporus.

Such commodities were in short supply and the visitor, a wealthy tea and sugar merchant named Christopher Robert, was curious. He learned that the bread was going to the British hospital at the Selimiye Barracks, the same hospital where a British nurse named Florence Nightingale had worked. A resourceful American teacher, Dr. Cyrus Hamlin, had made the bread to help earn money for the high school and theological seminary he operated outside Istanbul.

Robert decided he wanted to meet this enterprising man. The meeting, in 1856, changed both their lives. Hamlin had a dream which Robert helped finance: an American college in Turkey.

That dream, Robert College, is celebrating its 100th anniversary this week. More than 130,000 students of many nationalities and religions have attended it. Graduates have fanned out through the Middle East, to become prominent businessmen, ambassadors and statesmen.

IT WAS ROUGH

It was rough going at first. Hamlin had five teachers to teach four students when the school opened in his old seminary in 1863.

He met mysterious opposition when he tried to build a new school atop a hill behind Bebek. He charged that France and Russia were pressurizing the Ottoman government to keep America out of the Bosporus, an area they had considered their own.

The U.S. naval hero, Adm. David Farragut, was in Istanbul with part of the fleet on a courtesy call. Hamlin and friends persuaded him to bring up the subject of the college when he dined with the high Ottoman officials. The grand vizier (prime minister) finally gave permission to build at the present location.

Hamlin was a New England version of the Renaissance jack-of-all-talents. He could make a watch, a steam engine, washing machine—and, of course, a loaf of bread. He concocted his own cholera remedy and he lit the first electric light in the Ottoman Empire. He demonstrated the first telegraph in Turkey on a crude set sent by Samuel F. B. Morse.

He also could preach a mighty sermon.

Hamlin was born in Waterford, Maine, and went to Bowdoin College and Bangor Theological Seminary. He died at 90 in Portland, Maine.

ITS ACADEMY

The college and its academy have about 950 students now, only a small percentage of them Americans. Robert College boasts one of the best equipped audio-visual laboratories in Europe. Its science and engineering courses are outstanding. Students can also major in business administration, economics and languages.

Dr. Patrick Malin, the current president, says the college was not designed to turn Turkish citizens into American citizens.

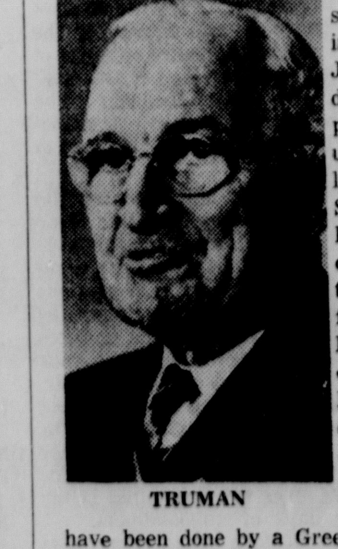
He tells students:

"What it does do is what it has done from the start. It enables you to perfect your command of reading, writing and speaking the English language—to enable you to walk through the open door that the English language opens for you at work and in culture."

Robert College and the affiliated American College for Girls had a budget of about $2.5 million last year, 80 per cent of it contributed by American individuals, business corporations with interests in Turkey, foundations and the American government. Turkish businesses and foundations also contribute.

On Foreign Shores

THE WEST German House has overwhelmingly approved the French - German friendship treaty providing for cooperation between the two longtime enemies. The treaty, which envisages close cooperation in diplomatic, defense and cultural matters, now goes to the upper house where approval is certain . . . Apparently a new government in Canda will give the U.S. leaders what they want. Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson says he expects negotiations toward a bilateral nuclear agreement for Canada to acquire United States-owned nuclear warheads to begin "within a few days." The previous Canadian government fell over the issue . . . In Argentina, President Jose Maria Guido appears to have survived the ninth crisis of his year-old regime after maneuvering controversial Gen. Enrique Rauch out of the key post of interior minister. Rauch had charged the administration was riddled with corruption . . . U. S. Army special warfare officers are closely watching developments in South Viet Nam for signs of whether Communist guerrillas have started a concerted drive to kill U. S. military advisers. Meanwhile, Secretary of the Army Cyrus R. Vance said at New Orleans the past week that a "corner has been turned and we're on the way to victory" in South Vietnam. However, Vance said he would not be "so rash as to predict" when the 12,000 Americans in South Vietnam might return home . . . Two of Haiti's leading exiles — Lois DeJoie and Daniel Fignole — have formed a provisional government in Puerto Rico and have predicted President Francois Duvalier's fall within a few weeks and they will take over. Meanwhile diplomats also predicted Duvalier's fall shortly and that revolutionary forces are massing in neighboring Dominican Republic. Some senators fear the possibility of a Communist takeover in Haiti and have suggested the U.S. should take military action if necessary to prevent the Haitian government from falling into Communist hands . . . Meanwhile, here is some good news from the UN for U.S. taxpayers — a UN source says Secretary-General U Thant will pace the UN on an austerity budget for 1964 . . . The Soviet Communist party has postponed its scheduled central committee meeting on ideology from May 23 until June 18. The plenum is expected to deal mostly with internal ideological problems and results, in a stepped up battle against foreign particularly western ideological influences on Soviet life. It will also provide party leaders with the opportunity to discuss other key issues, among which the Chinese question was expected to figure highly . . . Former President Harry Truman can always stir up a controversy even without trying. Plans to erect a 12-foot bronze statue of Truman in Athens, Greece, the capital of ancient art, is causing a furor. Some Athenians don't want the statue at all. Some think it should have been done by a Greek sculptor. The statue, to be put up in one of Athens' main streets May 29, commemorates the Truman Doctrine of 1947 which came to the aid of Greece when Communists threatened to take over the country . . .



TRUMAN

WEIRDLY-WONDERFUL and wildly-colorful are a few of the adjectives describing the photoscenic Monument Valley in Utah.

NEW PARADISE

Man-Made Lakes Change Utah's Deep Canyons

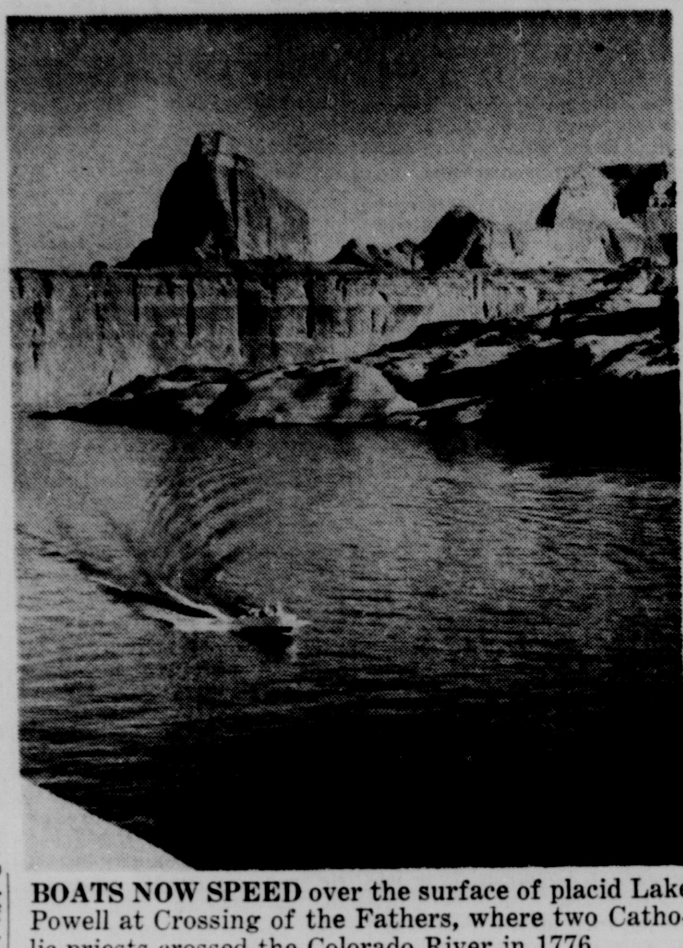
Two gigantic, man - made lakes are rising in the forbidding, wilderness canyons of Utah, creating new boaters', swimmers' and fishermen's paradises for outdoor - minded Americans.

Following closure of the diversion tunnels of Flaming Gorge Dam in northeastern Utah last fall and Glen Canyon Dam just below the Utah - Arizona border this spring, water from the Green and Colorado Rivers has begun backing up into Utah's picturesque canyons, forming Lake Powell and Flaming Gorge Reservoir, two of the largest man - made bodies of water in western U.S.A.

Flaming Gorge Dam is already completed and power from its generators is scheduled to "go on the line" sometimes this summer. At Glen Canyon, workmen continue to place concrete on the huge, 700 - foot high giant. They expect to "top - out" the dam by mid - summer. The first power from its generators will be on the line by mid - 1964.

Both lakes are located in rugged wilderness, offering high adventure and pleasurable water sport to boaters who want to explore the many side canyons and inlets now made accessible by the rising water.

Before the end of the summer, Lake Powell will have backed up 155 miles into the rugged, little-explored, red - rock country of southern Utah . . . from the government town of Page, Arizona, to the little settlement at Hite, Utah. Eventually the lake will extend 186 miles up the Colorado River to the treacherous rapids of Cataract Canyon. The lake will fill an area once classified as the least - known, most isolated and primitively beautiful regions in America.



BOATS NOW SPEED over the surface of placid Lake Powell at Crossing of the Fathers, where two Catholic priests crossed the Colorado River in 1776.

SWALLOWED UP

Within days of the closure of the gates at Glen Canyon, water had backed up to cover the "Crossing of the Fathers," swallowing up forever the historic site where two Catholic priests . . . the first white men on Utah soil . . . crossed the Colorado River in 1776 on their way to Santa Fe.

The lake had also moved to the mouth of the Escalante River, named in honor of one of the leading priests, and had begun moving up this tributary, as well as up the San Juan River. The lake has also swallowed up the mouth of Kane Creek, where the baptism scenes in the motion picture "The Greatest Story Ever Told" were recently filmed.

Water has also covered the camping shelf of Aztec Creek, present entrance to Rainbow Bridge Creeks to pass beneath the massive arch of Rainbow Bridge, the largest natural bridge in the world. Soon America's boaters will be able to take their craft within easy walking distance of the famous bridge, and at high water mark will be able to walk on a floating walkway beneath the bridge itself.

Water from the lake, however, will not touch the abutments of the huge natural wonder, and according to the U. S. Geological Survey it will not weaken or impair the bridge foundations in anyway.

Lake Powell is named in honor of John Wesley Powell, government explorer and survey who created the course of the Colorado River in 1869 and 1871-72, providing the first accurate and comprehensive descriptions of the canyons in the future lake bed. It was Powell who named Glen Canyon after its picturesque and shaded glens and its quiet, placid nature, in contrast to the violence of Cataract Canyon farther upstream.

DAMS SIMILAR

Lake Powell will be much different from its downstream sister, Lake Mead, even though the design of Hoover and Glen Canyon Dams are somewhat similar. Lake Mead, containing 31,000,000 acre - feet of water, fills a Y-shaped basin of dark - colored rock, with comparatively gentle slopes. Lake Powell, on the other hand, ultimately containing 28,000,000 acre feet of water, backs up into southern Utah's picturesque "Canyon Country," into a land of red rock much of which has been unexplored by modern man.

When filled, the lake will have 1,800 miles of shoreline, winding into a myriad of canyons on the Colorado, Escalante, San Juan and Dirty Devil Rivers, with innumerable fingers stretching up smaller tributary streams and draws, some of which had been uncharted before construction of the dam.

Flaming Gorge Reservoir will back up some 90 miles, filling evergreen-studded Red Canyon, inundating the small town of Linwood and extending nearly to the town of Green River, Wyoming.

Water skiing on the two new reservoirs will be unequaled anywhere, although in the early days of filling this sport will be somewhat hampered because of limited access, floating driftwood and other surface obstacles. However, certain sections of both lakes will provide excellent water skiing from the very beginning.

FISHING TO BE GOOD

And how will the fishing be? At first, possible the only catch on Lake Powell will be small channel catfish native to the Colorado River. However, the Utah fish and game Department has already planted quantities of kokanee salmon fingerlings and beginning in May it will be in cooperation with the Arizona Fish and Game Department and the U.S. Department of Wildlife in planting five million rainbow trout and two million bass. Similar plans for stocking Flaming Gorge with trout and other fish species are also under way.

Game biologists say the rainbow and kokanee will thrive in the deep, cold underwater canyons of the lake and the bass in the shallower, warmer channels. The rainbows will reach catchable size by next year and the bass in two years.

Tedd Tuttle, supervisor of the boating division of the Utah State Park and Recreation Commission, said all boaters must comply with Utah boating regulations which are generally the same as the federal requirements in force in most states. "Make sure your boat is in good condition," Mr. Tuttle said. "Bring plenty of gas, a tool kit and extra parts for your motor. Bring food, water and other supplies, as facilities on the lakes will be limited in the early days of impoundment."

The boating supervisor also cautioned boaters to be very careful on the reservoirs and to use common sense in their water sports. In some places the lakes will be 500 to 600 feet deep, and swimming for the most part will be hazardous, unless in a designated swimming area. All boats on the reservoirs must be registered under a federally approved numbering system which is in force in 43 of the 50 states. Boats will have a 90-day reciprocal use of the reservoirs, but after that time they must be registered in the State of Utah.

Under federal and state boating regulations each boat must have a Coast-Guard-Approved lifesaving device for each passenger. All children twelve and under must wear proper fitting life jjackets whenever the boat is in operation. This is particularly important on the big reservoirs as access to the shore will be limited where the water is confined in the sheer canyons.

All boats in operation at night must have running lights in compliance with Coast Guard standards. Boats with built-in fuel tanks or with closed, cabintype construction and all inboards must also carry a minimum of two-pound dry chemical fire extinguisher or a 4-pound carbon dioxide (C02) extinguisher.

Also under state regulations, each boat must carry a bail bucket; a paddle or anchor and line; a smoke bomb or orange flag for daytime distress signal; a flare or flashlight for night distress.

Wonderful West Lives In New York

THE WONDERFUL WEST. By Stewart Holbrook. Doubleday, $4.95.

Holbrook, who lives in Oregon, has begun with the Pacific Northwest and then, allotting a chapter to each, discussed each of the remaining eight western states.

He hits the high points of history and geography; names the sites of gold strikes, Indian battles and present - day land developments; tells the stories of a few explorers and outlaws; and names his favorite ghost towns and natural beauties.

The author hasn't intended to write a tour book or an impartial manual on the West. He devotes most space to what particularly interests him. "Driving logs down rivers is the most dramatic scene I know of in modern industry," Holbrook says. And he describes the time he saw a crew float long logs 120 river miles in Idaho.

Holbrook also is fascinated by the Mormon religion. He suggests the Museum of the Latter - day Saints if a visitor has time for only one stop in Salt Lake City.

Your taste may not mirror Holbrook's. But if you're planning a vacation in the West, this could well be the first book you read, to get ideas.

The Unicorn; Very Darkly Through Fog

THE UNICORN. By Iris Murdoch. Viking. $5.

A spooky, grotesque and gothic tale is something you can expect from Miss Murdoch, and in her seventh novel she has outdone herself.

She has written a story about a dark English seacoast and a remote "castle" — actually a Victorian monstrosity — in which is immured a strange Sleeping Beauty named Hannah Crean-Smith. But Hannah is no ethereal, sweet innocent. She is pinned inside her castle, physically and psychologically, by a dark fog of murder and adultery.

We get into the narrative with the arrival of a London teacher, Marian Taylor, who is supposed to be a companion to the mysterious Hannah. The bewildered Marian soon finds that Hannah is surrounded by an odd assortment of neurotic characters, and feels obliged to try to rescue her.

In all this motley crew there is only one man, a rugged native son, who manages to maintain some semblance of rationality during all the storm - swept ditherings that pervade the castle. But neither he nor Marian can cope with the dramatic developments and tragic consequences that propel this macabre tale to its end.

The author has the narrative skill to make these weird events seem plausible. She casts a remarkable spell upon the reader as well as her characters, for she is a teller of odd, strangely enchanting tales.

New Output From Italy Not Appeal

THE AGE OF MALAISE. By Dacia Maraini. Grove Press. $3.95.

For several years now the European novels reaching these shores — or more particularly, the novels from Europe's Latin countries — have been engaged heavily with the theme of boredom.

Usually this theme has been the ennui of the decadent aristocracy or the wealthy middle class. Sexy, yes — with boredom before, during and after.

Miss Maraini, a young Italian, has written a variant of this species. Her people are lower class. But they seem to have their own share of casual sex boredom.

The heroine, Enrica, is a 17-year-old Roman girl with tendencies toward promiscuity. Her mother is dying, her father is a feeble - minded old hulk who builds elaborate, useless birdcages. Poor Enrica's only empioyment during this narrative is when she becomes a "secretary" (errand girl) to an old harridan who is supporting one of these young male narcissists of the type who wear motorcyle pants.

Poor Enrica beds down with, and seems to love, a perennial law student whose chief aim is to marry some girl with money. She also has absent - minded affairs with a wealthy old lawyer, a ratty young classmate, et cetera.

This novel won one of those $10,000 international prizes that leads to publication in 13 countries, including Portugal. The writing style is the current international fashion, which means clipped sentences of the antique, deadpan Hemingway school.

In this country, at least, it may not have much appeal to people who read books, but it may be of interest to bohemian types.

Girls In Scandinavia Are Easy To Approach

By GEORGE BOULTWOOD

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) —It's easy to meet a Scandinavian girl. You just say "hello." If she likes the look of you, she'll say "hello" right back.

Such tactics can be dangerous in the hotblooded Latin areas of Europe. There you might be menaced with a knife by the girl's brother, anxious to protect her honor.

Even in these days there are killings, scarcely counted as crimes locally, because of advances regarded as compromising a dark-eyed Mediterranean beauty.

In the north most girls have almost complete freedom. An occasional parental admonition not to stay out too late is the most many of them will hear in the Scandinavian countries and West Germany.

Things are a little stricter in France, Austria and Switzerland. There, girls are more closely watched and their dates must be approved by their parents. In richer families girls are often kept out of sight in boarding schools until they make a formal debut.

In the south Medieval chaperonage prevails. A Spanish friend told me that although he had been engaged for two years he had never been alone with his fiancee. His mother chose his bride-to-be. Her mother is always in the room when he visits.

While the traditional restrictions hold true in many of the smaller Spanish towns, modern life has produced more freedom in larger cities such as Madrid and Barcelona.

How do Latin lovers ever meet? Mostly they are brought together in their family circles. Matchmaking is still a recognized activity in Greece, Sicily and southern Spain.

There's another way—the paseo. This is the parade of young people through the main street in the cool of evening.

Boys stroll in the opposite direction. At the end of the street the groups turn and repass one another.

The language of the eyes must replace speech, because stopping and speaking is simply not done.

Spanish girls don't always carry decorative fans just to keep themselves cool. The fans can be used for signaling in a traditional flirtation code.

In certain parts of the country if a boy is attracted to a girl and gets one of these discreet come-on signs he then has to display the qualities of a diplomat.

Some how he has to wangle a formal introduction—even if they have known each other by sight since childhood.

Matchmaking on the international level has been undertaken by a British travel agency. It offers girls tours to Garmisch, the German winter resort where the U.S. Army has a big leave center. The agency's advertisements promise there are lots of young Americans there just aching to meet a girl who can speak their language.

A survey showed most British married or engaged couples met first on the dance floor. In Britain 5½ million couples go dancing every week.

Unattached boys and girls go in groups. No introductions are needed before requesting a dance. If the boy wants to prolong the acquaintanceship after a couple of dances he can offer the girl a soft drink.

Brightly decorated coffee bars are also places where informal meetings can take place. Shyness and a preference for company of their own age, keeps most youngsters out of the English pubs. Besides, liquor is expensive and teen-agers don't go for it anyway.

Many northern European girls look for adventure on vacation in Latin countries. In Italy groups of young men, known as pappagalli —parrots—roam resorts on the hunt for susceptible girl tourists.

"English and German girls complain about being pinched and followed by Italian men," an Italian friend told me.

"But they bring it on themselves. It doesn't happen to Italian girls—they threaten to call a policeman and the cavalier vanishes. But these northerners—they just ask for it."

Favorite hangout for the French young is the "boite a disques"—jukebox joint. There they play the pops and twist.

The girls try to look like Brigitte Bardot if they're blondes and Sophia Loren if they're brunettes. An air of boredom is the mode.

Europe's youth is not nearly so motorized as America's, so the young man with a car has a big advantage. The boy with a motor bike that can do 100 m.p.h. is the one who has first choice of the girls in Britain.

An Italian girl slipped her photo and address into a bag of spaghetti she was packing. The spaghetti was exported to the United States and brought a reply from an American who eventually married her.

If all else fails, you can advertise.

By JOHN CALE

The road to the professional concert stage usually leads to New York City. Yet those who walk that path to fame must come from somewhere, since we know that all the excellent vocal and instrumental musicians now making the concert circuits are not natives of the big city.

"Many are called but few are chosen," is a phrase which applies well to the many talented persons who every year come to New York hoping to audition and earn a contract with one of the agencies which books concert tours.

This year, Monroe can claim one of those chosen. Miss Margaret Kalil, soprano, daughter of Mrs. Fred Kalil Sr., will present her Town Hall debut recital in October. This is an extraordinary occasion for the city, indeed, for this area of Louisiana.

We have had several outstanding musicians, but time and circumstances have directed them to other goals. From the best data available, we surmise that Miss Emy Lou Biedenharn is the only other local musician besides Miss Kalil to present a New York debut and go on tour as a concert artist.

SPONSORED BY GUILD

Miss Kalil, known as "Margie" to friends and supporters here, will be sponsored by the Concert Artists Guild for the Town Hall debut. This in itself is an accomplishment, an organization comprised of active concert performers.

This didn't happen overnight like a cinderella story. It took a lot of hard work and a willingness to sing and sing. The trail leads from early recital days with Estelle Sanders' classes right here in Monroe to artist lessons under the late Paul Althouse, formerly a Metropolitan Opera tenor.

Then came a year of study in Milan, Italy.

Upon returning to the United States, Miss Kalil became a pupil of Hans Heinz and did post graduate work in voice at the Juilliard School of Music in New York. She received B. S. and M. A. degrees from Columbia University.

ARTIST IN RESIDENCE

For the past three years, she has held a post of artist in residence at North Texas State University in Denton, Texas, while maintaining extensive concert activity.

The imposing list of appearances includes two score bookings from Carnegie Hall and Leonard Bernstein with the New York Philharmonic to a government-sponsored singing visit to Mexico. In Washington, D.C., critic Paul Hume said of her performance in the Bach "Magnificat" and the Mozart "Requiem:"

"The soloists for the evening included Margaret Kalil, whose soprano was of thrilling beauty."

In fact, critics throughout the country are generally agreed: the girl from Monroe can sing. One of the country's most respected writers in the field of music and dramatics, John Rosenfield of the Dallas Morning News put it this way regarding Margie's singing in Mozart's "Mass in C. Minor" performed with the Dallas Symphony last winter:

PRAISE FROM DALLAS

"If Mozart was, as expected, the hero, the heroine was Miss Kalil, who has a dramatic soprano of unusual compass, commands it throughout, and tosses it about for coloratura or involved ornamentation as if it were a wind instrument."

Such remarks are typical of those written in newspapers from Washington, D.C., to Worcester, Mass., to Grand Rapids, Mich., to Corpus Christie, Texas, not to mention Monroe, La.

The next hurdle will be a pair of concerts at the new Lincoln Center with the New York Philharmonic on July 24 and 28. Then it's on to Town Hall in October for what may prove to be one of the best prepared debut recitals ever given in that auditorium.

Soviet Union Fuel Network Is Delayed

By PRESTON GROVER

MOSCOW (AP)--The Western blockade of "big inch" oil pipe has delayed the Soviet Union's fuel network by at least two years in the opinion of Western observers here.

Some big projects may be delayed even more.

The Soviet Union has made impressive progress in getting gas and oil resources from distant desert places to industrial centers. But the Friendship pipeline that is supposed to carry oil for the lamps of Eastern Europe —and perhaps the West—is making slow progress.

Shortage of 40-inch pipe is the main reason. Making it is not easy. The Russians also are short of compressors to maintain pressure along hundreds of miles of oil and gas pipe.

The biggest blow to Soviet oil-line progress was West Germany's "no" to a Soviet order for 650,000 tons of 40-inch pipe. This is the variety which is supposed to carry oil to Moscow, westward to Prague, to East Germany--and, at some future stage, eastward to Japan and Pacific markets.

THEN CUT IT

The Russians said the Germans contracted to deliver it, then cut it off under NATO pressure. The West German government insisted it was not covered in a trade agreement. The Soviets were boiling furious. This tonnage would produce about 1,600 miles.

The proposed pipeline could supply fuel for Soviet troops on the West German frontier, the Germans said, and that is dangerous for West Germany. To back this up they cited Marshal Vasily Sokolovsky, who was chief of the Soviet military forces in East Germany after the war.

In a book published last year he said:

"Under present conditions, pipelines constantly increase in importance as means of transporting liquid fuel due to their high efficiency and relative invulnerability to atomic weapons. In case of war, pipelines could play a leading role in transporting petroleum and petroleum products to anticipated battle grounds and to the most important industrial areas."

The map of the Soviet Union is full of lines indicating completed oil pipelines, completed gas lines, and completed lines for handling gasoline and finished petroleum products. Still more projects are under construction or planned.

The country has some of the world's largest oil and gas deposits. They open the possibility of flooding world markets with low-cost gasoline and oil, and to providing Communist industry with low-cost fuel.

STEADIER, STRONGER

Drilling Activity In Area On Rise

Drilling activity was widespread last week in the 15 parishes of the Monroe Oil and Gas District and apparently was growing steadier and stronger with the approach of summer and settled weather.

Completions reported during the week to District Manager Duncan S. Cook numbered 13 and were recorded in six parishes — most of them, five, in Catahoula Parish. One was in Ouachita, in the Cheniere Creek Field.

Other finals included three in LaSalle Parish, two in Union (both in the Monroe Field), and one each in Avoyelles and Grant Parishes.

Activity at wells drilling or testing was even more widespread and included 24 in 10 parishes—Caldwell, Catahoula, Concordia, Franklin, Grant, LaSalle, Rapides, Richland, Tensas and Union. Catahoula Parish had seven of the total — four of them testing — Tensas had five, LaSalle four, and Grant two. The rest had single wells.

In new locations staked during the week, there were more numerically, at 29, though they were less scattered, in eight parishes. Nine were in the Monroe Gas Field — seven in Union Parish, and one each in Ouachita and Morehouse Parishes. Most however, 11, were in Catahoula Parish, while Concordia had four, Rapides three, and LaSalle and Grant one each.

The week included one recompletion, in Tensas Parish, the Helena Field, and it was LaGrange Petroleum's S.D. & M.B. Watson No. 1, at 9167 feet in section 23-10-11E.

Fourteen wells were plugged and abandoned, though the total on inactive sites held at 82. Locations numbered 73.

Greene County Find Reported At Wildcat Well

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—A new oil field find in Greene County was near Saturday with production tests underway at a wildcat well.

Triad Oil and Gas Co. set production casing to 9,895 feet in its Franklin No. 2, sec. 4-4n-8w, about two miles north of Sand Hill.

Operators were testing the commercial worth of a sand at 9,798-9,809 feet. The well was drilled to a total depth of 12,292 feet.

In Lincoln County, Mortimer, Dugger & Holmes tested on pump their wildcat, the Rawls No. 1, sec. 11-5n-8e, about two miles north of the Sweetwater Oil Field. The well was reported to be pumping at the rate of 60 barrels of oil per day from a sand in the Tuscaloosa at 10,741-47 feet.

C. A. Lee abandoned his Madison County wildcat, the Hardeman No. 1, sec. 24-9n-1w, about three miles southeast of the Bentonia oil field. The well was drilled to a total depth of 11,005 feet with uncommercial oil shows logged in the Rodessa zones. A drill stem test run at 9,655-74 feet recovered gas cut mud.

In the recently-found Mize Field of Smith County, California Co. No. 1 Meyer, sec. 9-10.n-15w, tested at the rate of 204 barrels of oil per day from a sand at 11,876-90 feet. The venture logged over 200 feet of oil sand in an interval fr0m 10,575 feet to 12,000 feet. Additional sands were to be tested before completion.

Three other wells drilled in the Mise Field. Central Oil Co. was below 11,800 feet in its unit No. 9-9, sec. 9-10n-15w, and California Co. was below 8,600 feet in the board of supervisors No. 1, sec. 16-10n-15w. Triad Oil & Gas Co. was below 12,300 feet in its board of supervisors No. 1, sec. 16-10n-15w.

At Center Ridge also in Smith County, Triad Oil & Gas drilled below 11,800 feet in the Blakney-Westmoreland No. 1, sec. 30-1n-8e, a 13,000 foot try.

In Hinds County, State Exploration Co. drilled below 12,100 feet in its wildcat, the Armstrong No. 1, sec. 36-7n-4w, located near Edwards. Contract depty was 12,900 feet.

Texas Pacific Coal & Oil Co. completed their Wilson No. 15, sec. 19-6n-2w, Adams County, with the well flowing at the rate of 99 barrels of oil per day from perforations at 4,352-55 feet.

In the East Fork Field of Amite County, Larue-Smith production Co.'s No. A-1 Clyde Whittington in sec. 33-3n-5e, on initial production pumped 75 barrels of oil per day from perforations at 11,308-16 feet.

In the Carmichael field of Clarke County, N. W. Berry-Geo. Thurber, Jr. & Son have completed their G. L. Keaton No. A-1, sec. 5-1n-17e, from perforations at 3,723-27 feet, with the well pumping 65 barrels of oil per day on initial test.

Lyons Petroleum, Mateer and Furrh have completed the Nettles No. 1, sec. 19-6n-6e, in the West Lincoln Field on the Franklin County side. Initial production was 91 barrels of oil per day.

Business Briefs

VICE PRESIDENT

The Standard Lumber and Hardware Company has been registered by Masonite Corporation as a Design - Service - Counsel dealer, qualified to help customers in all phases of home modernization.

ATTENDS MEET

John L. Adair of Adair GMC, Inc., 3103 Louisville Ave. in Monroe, met recently in Memphis, Tenn., with a group of GMC Truck dealers to discuss mutual dealer - manufacturer business policies.

Participating dealers were elected earlier by the dealers in GMC Truck & Coach Division's Memphis Zone to represent them in the 1963 Zone Dealer Council session. The factory representative present was Zone Manager L. T. Bowles.

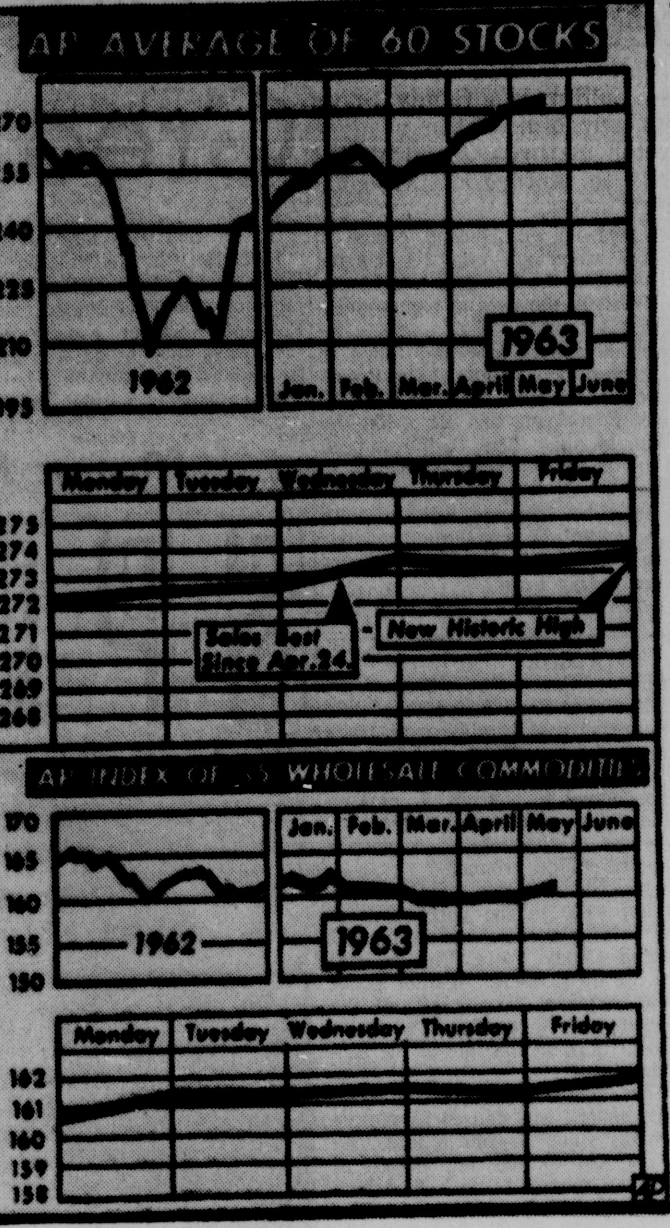
Cotton Futures Back And Fill

NEW YORK (AP)—Cotton futures in the domestic market backed and filled this week on the New York Cotton Exchange, closing the week 80 cents lower to 35 cents higher.

The May delivery went off the board Tuesday at a net gain of $1.40 over the previous week.

Irregular price movement reflected continued uncertainty over new price support legislation. Hearings will be held next week on important House and Senate proposals. There seemed to be little hedging against the cotton purchases announced Monday by the Commodity Credit Corporation under its sales for export program.

Exports for the week are estimated at 76,000 bales against 41,000 the week before and 74,000 the year before. For the year through May 14, exports have aggregated 2,792,000 bales against 3,811,000 at the same time a year ago.



CLIMBING FOR THE 11th consecutive week, The Associated Press average of 60 stocks reached another new historic high when it closed at 273.6 from 272.3 a week earlier. The commodity index advanced for the third week in a row, closing at 161.8 from 160.8 in the preceding period. Food and livestock made sizable gains. (AP Wirephoto)

Mart Churns Higher For 11th Advance

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market churned slightly higher last week as interest rotated from recent blue chip leaders to many of the neglected issues.

It was the 11th straight weekly advance by the Associated Press average of 60 stocks, which gained 1.3 at 273.6, the latest in its new series of historic highs.

Other popular market barometers went to new highs for 1963 but were still short of their 1961 peaks.

Astronaut Gordon Cooper's 22 orbits failed to inspire the aerospace issues. They moved irregularly.

Sugars, spurred by leaping prices for sugar in the commodity market, and rails, helped by some favorable news, afforded the list what group leadership there was.

The market however, continued the switch in interest that developed late last week. Previously, the 1963 market advance has been led by high quality stocks of proven worth. The big news about the market now is that the cheaper, less-seasoned issues are again getting a whirl. This usually reflects greater participation by the public. As yet, however, this clue to increased public participation has not been borne out by daily statistics on odd lots.

Odd lots are stock transactions of less than the regular round lot of 100 shares, and is an index of the trading activity by the "little fellow"—the public, rather than the big institutional investors.

BY EXECUTIVES

Oil Forecasts Revised Upward

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Oil executives are making upward revisions in earlier forecasts of 1963 domestic demand for petroleum.

But demand for crude and products the first three months of 1963 jumped some 4.2 per cent above the same 1962 period.

This sharp upward trend is not expected to continue throughout the year but revised estimates for 1963 now are anticipating a gain of from 2½ to 3 per cent.

L. F. McCollum, president of the Continental Oil Co. and board chairman of the American Petroleum Institute (API), was among those who made a late December forecast of 1½ to 2 per cent.

With a bit of caution, McCollum boosted his estimate last week to 2½ per cent.

He told Continental's annual stockholders meeting that strong demand for light heating oils and gasoline estimated about 15 million barrels of excess inventories despite record refinery operations the first three months of the year.

"However, surplus distillate (light heating) stocks have accumulated at a rapid rate in recent weeks," he said.

"In the final analysis, the industry's financial success in its domestic operations will continue to hinge on rational, economic practices in marketing and the successful management of excess crude producing and refining capacity."

On the same day McCollum was speaking at Wilmington, Del., the chief executive officer of another major firm told a group of oilmen at Roswell, N.M., 1963 may be a better than average year with a demand gain of just under 3 per cent.

Morgan J. Davis, board chairman of the Humble Oil & Refining Co., the domestic operator for Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey), said industry inventories of both crude and products are in the best shape they have been in for many years.

"This product situation could continue for the balance of 1963, depending, of course, on the level of refinery runs," he said.

Davis said the domestic industry has been slowly recovering from its own private recession, adding, "Our difficulties began in late 1957, and since that time we have been trying to adjust our operations to fit more closely with the changes that have occurred in both the demand and supply aspects of our business."

Davis and McCollum said extremely cold weather was among the factors causing the sharp increase in demand the first quarter.

McCollum also said the industry benefitted from a continuing rise in business activity and consumer spending.

Davis said a pickup in industrial output and new car sales of 6.9 million vehicles contributed to last year's petroleum demand growth of 4.3 per cent, the best growth rate the industry has experienced since 1955.

He said there is indication of another near-record year for automobile production in 1963.

McCollum said the strong level of demand and improving inventory situation saw wholesale product prices rise the first quarter above the low levels of 1962.

"Early in the year, widespread price wars depressed slightly the nationwide service station price for regular grade gasoline but this has strengthened considerably in recent weeks as a number of companies once again have withdrawn all temporary dealer allowances," he said.

PROSPERITY SYMBOL

63's 3-Millionth Car Is Produced

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business NEWS Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—A gleaming symbol of prosperity rolled off a Detroit assembly line this past week. It was the 3 millionth car built this year.

The booming automobile industry is leading much of the economy upward.

The heavy demand for cars has spilled benefits into the steel industry and many other industries. And it has spurred the stock market in an approach toward new all-time highs.

Output this week slipped to an estimated total of 162,000 cars, compared with 170,620 last week, the highest of the year. A labor dispute at Ford's Lima, Ohio, plant was partly responsible for the decline.

Sales set a record in the first 10 days of May, totaling 214,900, a two per cent gain over the 211,400 delivered in the like period a year ago.

The inventory situation made the outlook for continued high production good. At the end of April there were 950,000 cars in dealers' hands, a 38-day supply.

Expressions of optimism about the outlook for the economy came from two important meetings, the National Industrial Conference Board in New York and the Financial Analysts Federation in Chicago.

Industrialists heard Conference Board speakers report that the future looks good for appliances, most consumer goods, and the machine-tool industry. However, prospects for construction were not so good, they said.

William W. Tongue, economist for Jewel Tea Co., said he expects general consumer spending to keep on growing, particularly if there is a reduction of federal income taxes.

The nation is operating close to effective capacity, and expansion that would produce jobs may be at hand, reported Walter K. Bailey, chairman of Warner & Swasay Co. of Ceveland.

Analysts agreed that current business conditions and the outlook are favorable. Among their conclusions:

Finished steel consumption will exceed last year's total, increasing to between 75 and 76 million tons.

Higher sales of industrial equipment and expansion of capital spending are indicated.

New construction looks promising.

Industrial production, a key barometer, attained a new peak in April for the second consecutive month, the Federal Reserve Board reported.

Based on production of mines, mills and factories, the index climbed to 122.4 per cent of the 1957-59 average from 120.6 in March.

The Labor Department reported that in April nonfarm employment rose 800,000 from March to a record 55.9 million, up 1 million from a year earlier. The gain was described as "a substantially better-than-seasonal job expansion."

Steel production last week made a comeback from the slight decline of the previous week. Output totaled 2,543,000 tons and put industry operation at about 82 per cent of capacity.

The United Steelworkers Union still hadn't decided whether to reopen its contract for wage negotiations. Union President David J. McDonald described the situation as being up in the air. The union could strike 90 days after a reopening. The producers and the union were reported broadening preliminary talks in an effort to reach agreement without a contract reopener.

Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz expressed the opinion that a railroad strike threatened for June would be averted. The railroads and the unions are in a dispute over work rules changes by which the lines seek to eliminate jobs they consider unnecessary. A President's emergency board turned the dispute back to the unions and employers and directed them to settle it through collective bargaining.

Briefly around the business scene: The F. W. Woolworth Co. plans to open 60 new variety stores this year. . . . Soaring sugar prices have caused increases in candy, soft drink, ice cream and cake prices . . . A four per cent increase in sales was achieved by retail food stores in the first three months of this year.

Grain Futures Market Steady In Past Week

CHICAGO (AP)—Grain futures prices scarcely deviated from a general downward trend last week on the Board of Trade and nearly all contracts finished weak.

The only exceptions were the expiring contracts of wheat, corn and oats which posted small gains because of short covering for purposes of balancing commitments.

Trade in May wheat was active The short interest in that contract was large and apparently the longs had decided to accept delivery. Not a single bushel had been tendered in the pit. Early in the week, offerings were rather liberal and the price skidded more than four cents at times. But toward the end of the week, the shorts had begun to scramble for cover and they bid the price up about seven cents in the final three days. But the net change for the period was only a small fraction of a cent.

Major consideration over-all, though, apparently was the outcome of the farmer referendum next Tuesday on the 1964 wheat control program. Brokers said that, with or without the program there is a possibility that wheat could become somewhat more competitive as a feed grain. That would be most likely, they explained, if the 1964 yield should be a large one.

Rainfall during the week added to the bearish sentiment in soybeans. Reports indicated that in much of the major producing area moisture conditions had improved greatly.

At the end of the week, wheat was ½ cent a bushel higher to 4¼ lower, May $2.09⅛-½; corn ¼ higher to 1¼ lower, May $1.21-20⅞; oats ⅜ higher to ¾ lower, May 70⅛ cents; rye 2⅛-3¾ lower, May $1.24⅞-⅝; soybeans 4⅜-5⅜ lower, May $2.59-58⅞.

GROUND BREAKING

CHICAGO (UPI)—Baxter Laboratories, Inc., said Friday that ground will be broken for a new $2 million plant in Mountain Home, Ark. The plant, located about 100 miles north of Little Rock, will be the firm's largest facility for the manufacture of medical products. Completion of the construction is planned for next February. The plant will employ about 150 persons initially, a spokesman said.

Coal Slurry No Danger To Natural Gas

By HARRY WILSON SHARPE
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The coal slurry pipeline as a potentially tough competitor of fuel oil and natural gas has faded from the scene, perhaps for years.

Slurry is pulverized coal mixed with water. It is pumped through pipelines to utility boilers much like oil or gas.

This method of transportation is not dead but it was dealt a severe jolt last week when eastern coal-hauling railroads and Pittsburgh Consolidation Coal Co. made a reduced freight rate deal that closes down the only slurry line in existence and casts a pall over plans for others.

The 5-year-old line runs 108 miles from Consolidation's diggings at Cadiz in southeastern Ohio to boilers of the Cleveland Electric Illuminating Co. It cost consolidation from $2.47 to $2.65 a ton to pump slurry through it —77 cents a ton more than the deal worked out with three railroads.

Until this contract was signed, the line had been so successful in cutting Consolidation's freight costs that the big coal company and gas-hauling Texas Eastern Transmission Corp., Shreveport, La., had joined together on plans to build a $100 million slurry line from West Virginia to New York. They were talking about a 500-mile line from Utah to Southern California.

But the companies and the coal industry in general apparently had reckoned without the pitfalls ahead.

The biggest was dug by the railroads which depend upon coal for one-fourth of their freight revenue. They stood to lose millions if slurry lines took over. They not only cut freight rates twice to make slurry transport unprofitable but mustered powerful lobbies in state legislatures and Congress to block right-of-eminent-domain bills.

West Virginia, which depends heavily upon coal for its livlihood, enacted a bill giving slurry lines the right to file condemnation suits. But the railroads proved too strong in Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania, New York and New Jersey.

When this impasse developed, President Kennedy, who favors the slurry lines, had a bill introduced in the last Congress to grant right of domain. He sent Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall before the Senate Commerce Committee to defend it but it got no farther than hearings and died when Congress adjourned.

No senator has thus far revived the measure.

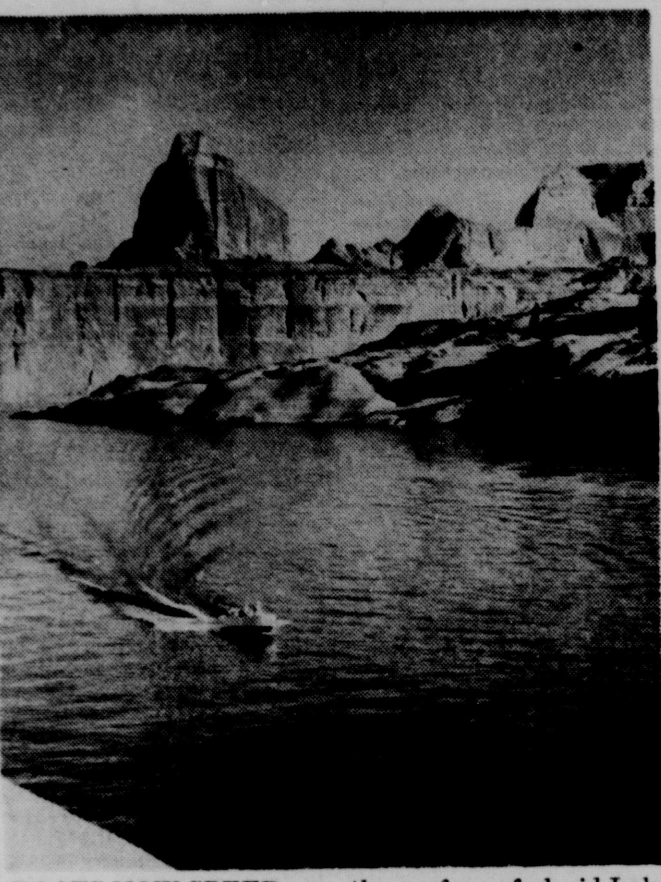
NEW PARADISE

Man-Made Lakes Change Utah's Deep Canyons



BOATS NOW SPEED over the surface of placid Lake Powell at Crossing of the Fathers, where two Catholic priests crossed the Colorado River in 1776.

Two gigantic, man - made lakes are rising in the forbidding, wilderness canyons of Utah, creating new boaters', swimmers' and fishermen's paradises for outdoor - minded Americans.

Following closure of the diversion tunnels of Flaming Gorge Dam in northeastern Utah last fall and Glen Canyon Dam just below the Utah - Arizona border this spring, water from the Green and Colorado Rivers has begun backing up into Utah's picturesque canyons, forming Lake Powell and Flaming Gorge Reservoir, two of the largest man - made bodies of water in western U.S.A.

Flaming Gorge Dam is already completed and power from its generators is scheduled to "go on the line" sometimes this summer. At Glen Canyon, workmen continue to place concrete on the huge, 700 - foot high giant. They expect to "top - out" the dam by mid - summer. The first power from its generators will be on the line by mid - 1964.

Both lakes are located in rugged wilderness, offering high adventure and pleasurable water sport to boaters who want to explore the many side canyons and inlets now made accessible by the rising water.

Before the end of the summer, Lake Powell will have backed up 155 miles into the rugged, little-explored, red - rock country of southern Utah . . . from the government town of Page, Arizona, to the little settlement at Hite, Utah. Eventually the lake will extend 186 miles up the Colorado River to the treacherous rapids of Cataract Canyon. The lake will fill an area once classified as the least - known, most isolated and primitively beautiful regions in America.

SWALLOWED UP

Within days of the closure of the gates at Glen Canyon, water had backed up to cover the "Crossing of the Fathers," swallowing up forever the historic site where two Catholic priests . . . the first white men on Utah soil . . . crossed the Colorado River in 1776 on their way to Santa Fe.

The lake had also moved to the mouth of the Escalante River, named in honor of one of the leading priests, and had begun moving up this tributary, as well as up the San Juan River. The lake has also swallowed up the mouth of Kane Creek, where the baptism scenes in the motion picture "The Greatest Story Ever Told" were recently filmed.

Water has also covered the camping shelf of Aztec Creek, present entrance to Rainbow Bridge Creeks to pass beneath the massive arch of Rainbow Bridge, the largest natural bridge in the world. Soon America's boaters will be able to take their craft within easy walking distance of the famous bridge, and at high water mark will be able to walk on a floating walkway beneath the bridge itself.

Water from the lake, however, will not touch the abutments of the huge natural wonder, and according to the U. S. Geological Survey it will not weaken or impair the bridge foundations in anyway.

Lake Powell is named in honor of John Wesley Powell, government explorer and survey who created the course of the Colorado River in 1869 and 1871-72, providing the first accurate and comprehensive descriptions of the canyons in the future lake bed. It was Powell who named Glen Canyon after its picturesque and shaded glens and its quiet, placid nature, in contrast to the violence of Cataract Canyon farther upstream.

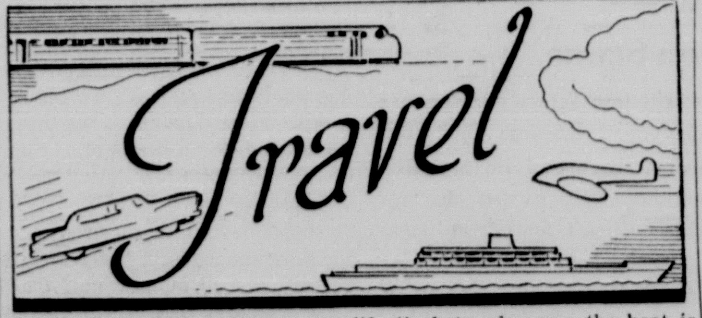
DAMS SIMILAR

Lake Powell will be much different from its downstream sister, Lake Mead, even though the design of Hoover and Glen Canyon Dams are somewhat similar. Lake Mead, containing 31,000,000 acre - feet of water, fills a Y-shaped basin of dark - colored rock, with comparatively gentle slopes. Lake Powell, on the other hand, ultimately containing 28,000,000 acre feet of water, backs up into southern Utah's picturesque "Canyon Country," into a land of red rock much of which has been unexplored by modern man.

When filled, the lake will have 1,800 miles of shoreline, winding into a myriad of canyons on the Colorado, Escalante, San Juan and Dirty Devil Rivers, with innumerable fingers stretching up smaller tributary streams and draws, some of which had been uncharted before construction of the dam.

Flaming Gorge Reservoir will back up some 90 miles, filling evergreen-studded Red Canyon, inundating the small town of Linwood and extending nearly to the town of Green River, Wyoming.

Water skiing on the two new reservoirs will be unequaled anywhere, although in the early days of filling this sport will be somewhat hampered because of limited access, floating driftwood and other surface obstacles. However, certain sections of both lakes will provide excellent water skiing from the very beginning.



FISHING TO BE GOOD

And how will the fishing be? At first, possible the only catch on Lake Powell will be small channel catfish native to the Colorado River. However, the Utah fish and game Department has already planted quantities of kokanee salmon fingerlings and beginning in May it will be in cooperation with the Arizona Fish and Game Department and the U.S. Department of Wildlife in planting five million rainbow trout and two million bass. Similar plans for stocking Flaming Gorge with trout and other fish species are also under way.

Game biologists say the rainbow and kokanee will thrive in the deep, cold underwater canyons of the lake and the bass in the shallower, warmer channels. The rainbows will reach catchable size by next year and the bass in two years.

Tedd Tuttle, supervisor of the boating division of the Utah State Park and Recreation Commission, said all boaters must comply with Utah boating regulations which are generally the same as the federal requirements in force in most states. "Make sure your boat is in good condition," Mr. Tuttle said. "Bring plenty of gas, a tool kit and extra parts for your motor. Bring food, water and other supplies, as facilities on the lakes will be limited in the early days of impoundment."

The boating supervisor also cautioned boaters to be very careful on the reservoirs and to use common sense in their water sports. In some places the lakes will be 500 to 600 feet deep, and swimming for the most part will be hazardous, unless in a designated swimming area. All boats on the reservoirs must be registered under a federally approved numbering system which is in force in 43 of the 50 states. Boats will have a 90-day reciprocal use of the reservoirs, but after that time they must be registered in the State of Utah.

Under federal and state boating regulations each boat must have a Coast-Guard-Approved lifesaving device for each passenger. All children twelve and under must wear proper fitting life jjackets whenever the boat is in operation. This is particularly important on the big reservoirs as access to the shore will be limited where the water is confined in the sheer canyons.

All boats in operation at night must have running lights in compliance with Coast Guard standards. Boats with built-in fuel tanks or with closed, cabintype construction and all inboards must also carry a minimum of two-pound dry chemical fire extinguisher or a 4-pound carbon dioxide (C02) extinguisher.

Also under state regulations, each boat must carry a bail bucket; a paddle or anchor and line; a smoke bomb or orange flag for daytime distress signal; a flare or flashlight for night distress.

Wonderful West Lives In New York

THE WONDERFUL WEST. By Stewart Holbrook. Doubleday, $4.95.

Holbrook, who lives in Oregon, has begun with the Pacific Northwest and then, allotting a chapter to each, discussed each of the remaining eight western states.

He hits the high points of history and geography; names the sites of gold strikes, Indian battles and present - day land developments; tells the stories of a few explorers and outlaws; and names his favorite ghost towns and natural beauties.

The author hasn't intended to write a tour book or an impartial manual on the West. He devotes most space to what particularly interests him. "Driving logs down rivers is the most dramatic scene I know of in modern industry," Holbrook says. And he describes the time he saw a crew float long logs 120 river miles in Idaho.

Holbrook also is fascinated by the Mormon religion. He suggests the Museum of the Latter - day Saints if a visitor has time for only one stop in Salt Lake City.

Your taste may not mirror Holbrook's. But if you're planning a vacation in the West, this could well be the first book you read, to get ideas.

The Unicorn; Very Darkly Through Fog

THE UNICORN. By Iris Murdoch. Viking. $5.

A spooky, grotesque and gothic tale is something you can expect from Miss Murdoch, and in her seventh novel she has outdone herself.

She has written a story about a dark English seacoast and a remote "castle" — actually a Victorian monstrosity — in which is immured a strange Sleeping Beauty named Hannah Crean-Smith. But Hannah is no ethereal, sweet innocent. She is pinned inside her castle, physically and psychologically, by a dark fog of murder and adultery.

We get into the narrative with the arrival of a London teacher, Marian Taylor, who is supposed to be a companion to the mysterious Hannah. The bewildered Marian soon finds that Hannah is surrounded by an odd assortment of neurotic characters, and feels obliged to try to rescue her.

In all this motley crew there is only one man, a rugged native son, who manages to maintain some semblance of rationality during all the storm - swept ditherings that pervade the castle. But neither he nor Marian can cope with the dramatic developments and tragic consequences that propel this macabre tale to its end.

The author has the narrative skill to make these weird events seem plausible. She casts a remarkable spell upon the reader as well as her characters, for she is a teller of odd, strangely enchanting tales.

New Output From Italy Not Appeal

THE AGE OF MALAISE. By Dacia Maraini. Grove Press. $3.95.

For several years now the European novels reaching these shores — or more particularly, the novels from Europe's Latin countries — have been engaged heavily with the theme of boredom.

Usually this theme has been the ennui of the decadent aristocracy or the wealthy middle class. Sexy, yes — with boredom before, during and after.

Miss Maraini, a young Italian, has written a variant of this species. Her people are lower class. But they seem to have their own share of casual sex boredom.

The heroine, Enrica, is a 17-year-old Roman girl with tendencies toward promiscuity. Her mother is dying, her father is a feeble - minded old hulk who builds elaborate, useless birdcages. Poor Enrica's only empioyment during this narrative is when she becomes a "secretary" (errand girl) to an old harridan who is supporting one of these young male narcissists of the type who wear motorcyle pants.

Poor Enrica beds down with, and seems to love, a perennial law student whose chief aim is to marry some girl with money. She also has absent - minded affairs with a wealthy old lawyer, a ratty young classmate, et cetera.

This novel won one of those $10,000 international prizes that leads to publication in 13 countries, including Portugal. The writing style is the current international fashion, which means clipped sentences of the antique, deadpan Hemingway school.

In this country, at least, it may not have much appeal to people who read books, but it may be of interest to bohemian types.

Girls In Scandinavia Are Easy To Approach

By GEORGE BOULTWOOD

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP)—It's easy to meet a Scandinavian girl. You just say "hello." If she likes the look of you, she'll say "hello" right back.

Such tactics can be dangerous in the hotblooded Latin areas of Europe. There you might be menaced with a knife by the girl's brother, anxious to protect her honor.

Even in these days there are killings, scarcely counted as crimes locally, because of advances regarded as compromising a dark-eyed Mediterranean beauty.

In the north most girls have almost complete freedom. An occasional parental admonition not to stay out too late is the most many of them will hear in the Scandinavian countries and West Germany.

Things are a little stricter in France, Austria and Switzerland. There, girls are more closely watched and their dates must be approved by their parents. In richer families girls are often kept out of sight in boarding schools until they make a formal debut.

In the south Medieval chaperonage prevails. A Spanish friend told me that although he had been engaged for two years he had never been alone with his fiancee. His mother chose his bride-to-be. Her mother is always in the room when he visits.

While the traditional restrictions hold true in many of the smaller Spanish towns, modern life has produced more freedom in larger cities such as Madrid and Barcelona.

How do Latin lovers ever meet? Mostly they are brought together in their family circles. Matchmaking is still a recognized activity in Greece, Sicily and southern Spain.

There's another way—the paseo. This is the parade of young people through the main street in the cool of evening.

Boys stroll in the opposite direction. At the end of the street the groups turn and repass one another.

The language of the eyes must replace speech, because stopping and speaking is simply not done.

Spanish girls don't always carry decorative fans just to keep themselves cool. The fans can be used for signaling in a traditional flirtation code.

In certain parts of the country if a boy is attracted to a girl and gets one of these discreet come-on signs he then has to display the qualities of a diplomat.

Some how he has to wangle a formal introduction—even if they have known each other by sight since childhood.

Matchmaking on the international level has been undertaken by a British travel agency. It offers girls tours to Garmisch, the German winter resort where the U.S. Army has a big leave center. The agency's advertisements promise there are lots of young Americans there just aching to meet a girl who can speak their language.

A survey showed most British married or engaged couples met first on the dance floor. In Britain 5½ million couples go dancing every week.

Unattached boys and girls go in groups. No introductions are needed before requesting a dance. If the boy wants to prolong the acquaintanceship after a couple of dances he can offer the girl a soft drink.

Brightly decorated coffee bars are also places where informal meetings can take place. Shyness and a preference for company of their own age, keeps most youngsters out of the English pubs. Besides, liquor is expensive and teen-agers don't go for it anyway.

Many northern European girls look for adventure on vacation in Latin countries. In Italy groups of young men, known as pappagalli—parrots—roam resorts on the hunt for susceptible girl tourists.

"English and German girls complain about being pinched and followed by Italian men," an Italian friend told me.

"But they bring it on themselves. It doesn't happen to Italian girls—they threaten to call a policeman and the cavalier vanishes. But these northerners—they just ask for it."

Favorite hangout for the French young is the "boite a disques"—jukebox joint. There they play the pops and twist.

The girls try to look like Brigitte Bardot if they're blondes and Sophia Loren if they're brunettes. An air of boredom is the mode.

Europe's youth is not nearly so motorized as America's, so the young man with a car has a big advantage. The boy with a motor bike that can do 100 m.p.h. is the one who has first choice of the girls in Britain.

An Italian girl slipped her photo and address into a bag of spaghetti she was packing. The spaghetti was exported to the United States and brought a reply from an American who eventually married her.

If all else fails, you can advertise.

By JOHN CALE

The road to the professional concert stage usually leads to New York City. Yet those who walk that path to fame must come from somewhere, since we know that all the excellent vocal and instrumental musicians now making the concert circuits are not natives of the big city.

"Many are called but few are chosen," is a phrase which applies well to the many talented persons who every year come to New York hoping to audition and earn a contract with one of the agencies which books concert tours.

This year, Monroe can claim one of those chosen. Miss Margaret Kalil, soprano, daughter of Mrs. Fred Kalil Sr., will present her Town Hall debut recital in October. This is an extraordinary occasion for the city, indeed, for this area of Louisiana.

We have had several outstanding musicians, but time and circumstances have directed them to other goals. From the best data available, we surmise that Miss Emy Lou Biedenharn is the only other local musician besides Miss Kalil to present a New York debut and go on tour as a concert artist.

SPONSORED BY GUILD

Miss Kalil, known as "Margie" to friends and supporters here, will be sponsored by the Concert Artists Guild for the Town Hall debut. This in itself is an accomplishment, an organization comprised of active concert performers.

This didn't happen overnight like a cinderella story. It took a lot of hard work and a willingness to sing and sing. The trail leads from early recital days with Estelle Sanders' classes right here in Monroe to artist lessons under the late Paul Althouse, formerly a Metropolitan Opera tenor.

Then came a year of study in Milan, Italy.

Upon returning to the United States, Margie became a pupil of Hans Heinz and did post graduate work in voice at the Jiulliard School of Music in New York. She received B. S. and M. A. degrees from Columbia University.

ARTIST IN RESIDENCE

For the past three years, she has held a post of artist in residence at North Texas State University in Denton, Texas, while maintaining extensive concert activity.

The imposing list of appearances includes two score bookings from Carnegie Hall and Leonard Bernstein with the New York Philharmonic to a government-sponsored singing visit to Mexico. In Washington, D.C., critic Paul Hume said of her performance in the Bach "Magnificat" and the Mozart "Requiem:"

"The soloists for the evening included Margaret Kalil, whose soprano was of thrilling beauty."

In fact, critics throughout the country are generally agreed: the girl from Monroe can sing. One of the country's most respected writers in the field of music and dramatics, John Rosenfield of the Dallas Morning News put it this way regarding Margie's singing in Mozart's "Mass in C. Minor" performed with the Dallas Symphony last winter:

PRAISE FROM DALLAS

"If Mozart was, as expected, the hero, the heroine was Miss Kalil, who has a dramatic soprano of unusual compass, commands it throughout, and tosses it about for coloratura or involved ornamentation as if it were a wind instrument."

Such remarks are typical of those written in newspapers from Washington, D.C., to Worcester, Mass., to Grand Rapids, Mich., to Corpus Christie, Texas, not to mention Monroe, La.

The next hurdle will be a pair of concerts at the new Lincoln Center with the New York Philharmonic on July 24 and 28. Then it's on to Town Hall in October for what may prove to be one of the best prepared debut recitals ever given in that auditorium.

Soviet Union Fuel Network Is Delayed

By PRESTON GROVER

MOSCOW (AP)—The Western blockade of "big inch" oil pipe has delayed the Soviet Union's fuel network by at least two years in the opinion of Western observers here.

Some big projects may be delayed even more.

The Soviet Union has made impressive progress in getting gas and oil resources from distant desert places to industrial centers. But the Friendship pipeline that is supposed to carry oil for the lamps of Eastern Europe—and perhaps the West—is making slow progress.

Shortage of 40-inch pipe is the main reason. Making it is not easy. The Russians also are short of compressors to maintain pressure along hundreds of miles of oil and gas pipe.

The biggest blow to Soviet oilline progress was West Germany's "no" to a Soviet order for 650,000 tons of 40-inch pipe. This is the variety which is supposed to carry oil to Moscow, westward to Prague, to East Germany—and, at some future stage, eastward to Japan and Pacific markets.

THEN CUT IT

The Russians said the Germans contracted to deliver it, then cut it off under NATO pressure. The West German government insisted it was not covered in a trade agreement. The Soviets were boiling furious. This tonnage would produce about 1,600 miles.

The proposed pipeline could supply fuel for Soviet troops on the West German frontier, the Germans said, and that is dangerous for West Germany. To back this up they cited Marshal Vasily Sokolovsky, who was chief of the Soviet military forces in East Germany after the war.

In a book published last year he said:

"Under present conditions, pipelines constantly increase in importance as means of transporting liquid fuel due to their high efficiency and relative invulnerability to atomic weapons. In case of war, pipelines could play a leading role in transporting petroleum and petroleum products to anticipated battle grounds and to the most important industrial areas."

The map of the Soviet Union is full of lines indicating completed oil pipelines, completed gas lines, and completed lines for handling gasoline and finished petroleum products. Still more projects are under construction or planned.

The country has some of the world's largest oil and gas deposits. They open the possibility of flooding world markets with low-cost gasoline and oil, and to providing Communist industry with low-cost fuel.

STEADIER, STRONGER

Drilling Activity In Area On Rise

Drilling activity was widespread last week in the 15 parishes of the Monroe Oil and Gas District and apparently was growing steadier and stronger with the approach of summer and settled weather.

Completions reported during the week to District Manager Duncan S. Cook numbered 13 and were recorded in six parishes — most of them, five, in Catahoula Parish. One was in Ouachita, in the Cheniere Creek Field.

Other finals included three in LaSalle Parish, two in Union (both in the Monroe Field), and one each in Avoyelles and Grant Parishes.

Activity at wells drilling or testing was even more widespread and included 24 in 10 parishes—Caldwell, Catahoula, Concordia, Franklin, Grant, LaSalle, Rapides, Richland, Tensas and Union. Catahoula Parish had seven of the total — four of them testing — Tensas had five, LaSalle four, and Grant two. The rest had single wells.

In new locations staked during the week, there were more numerically, at 29, though they were less scattered, in eight parishes. Nine were in the Monroe Gas Field — seven in Union Parish, and one each in Ouachita and Morehouse Parishes. Most however, 11, were in Catahoula Parish, while Concordia had four, Rapides three, and LaSalle and Grant one each.

The week included one recompletion, in Tensas Parish, the Helena Field, and it was LaGrange Petroleum's S.D. & M.B. Watson No. 1, at 9167 feet in section 23-10-11E.

Fourteen wells were plugged and abandoned, though the total on inactive sites held at 82. Locations numbered 73.

Here is Cook's breakdown on the week:

COMPLETIONS

AVOYELLES PARISH, Wildcat Field—Pan American Petr. Corp.'s Sam E. Broadhead no. 6, located in sec. 37-4-3E, depth 6510 ft.

Locust Ridge Field — Colorado Oil and Gas Co.'s Stein et al Ut 2, located in sec. 36-1-11E, drilling 8945 ft.

UNION PARISH, Monroe Gas Field — Landa Oil Co.'s Humble Sinclair no. 2, located in sec. 23-21-2E, drilling 2100 ft.

Greene County Find Reported At Wildcat Well

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—A new oil field find in Greene County was near Saturday with producetion tests underway at a wildcat well.

Triad Oil and Gas Co. set production casing to 9,895 feet in its Franklin No. 2, sec. 4-4n-8w, about two miles north of Sand Hill.

Operators were testing the commercial worth of a sand at 9,798-9,809 feet. The well was drilled to a total depth of 12,292 feet.

In Lincoln County, Mortimer, Dugger & Holmes tested on pump their wildcat, the Rawls No. 1, sec. 11-5n-8e, about two miles north of the Sweetwater Oil Field. The well was reported to be pumping at the rate of 60 barrels of oil per day from a sand in the Tuscaloosa at 10,741-47 feet.

C. A. Lee abandoned his Madison County wildcat, the Hardeman No. 1, sec. 24-9n-1w, about three miles southeast of the Bentonia oil field. The well was drilled to a total depth of 11,005 feet with uncommercial oil shows logged in the Rodessa zones. A drill stem test run at 9,655-74 feet recovered gas cut mud.

In the recently-found Mize Field of Smith County, California Co. No. 1 Meyer, sec. 9-10.n-15w, tested at the rate of 204 barrels of oil per day from a sand at 11,876-90 feet. The venture logged over 200 feet of oil sand in an interval fr0m 10,575 feet to 12,000 feet. Additional sands were to be tested before completion.

Three other wells drilled in the Mise Field. Central Oil Co. was below 11,800 feet in its unit No. 9-9, sec. 9-10n-15w, and California Co. was below 8,600 feet in the board of supervisors No. 1, sec. 16-10n-15w. Triad Oil & Gas Co. was below 12,300 feet in its board of supervisors No. 1, sec. 16-10n-15w.

At Center Ridge also in Smith County, Triad Oil & Gas drilled below 11,800 feet in the Blakney-Westmoreland No. 1, sec. 30-1n-8e, a 13,000 foot try.

In Hinds County, State Exploration Co. drilled below 12,100 feet in its wildcat, the Armstrong No. 1, sec. 36-7n-4w, located near Edwards. Contract depty was 12,900 feet.

Texas Pacific Coal & Oil Co. completed their Wilson No. 15, sec. 19-6n-2w, Adams County, with the well flowing at the rate of 99 barrels of oil per day from perforations at 4,352-55 feet.

In the East Fork Field of Amite County, Larue-Smith production Co.'s No. A-1 Clyde Whittington in sec. 33-3n-5e, on initial production pumped 75 barrels of oil per day from perforations at 11,308-16 feet.

In the Carmichael field of Clarke County, N. W. Berry-Geo. Thurber, Jr. & Son have completed their G. L. Keaton No. A-1, sec. 5-1n-17e, from perforations at 3,723-27 feet, with the well pumping 65 barrels of oil per day on initial test.

Lyons Petroleum, Mateer and Furrh have completed the Nettles No. 1, sec. 19-6n-6e, in the West Lincoln Field on the Franklin County side. Initial production was 91 barrels of oil per day.

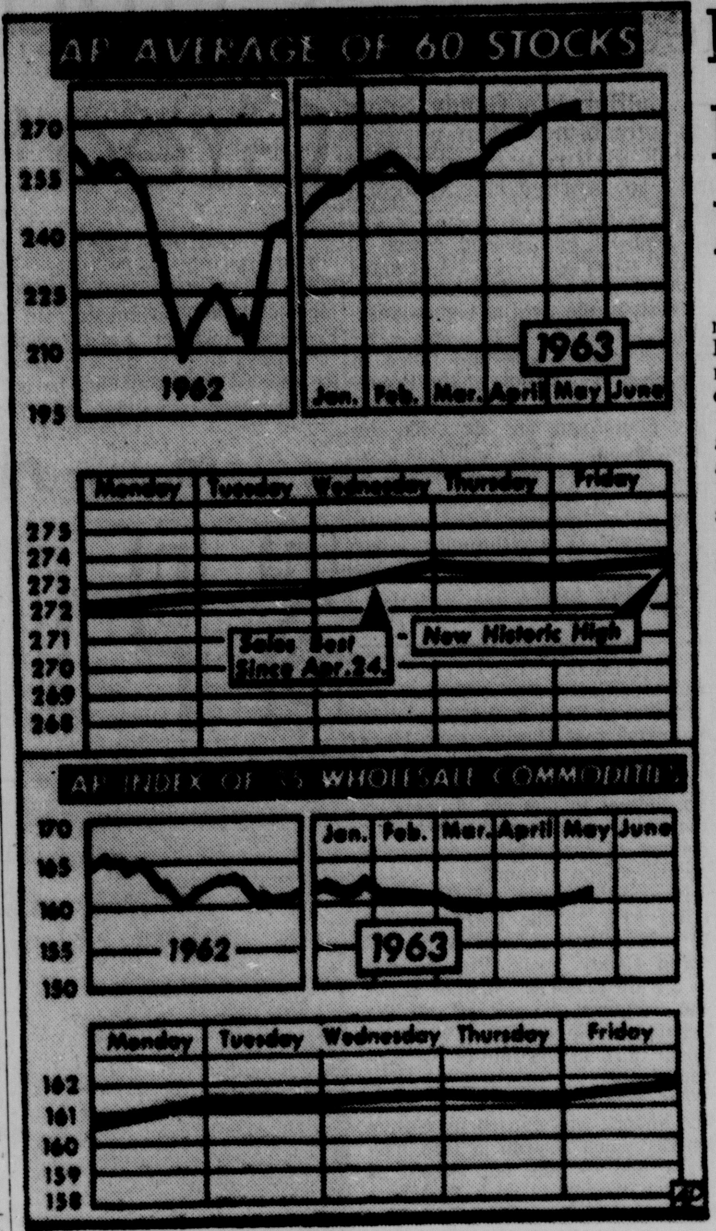
Cotton Futures Back And Fill

NEW YORK (AP)—Cotton futures in the domestic market backed and filled this week on the New York Cotton Exchange, closing the week 80 cents lower to 35 cents higher.

The May delivery went off the board Tuesday at a net gain of $1.40 over the previous week.

Irregular price movement reflected continued uncertainty over new price support legislation. Hearings will be held next week on important House and Senate proposals. There seemed to be little hedging against the cotton purchases announced Monday by the Commodity Credit Corporation under its sales for export program.

Exports for the week are estimated at 76,000 bales against 41,000 the week before and 74,000 the year before. For the year through May 14, exports have aggregated 2,792,000 bales against 3,811,000 at the same time a year ago.



CLIMBING FOR THE 11th consecutive week, The Associated Press average of 60 stocks reached another new historic high when it closed at 273.6 from 272.3 a week earlier. The commodity index advanced for the third week in a row, closing at 161.8 from 160.8 in the preceding period. Food and livestock made sizable gains. (AP Wirephoto)

Oil Forecasts Revised Upward

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Oil executives are making upward revisions in earlier forecasts of 1963 domestic demand for petroleum.

But demand for crude and products the first three months of 1963 jumped some 4.2 per cent above the same 1962 period.

This sharp upward trend is not expected to continue throughout the year but revised estimates for 1963 now are anticipating a gain of from 2½ to 3 per cent.

L. F. McCollum, president of the Continental Oil Co. and board chairman of the American Petroleum Institute (API), was among those who made a late December forecast of 1½ to 2 per cent.

With a bit of caution, McCollum boosted his estimate last week to 2½ per cent.

He told Continental's annual stockholders meeting that strong demand for light heating oils and gasoline estimated about 15 million barrels of excess inventories despite record refinery operations the first three months of the year.

"However, surplus distillate (light heating) stocks have accumulated at a rapid rate in recent weeks," he said.

"In the final analysis, the industry's financial success in its domestic operations will continue to hinge on rational, economic practices in marketing and the successful management of excess crude producing and refining capacity."

On the same day McCollum was speaking at Wilmington, Del., the chief executive officer of another major firm told a group of oilmen at Roswell, N.M., 1963 may be a better than average year with a demand gain of just under 3 per cent.

Morgan J. Davis, board chairman of the Humble Oil & Refining Co., the domestic operator for Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey), said industry inventories of both crude and products are in the best shape they have been in for many years.

"This product situation could continue for the balance of 1963, depending, of course, on the level of refinery runs," he said.

Davis said the domestic industry has been slowly recovering from its own private recession, adding, "Our difficulties began in late 1957, and since that time we have been trying to adjust our operations to fit more closely with the changes that have occurred in both the demand and supply aspects of our business."

Davis and McCollum said extremely cold weather was among the factors causing the sharp increase in demand the first quarter.

McCollum also said the industry benefitted from a continuing rise in business activity and consumer spending.

Davis said a pickup in industrial output and new car sales of 6.9 million vehicles contributed to last year's petroleum demand growth of 4.3 per cent, the best growth rate the industry has experienced since 1955.

He said there is indication of another near-record year for automobile production in 1963.

McCollum said the strong level of demand and improving inventory situation saw wholesale product prices rise the first quarter above the low levels of 1962.

"Early in the year, widespread price wars depressed slightly the nationwide service station price for regular grade gasoline but this has strengthened considerably in recent weeks as a number of companies once again have withdrawn all temporary dealer allowances," he said.

TO LAUNCH SUBS

GROTON, Conn. (UPI) — Two atomic submarines will be christened simultaneously, June 22 in the first twin launching since the start of the Navy's atomic ship program in 1954.

The Polaris missile-firing sub Tecumseh and the attack sub Flahser will be launched at the electric boat division of General Dynamics Corp.

Mart Churns Higher For 11th Advance

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market churned slightly higher last week as interest rotated from recent blue chip leaders to many of the neglected issues.

It was the 11th straight weekly advance by the Associated Press average of 60 stocks, which gained 1.3 at 273.6, the latest in its new series of historic highs.

Other popular market barometers went to new highs for 1963 but were still short of their 1961 peaks.

Astronaut Gordon Cooper's 22 orbits failed to inspire the aerospace issues. They moved irregularly.

Sugars, spurred by leaping prices for sugar in the commodity market, and rails, helped by some favorable news, afforded the list what group leadership there was.

The market however, continued the switch in interest that developed late last week. Previously, the 1963 market advance has been led by high quality stocks of proven worth. The big news about the market now is that the cheaper, less-seasoned issues are again getting a whirl. This usually reflects greater participation by the public. As yet, however, this clue to increased public participation has not been borne out by daily statistics on odd lots.

Odd lots are stock transactions of less than the regular round lot of 100 shares, and is an index of the trading activity by the "little fellow"—the public, rather than the big institutional investors.

PROSPERITY SYMBOL

63's 3-Millionth Car Is Produced

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business NEWS Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—A gleaming symbol of prosperity rolled off a Detroit assembly line this past week. It was the 3 millionth car built this year.

The booming automobile industry is leading much of the economy upward.

The heavy demand for cars has spilled benefits into the steel industry and many other industries. And it has spurred the stock market in an approach toward new all-time highs.

Output this week slipped to an estimated total of 162,000 cars, compared with 170,620 last week, the highest of the year. A labor dispute at Ford's Lima, Ohio, plant was partly responsible for the decline.

Sales set a record in the first 10 days of May, totaling 214,900, a two per cent gain over the 211,400 delivered in the like period a year ago.

The inventory situation made the outlook for continued high production good. At the end of April there were 950,000 cars in dealers' hands, a 38-day supply.

Expressions of optimism about the outlook for the economy came from two important meetings, the National Industrial Conference Board in New York and the Financial Analysts Federation in Chicago.

Industrialists heard Conference Board speakers report that the future looks good for appliances, most consumer goods, and the machine-tool industry. However, prospects for construction were not so good, they said.

William W. Tongue, economist for Jewel Tea Co., said he expects general consumer spending to keep on growing, particularly if there is a reduction of federal income taxes.

The nation is operating close to effective capacity, and expansion that would produce jobs may be at hand, reported Walter K. Bailey, chairman of Warner & Swasay Co. of Ceveland.

Analysts agreed that current business conditions and the outlook are favorable. Among their conclusions:

Finished steel consumption will exceed last year's total, increasing to between 75 and 76 million tons.

Higher sales of industrial equipment and expansion of capital spending are indicated.

New construction looks promising.

Industrial production, a key barometer, attained a new peak in April for the second consecutive month, the Federal Reserve Board reported.

Based on production of mines, mills and factories, the index climbed to 122.4 per cent of the 1957-59 average from 120.6 in March.

The Labor Department reported that in April nonfarm employment rose 300,000 from March to a record 55.9 million, up 1 million from a year earlier. The gain was described as "a substantially better-than-seasonal job expansion."

Steel production last week made a comeback from the slight decline of the previous week. Output totaled 2,548,000 tons and put industry operation at about 82 per cent of capacity.

The United Steelworkers Union still hadn't decided whether to reopen its contract for wage negotiations. Union President David J. McDonald described the situation as being up in the air. The union could strike 90 days after a reopening. The producers and the union were reported broadening preliminary talks in an effort to reach agreement without a contract reopener.

Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz expressed the opinion that a railroad strike threatened for June would be averted. The railroads and the unions are in a dispute over work rules changes by which the lines seek to eliminate jobs they consider unncessary. A President's emergency board turned the dispute back to the unions and employers and directed them to settle it through collective bargaining.

Briefly around the business scene: The F. W. Woolworth Co. plans to open 60 new variety stores this year. . . . Soaring sugar prices have caused increases in candy, soft drink, ice cream and cake prices . . . A four per cent increase in sales was achieved by retail food stores in the first three months of this year.

Grain Futures Market Steady In Past Week

CHICAGO (AP)—Grain futures prices scarcely deviated from a general downward trend last week on the Board of Trade and nearly all contracts finished weak.

The only exceptions were the expiring contracts of wheat, corn and oats which posted small gains because of short covering for purposes of balancing commitments.

Trade in May wheat was active The short interest in that contract was large and apparently the longs had decided to accept delivery. Not a single bushel had been tendered in the pit. Early in the week, offerings were rather liberal and the price skidded more than four cents at times. But toward the end of the week, the shorts had begun to scramble for cover and they bid the price up about seven cents in the final three days. But the net change for the period was only a small fraction of a cent.

Major consideration over-all, though, apparently was the outcome of the farmer referendum next Tuesday on the 1964 wheat control program. Brokers said that, with or without the program there is a possibility that wheat could become somewhat more competitive as a feed grain. That would be most likely, they explained, if the 1964 yield should be a large one.

Rainfall during the week added to the bearish sentiment in soybeans. Reports indicated that in much of the major producing area moisture conditions had improved greatly.

At the end of the week, wheat was ½ cent a bushel higher to 4¼ lower, May $2.09⅛-½; corn ¼ higher to 1¼ lower, May $1.21-20⅞; oats ⅜ higher to ¾ lower, May 70⅛ cents; rye 2⅛-3¾ lower, May $1.24⅞-⅝; soybeans 4⅜-5⅜ lower, May $2.59-58⅞.

GROUND BREAKING

CHICAGO (UPI)—Baxter Laboratories, Inc., said Friday that ground will be broken for a new $2 million plant in Mountain Home, Ark. The plant, located about 100 miles north of Little Rock, will be the firm's largest facility for the manufacture of medical products. Completion of the construction is planned for next February. The plant will employ about 150 persons initially, a spokesman said.

Coal Slurry No Danger To Natural Gas

By HARRY WILSON SHARPE
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The coal slurry pipeline as a potentially tough competitor of fuel oil and natural gas has faded from the scene, perhaps for years.

Slurry is pulverized coal mixed with water. It is pumped through pipelines to utility boilers much like oil or gas.

This method of transportation is not dead but it was dealt a severe jolt last week when eastern coal-hauling railroads and Pittsburgh Consolidation Coal Co. made a reduced freight rate deal that closes down the only slurry line in existence and casts a pall over plans for others.

The 5-year-old line runs 108 miles from Consolidation's diggings at Cadiz in southeastern Ohio to boilers of the Cleveland Electric Illuminating Co. It cost consolidation from $2.47 to $2.65 a ton to pump slurry through it —77 cents a ton more than the deal worked out with three railroads.

Until this contract was signed, the line had been so successful in cutting Consolidation's freight costs that the big coal company and gas-hauling Texas Eastern Transmission Corp., Shreveport, La., had joined together on plans to build a $100 million slurry line from West Virginia to New York. They were talking about a 500-mile line from Utah to Southern California.

But the companies and the coal industry in general apparently had reckoned without the pitfalls ahead.

The biggest was dug by the railroads which depend upon coal for one-fourth of their freight revenue. They stood to lose millions if slurry lines took over. They not only cut freight rates twice to make slurry transport unprofitable but mustered powerful lobbies in state legislatures and Congress to block right-of-eminent-domain bills.

West Virginia, which depends heavily upon coal for its livlihood, enacted a bill giving slurry lines the right to file condemnation suits. But the railroads proved too strong in Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania, New York and New Jersey.

When this impasse developed, President Kennedy, who favors the slurry lines, had a bill introduced in the last Congress to grant right of domain. He sent Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall before the Senate Commerce Committee to defend it but it got no farther than hearings and died when Congress adjourned.

No senator has thus far revived the measure.

Candy Spots Top Show In Preakness

Leaves 2nd Place For Chateaugay

BALTIMORE (AP) — California's Candy Spots landed his delayed knockout punch near the head of Pimlico's ancient home-stretch Saturday, and pulled away with complete authority to capture the $180,000 Preakness by 3½ lengths over Kentucky Derby winner Chateaugay.

The huge colt from the Golden West, who suffered the only loss of his brilliant career two weeks ago at Churchill Downs in Louisville, jumped back into the middle of the 3-year-old title scramble with a bang.

With jockey Willie Shoemaker whaling his oddly-marked chestnut hide liberally, Candy Spots romped past the pace-setting Never Bend near the top of the stretch, and then easily stood off a belated come-from-behind surge by Chateaugay.

A crowd of 35,263, third largest to see a Preakness since the classic was inaugurated in 1873, howled with delight as the favorite showed who was the boss this time.

Chateaugay, third choice in the wagering despite his derby upset May 4 when Never Bend ran second and Candy Spots third, took second this time by 4½ lengths over Never Bend.

Never Bend, the 1962 champion 2-year-old and second choice in the wagering, was 2½ lengths ahead of the fourth horse, Lemon Twist, in the field of eight - year-olds.

Shoemaker, who had failed in three previous shots at the Preakness black eyed susans, said Candy Spots ran this time like he should have. The California-bred colt is not the most handsome in the world, with white spots that look like someone hit him with a handful of marshmallows, but he's the toast of this old Chesapeake Bay town.

"I always thought he was great," said the jubilant Shoemaker in the flower-lined horseshoe that marks the winner's circle. "He showed me today that he is."

Candy Spots had won the Santa Anita Derby and the Florida Derby and had a string of six straight before his third place finish in the Kentucky Derby.

Mesh Tenney, who trains Candy Spots for his Morman partner, Rex C. Ellsworth of Chino, Calif., said Candy Spots will go on to the Belmont in New York next month after a crack at the Jersey Derby on Memorial Day at Garden State Park.

But, with Chateaugay beaten in this one, there won't be a triple crown winner. There hasn't been one to sweep the Derby-Preakness-Belmont Triple Crown in 15 years—since the mighty Citation.

The Ellsworth - Tenney - Shoemaker triumvirate had been confident in Louisville that Candy Spots was the best sophomore in the land. He was the favorite in the Derby, but Chateaugay won by 1¼ lengths over Never Bend, who got second place by a neck over Candy Spots.

Candy Spots was the 3-2 favorite this time, while Cain Hoy Stable's Never Bend was next at 9-5 and John W. Galbreath's Chateaugay wound up third choice at 5-2.

It was the first time Ellsworth and Tenney had started a horse in the Preakness and it was the first victory in the race for Jockey Shoemaker in four tries.

Again there will be no Triple Crown winner this year, but that'll take nothing away from the third in the series. Most of these leading 3-year-olds are going on to New York for the wind-up, the $125,000-added Belmont Stakes to be raced at Aqueduct on June 8.

This was not only the third richest Preakness but it was the third largest crowd and the winner's time was the third fastest.

Candy Spots was clocked in 1 minute, 56 1-5 seconds on a track which was fast by post time although it was covered with water Saturday morning. The time equalled Greek Money's winning time of 1962 and Bold Ruler's clocking in 1957. Nashua set the record of 1:54 3-5 in 1955 and Capot did it in 1:56 in 1949.

The winner, who also was the favorite in the Kentucky Derby, returned $5., $3.20 and $2.20. Chateaugay, ridden by Braulio Baeza, paid $4.40 and $2.40 and Never Bend, with Manuel Ycaza in the saddle, was $2.20 to show.

Ycaza, who was involved in the famous finish line bumping with jockey Johnny Rotz last year, sent Never Bend to the front immediately after the start.

Bill Robinson's Rural Retreat went right with him and Shoemaker came along in third place with Candy Spots. They went to the first turn in the same order with Chateaugay rated well back in sixth place.

BALTIMORE (AP)—The 1-2-3 finish of Candy Spots, Chateaugay and Never Bend in the Preakness Saturday cost Pimlico race track more than $2,300.

Under wagering rules, the track guarantees to pay off 10 cents on the dollar even though there isn't enough of the public's money in the till to go around.

In order to pay off the minimum $2.20 to the purchasers of $2 third place tickets on the favored Candy Spots, Pimlico had to dig up $2,306.82. Another $25.82 was required to pay off all the tickets on Never Bend who did finish third in the role of the second choice.

The biggest minus pool in Pimlico history was caused by Native Dancer when he won in 1953. The track had to dole out $46,000 of its own money to cash the show tickets.

Candy Spots Is Great-Shoemaker

By GORDON BEARD

BALTIMORE (AP)—"He ran today like I thought he could," laconic Willie Shoemaker said of Preakness winner Candy Spots. "I always thought he was great. He showed me today that he is."

Shoemaker, criticized in some quarters for his third place finish aboard Candy Spots in the Kentucky Derby, made amends with his driving 3½ length victory over Derby winner Chateaugay for first prize of $127,500.

While Never Bend broke in front, as he did in the Derby, Shoemaker said he was more worried about Chateaugay by the time the field reached the half-mile pole.

"Never Bend looked like he was laboring," Shoemaker said.

Chateaugay also breezed past Never Bend in the stretch and finished 4½ lengths ahead of the early pace setter.

"Candy Spots moved up on his own until the stretch," Shoemaker said. "Then I got after him because he's inclined to loaf a little when he's in front.

"I hit him about a half dozen times with my right hand, and then switched to the left at about the eighth pole. Then he leveled off."

Asked why he switched whipping arms, Shoemaker said "to surprise him a little bit."

Shoemaker noted that Candy Spots broke out from the gate, as he did in the Derby, "but he got running quick and by the first turn I had him under a steady hold."

"I figured Never Bend would go into an early lead," Shoemaker said, "Because I didn't see anything else in the race who would run with him. I was surprised at Rural Retreat."

Rural Retreat, ridden by Bob Baird, stayed on the tail of Never Bend and jockey Manuel Ycaza for the first half mile. But Rural Retreat faded, and the longshot finished sixth in the eight-horse field.

Mesy Tenney, trainer of Candy Spots, said the 3-year-old chestnut colt would make his next start in the $100,000 Jersey Derby on May 30, at Garden State Park and then compete in the Belmont Stakes, third and final of the triple crown races, on June 8.

Tenney said he was sure trainer Woody Stephens of Never Bend would want the early lead, and as a result he told Shoemaker it would be best to wait until quite late before going after him.

Owner Rex Ellsworth said he thought the Pimlico track was off although it was labeled fast. Candy Spots ran the 13-16 miles in one minute 56 1-5 seconds, as compared with the record of 1:54 3-5 set by Nashua in 1955.

Braulio Baeza, the Derby winner, said Chateaugay "just couldn't get in there. He did his best and had no trouble. The track was good but he just couldn't get in there."

Ycaza contended Never Bend "didn't run his race. He just couldn't grab hold of the track. He broke well but seemed to be swimming."

Doug Moreau Kicks Gold To 10-9 Victory

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — The kicking of sophomore Doug Moreau gave Louisiana State's Gold team a 10-9 victory over the Purples in the annual spring inter-squad football game Saturday night.

Moreau's 24-yard field goal with 28 seconds left put the Gold team in front after quarterback Pat Screen moved his unit to the Purple 10 late in the game.

Moreau, a 6-foot-1, 190-pound end from Baton Rouge, also booted the extra point after his team's fourth quarter touchdown. The two kicks proved the margin of victory.

The Purples took a 6-0 intermission advantage on senior fullback Buddy Hamic's 2-yard dive two seconds before the end of the first half. Hamic, a 205-pounder from Crowley who starred with the defensive Chinese Bandits last fall, picked up 17 yards in the 42-yard scoring thrust.

Early in the fourth quarter, Buddy Soefker, another Chinese Bandit, sprinted 12 yards for a touchdown and Moreau converted to put the Golds in front. Tackle Ralph Pere set up the touchdown when he scooped up a Purple fumble on the 17.

The Purples regained the lead on sophomore Joe Labruzzo's 27-yard field goal with 4:25 left in the fourth period.

Screen, a red shirt last fall, was easily the outstanding star. He ground out 60 yards rushing and got another 91 in completing 6 of 16 aerials.

Danny LeBlanc, who played on the White team last fall, led the Purples with 50 yards rushing. All of the Purple' aerials yardage came on the passing of quarterback Joe Moock who clicked on 5 of 14 tosses and had butter-fingered receivers most of the night.

The Golds picked up 127 yards in the air and gained 198 rushing while the Purples had 176 on the ground.

• • •

Coach Charlie McClendon was definitely pleased with the intra-squad scrimmage.

"There were some real fine individual performances out there," the mentor remarked.

"Doug Moreau's kicking was outstanding but he also made some real fine catches. His catch near the end of the game set up his final field goal and naturally I was pleased with his performance on both occasions," McClendon said.

"Ezell and Screen put in a real battle out there and both looked good on various plays. We all need to improve though, in fact, we're going to have to get a lot better," he continued.

"We've had a real successful spring and I think this game showed that we used our workouts well. I just can't help but believe that all my boys will improve. We'll grade the films and then wait until the fall to start in on some more hard work."

League Signs Letter Of Intent Athletic Pact

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP)—The Big Eight Conference formally approved Saturday a letter of intent agreement for all sports with five other major conferences and four Eastern schools with a common signing date of May 20.

The agreement was adopted in principle by all conferences and schools involved at the NCAA convention in Los Angeles in January. Since then they voted on a May 20 signing date.

After that date, any high school athlete who signs with a school involved in the agreement cannot jump to another school without losing a year of eligibility.

A Big Eight-Southwest Conference letter of intent for football only, which was approved last December and became effective Feb. 12, was the forerunner of the six-conference hookup.

Other conferences involved besides the Big Eight and Southwest are the Atlantic Coast, Southeast, Big Ten and Missouri Valley plus Penn State, Syracuse, West Virginia and Pittsburgh.

The Missouri Valley, Big Ten and Southwest also have approved the agreement.

Wayne Duke, Big Eight executive director-elect, said indications were the Big Eight and Southwest would keep their own earlier signing date for football.

Willey Three-Hits Giants, Mets Roll

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Carlton Willey pitched a three-hit shutout Saturday as the last-place New York Mets whipped the San Francisco Giants 4-0, snapping a four-game winning streak for the National League leaders.

It was only the Mets' second victory in seven meetings with the Giants this season and Willey has won both. The right-hander trimmed San Francisco 4-2 with a seven-hitter two weeks ago.

Jack Sanford was the Giants' starter and loser. The big right-hander, who was celebrating his 34th birthday, allowed eight hits and all the runs in eight innings before retiring for a pinch-hitter and was charged with his third loss in nine decisions. It was his first defeat to New York in two years. He had beaten the Mets six straight times.

The Mets scored three times in the third inning as Duke Snider drove in one run and Tim Harkness singled in a pair.

Willey put his mark at 4-2 for the season, retiring the last 14 Giants in succession.

Willie McCovey singled for the Giants in the first, Tom Haller hit one in the third and Sanford added another in the fifth as the 31-year-old Willey effectively checked the Giants.

Lynn Causey Fires 1-Hitter To Spark Win

Southpaw Lynn Causey mixed his curve with a blazing fastball to baffle the Piggly Wiggly club Saturday night and carry Swartz to a 6-0 American Legion Amateur League victory.

The easy-going Northeast State freshman was in command all the way during his fine one-hit performance and the losers never seriously threatened. He struck out 14 men. Causey allowed only four baserunners in his seven inning stint. Two of these were via the error route, another worked him for a walk and the other was Billy Barton who got a looping single to right in the fifth.

With one man out in the frame, Kenneth Taylor was walked by Causey and Barton then followed with his bingle. But Taylor tried for third on the hit and was put out on a good throw by right fielder Jessie Scott.

Swartz picked up two tallies in the third on singles by Causey, Joe Thurman, a wild throw, and another single by shortstop Pete Vincent.

The winners biggest inning was the fourth when they plated three runs. James Antley, Don Price and Bob Betz got hits during the frame while Piggly Wiggly aided the Swartz cause with an error and interference call against the catcher.

Antley got Swartz's final run in the fifth when he walked, stole second, went to third on a passed ball and then scored on a double steal.

Betz led the winners' hitting barrage with three singles in four official trips to the plate. He was the only man to collect at least two hits.

Darrell Johnson, who pitched the first three innings, was the loser. L. C. Crawford took over in the fourth and went the rest of the way for Piggly Wiggly.

Russia Rallies For 75-74 Win Over U.S. Five

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—Russia, trailing by six point at the half, rallied for a 75-74 victory over the United States in the World Amateur Basketball Championships Saturday night.

The loss just about eliminated the U.S. from contention. The Americans have won only one game and lost two with three games left in the round robin tournament.

Russia, which overcame a 40-34 halftime deficit, scored its second straight victory to remain unbeaten in the competition along with Yugoslavia and defending champion Brazil.

Red Belle Splashes To Victory

CHERRY HILL, N.J. (AP)—Taking the lead shortly after the break, Hobeau Farm's Red Belle splashed to a two-length victory in the $28,000 Colonial Handicap at Garden State Park Saturday.

Ridden by Bill Boland, Red Belle held off the strong bid of Mah Moola. The latter edged Patrol Woman for second money.

The winner carried 120 pounds and was caught in 1 minute, 12 1-5 seconds for the 6 furlongs over a sloppy strip.

Red Belle paid $7.00, $4.80 and $3.80. Mah Moola returned $11.20 and $5.60 and Patrol Woman $3.80.

Archer Gets 5th Straight On Decision

Both fighters weighed 161 pounds.

Referee Johnny Lo Bianco and judge Bill Recht each scored six rounds for Archer, three for Zalazar and called one even. The other judge, Artie Aidala, had Archer in front six rounds to four.

The Associated Press scorecard had Archer an 8-2 winner.

It was the 35th victory in 36 pro fights for Archer. His only loss was to Jose Gonzalez of Puerto Rico, who knocked out Zalazar in the Argentina's last United States appearance nearly two years ago.

Zalazar lost his 10th bout. He has won 30 and had one draw.

Both fighters suffered cuts over the right eye. Zalazar received his in the fourth round and Archer bled profusely from a gash just over the eyebrow in the ninth.

Dr. Samuel Swetnick examined Archer's injury at the end of the round.

The injury did not hamper Archer's effectiveness, however. In the final round the lanky Irishman shook Zalazar with a good right to the head and a series of combinations.

Archer, ranked No. 7 in the middleweight class, dominated the action throughout the bout, using his jab and hook as his chief weapons.

Sid Marcus, 144¾, Brooklyn, N.Y., outpointed Joe Rodriguez, 148, Puerto Rico 4.

Tony La Barbara, 130½, Buffalo, N.Y., drew with Angelo Soto, 126½, New York, 6.

McHan, Turner Sign With Colts

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Colts announced Saturday they have signed quarterback Lamar McHan and flanker Bake Turner for the 1963 National Football League season.

McHan, 30, a 9-year veteran in the NFL, has a career mark of 527 completions in 1,246 attempts for 8,206 yards and 64 touchdowns. Turner, a rookie last fall from Texas Tech, led the Colts returning punts last season with nine for 94 yards. He made 20 kickoffs for 504 yards.

Dodgers Get 4th Triumph In Row

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The Los Angeles Dodgers, playing against a patch-work Pittsburgh infield, scored four runs in the second inning Saturday and ran their winning streak to four games by defeating the Pirates 6-4.

Right-hander Don Drysdale was touched for 10 hits but picked up his fourth victory in eight decisions. Tom Davis drove in three Dodger runs with a pair of singles, while Jim Gilliam batted in two and extended his hitting streak to 14 games.

It was the fifth straight loss for the Pirates and their 10th in 12 games. The Dodgers have won nine of their last 11.

Pittsburgh second baseman Bill Mazeroski missed the game because of a leg injury and the Pirate infield underwent further changes in the decisive Dodger second.

Willie Davis and Dick Tracewski opened that round with singles and Drysdale bunted. Davis stopped after coming part way down the line from third, and pitcher Vern Law, who fielded the bunt, tried to catch Davis off third but the throw was too late. Utility man Johnny Logan, playing shortstop, was thrown out of the game for disputing the call.

Bob Bailey moved from third to shortstop and Elmo Plaskett, usually a catcher, took over at third.

A sacrifice fly by Gilliam brought in the first run of the inning and Tom Davis later hit a two-run single. A single by Frank Howard scored Ron Fairly with the fifth and deciding Dodger run.

The first Pirate run scored on a wild pitch by Drysdale in the first. A double by Bob Skinner brought in the second Pittsburgh run in the sixth and a bases-loaded single by Smokey Burgess scored the other two in the eighth.

Pace Shoots 62 For New MUNY Mark

The former record was 64 recorded a couple of weeks ago by club pro Johnny Myers.

The new course record was nothing new for Pace a senior at Louisiana Tech. This spring he was Gulf States Conference medalist for the third time.

He already had three other course records to his credit. The Texan has the record with a 64 at the Longview Country, a 62 at Ruston's Country Club and a 64 at the public course in Lawton, Oklahoma.

Saturday, he shot rounds of 32-30 for his 62. This included two eagles and seven birdies. He bogied one hole.

Jofre Successful In Keeping Title

MANILA (AP) — Undefeated Eder Jofre successfully defended his world bantamweight boxing championship Saturday night when Johnny Jamito of the Philippines, floored in the 11th, failed to answer the bell for the 12th round.

It was the 38th knockout in 48 bouts for the tough, 27-year-old titleholder from Sao Paulo, Brazil, who never has lost a professional fight although he has been held to three draws. This was his sixth title defense, and all ended in knockouts.

The end came suddenly for the crowd of 25,000 in the steamy indoor Araneta Coliseum in suburban Quezon City.

Although Jofre was heavily favored, Jamito had done well in the early rounds by keeping out of range of the champion's jolting left hooks. He threw Jofre off-balance with left jabs, effective infighting and clinches when things got rough.

When Jofre finally opened up in the 11th round, however, the Philippine fighter didn't have the answer.

While refree Antonio Ziravello of Brazil was escorting Jofre to a neutral corner, the bell rang, ending the round. There was no count.

Gentile Drives Orioles Over Sox With Hit

By GORDON BEARD

BALTIMORE (AP) — Jim Gentile drove home the winning run with a ninth inning single Saturday night as the Baltimore Orioles defeated the Chicago White Sox and former teammate Hoyt Wilhelm 2-1.

The result elevated the Boston Red Sox into the American League lead, and dropped the White Sox into a second-place tie with the Orioles.

Left-hander Steve Barber fired a four-hitter for the Orioles and became the first big leaguer to win seven games this year. He has lost three.

Murrah Coach Takes Post At Belhaven

President Howard J. Cleland said the appointment was part of a program to strengthen athletics at the 4-year Presbyterian school, which first admitted men in 1954.

James McLeod, who was the school's only coach, will head the baseball program and assist Rugg in basketball. The school does not have an intercollegiate football program.

Track Crown Is LSU's

CHARLES MOSLEY (right) of Alabama, clears the last hurdle enroute to a new record in the 120-yard high hurdles at the Southeastern Conference track and field meet Saturday. Billy Hardin of Louisiana State, left, was second. Mosley's 13.9 time bettered the old SEC mark of 14.1. (AP Wirephoto)

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Louisiana State won its 19th Southeastern Conference track title Saturday, but Gary Ray of Auburn and Charles Moseley of Alabama stole the show with individul performances.

Ray broke the SEC record for the 100-yard dash with a :9.3 performance, one-tenth of a second shy of the world record held by Dave Sime of Duke University. Ray also won the 220 with a :21.0 performance.

Moseley led all performers, scoring 19 points. He won three events and placed second in another.

Mississippi State, the defending SEC champion, placed second with 46 points and only two first places. Auburn, with three firsts, was third with 36 points, and Florida scored 23. LSU led in first place finishes with eight.

LSU scored in all but three events—the 880, broad jump and hop, step and jump.

Six records fell and one was tied.

Moseley, the SEC's most versatile track athlete, set a new record in the high hurdles with a time of :13.9, breaking the old mark set in 1936 by Spec Towns, now the Georgia track coach. He won the broad jump with a leap of 23 feet, 11½ inches and hop, step and jump with 45 feet, 9½ inches, also an SEC record.

LSU's Billy Hardin, who led scorers last year, finished first in one event, second in another, and ran on a winning relay team and a second place relay team for 11¼ points—second to Moseley.

Ron Hernandez, LSU strong man, was the meet's only other double winner, taking both the shot put and the discus.

Jack O'Neil of LSU tied the SEC 440-yard dash mark set in 1934 by former Olympic champion Glenn Hardin. The time was :46.8 seconds.

Ken Winter of Auburn joined the record breakers with a 1:51.3 performance in the 880-yard run, breaking the old mark of 1:51.8 set in 1960 by Ron Allen of Florida.

Louisiana State's mile relay team, anchored by O'Neil, broke the old mark set last year by Alabama. The Tiger quarter-milers toured the course in 3:13.5, winning easily over Florida.

Mississippi State's first-place finishes came in the 440-yard relay with a time of :41.8 and the two-mile, won by Jimmy Taylor and Malcolm Balfour who crossed the finish line abreast, 50 yards ahead of the nearest runner, in 9:39.8.

But Taylor, favored to win the mile, lost to LSU's Larry Shirey in a dash to the wire by about a foot. Shirey won in 4:17.7.

Tennessee won freshman competition with 54 points, including seven first-place finishes. LSU was second with 28 points, Florida 17 and Georgia Tech 16 points. Six records fell in the freshman competition.

AMERICANS IMPROVING

Distance Runners Are Hitting Stride

LOS ANGELES (AP)— America's distance runners, long overshadowed by the foreign contingent, are beginning to pick up momentum.

New Zealand's Murray Halberg, the 1960 Olympic Games champion and a leading threat to break the world record at 5,000 meters, summed it up Saturday when he said:

"I've got to hand it to the Americans. You are really developing some good runners, and lots of them. You've come a long way."

Beatty outdistanced Halberg with a furious last lap, which he ran in 56.1 and a final time of 13:57.4.

Halberg, who had no excuses, explained that he was just beaten by a better runner. He was timed in 13:59.2

The 28-year-old Beatty, president of the Los Angeles Track Club, which specializes in training for the longer races, commented: "There are all the indications that we are getting some good distance runners."

New Zealand's other star, Peter Snell, won the "miracle mile" feature. But as Snell himself agreed, it was rather an empty triumph, raced in the disappointing time of 4:00.3.

The race lost much of its attraction when Jim Grelle, another LATC veteran, came up with a virus and did not run.

Dyrol Burleson of Oregon gave Snell a battle. Any chance he had was hampered when he was accidentally spiked on the left foot by Bob Seaman with 330 yards to go. Burleson's time was 4:00.8.

Keenly disappointed was pole vaulter John Pennel of Northeast Louisiana State. He has a world mark of 16 feet, 6¾ inches pending, but was able to do only 15-0.

The mile relay team from Arizona State ran way with this event in 3:05.2 but missed its target—breaking the world record which it holds at 3:04.5.

The track and field scene switches to the Modesto, Calif., Relays next Saturday, with the two New Zealanders again furnishing much of the attraction.

Elks Tourney Starts Friday

SOUTHERN PINES, N. C. (AP) —The second annual National Elks Golf Tournament will be held here over two courses for three days starting Friday. It will be 54 holes of stroke play.

A field of about 250 players from 40 Elks lodges in 16 states seems assured. Play will be over the Southern Pines Country Club and Mid Pines courses.

BRAVES WIN, 10-6

Hammering Hank Sparks Uprising

By JOE MOOSHIL

CHICAGO (AP)—Henry Aaron's grand slam home run capped a six-run, seventh - inning uprising and lifted the Milwaukee Braves to a 10-6 victory over the Chicago Cubs Saturday before a crowd of 16,162.

Aaron's homer, helping Milwaukee win its fourth straight game, was his 12th of the season and marked the eighth time in his career he has hit one with the bases loaded. A strong wind blowing towards right field helped the drive reach the bleachers.

Going into the big seventh, the Braves had been held to four hits by Bob Buhl and were trailing 4-1. Doubles by Del Crandall and Mack Jones in the third accounted for the run.

The Cubs, meanwhile, went ahead in the first inning on Billy Williams' third homer and then broke a 1-1 tie in the fifth on singles by Don Landrum, Dick Bertell and Lou Brock. Andre Rodgers' first homer of the season with a man aboard made it 4-1 in the sixth.

The first four Braves to bat in the seventh singled with pinch batters Lee Maye and Norm Larker driving home the first two runs and knocking Buhl out. Jim Brewer came into retire Jones and Lindy McDaniel took over. Frank Bolling drew a walk and Aaron followed with his home run.

Milwaukee picked up three more runs in the seventh to assure starter Bob Shaw, who had been lifted for a pinch batter in the seventh, of his first victory against two defeats.

Len Gabrielson opened the eighth with his third home run. Four more hits, including run-scoring singles by Jones and Aaron, gave the Braves added insurance.

Colts Score Two In 9th, Win 3-2

HOUSTON (AP) — Ken Aspromonte's sacrifice fly with the bases full and one out scored Ron Davis with the run that gave the Houston Colts a 3-2 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies Saturday.

The Colts scored twice in the last of the ninth after the Phillies had rallied for two runs in the top of the inning to take a 2-1 lead.

Aspromonte's pay-off fly came in the last of the ninth.

Jack Baldschun, who relieved starter Dallas Green for the Phillies, was the loser. Howie Goss opened the bottom of the ninth with a walk and moved to second on a single by John Bateman. Ron Davis ran for Bateman and the runners advanced on Bob Lillis' sacrifice.

Goss came home with the tying run, evading catcher Earl Averill's tag on J. C. Hartman's grounder to Don Demeter.

Grambling Warns Rattler Nine

GRAMBLING (Special) — The Florida A&M Rattlers were warned Saturday that the Grambling college baseball team reacts violently to trespassers on its domain.

Florida invades Louisiana for an NAIA playoff with the Tigers Monday and Tuesday and the Rattlers are being cautioned to bring their own headache remedies.

The conference champions will collide in a best of three series in Ruston.

Grambling (23-2) is the kingpin of the Southwestern Athletic Conference for the third straight year, while the Rattlers (17-5) represent the pinnacle of authority in the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Conference.

Both games are scheduled for 7:30 p.m. at Fraser field. Tiger supporters are confident that a third game won't be necessary. The Florida coaching staff is equally unperturbed "we aren't making the trip to Louisiana because of an adventurous spirit," Coach Costa Kittle said in a long-distance telephone conversation. The Rattler Mentor sounded like a man whose vision of his mission is clear and explicit.

Florida captured the NAIA district title last year and the Rattlers feel that they have an excellent chance of getting enthroned again.

Any college pitching staff will encounter difficulty trying to put Grambling into complete limbo with hitters like SWAC batting champion Jesse Jone (.478), and Frank Garnet (.435).

IN WEST MONROE

Summer Leagues To Open Monday

West Monroe opens its doors for two more summer baseball projects, one a first-year affair, Monday night, according to league president Judge John McCormick.

The new league is the Dixie Seniors loop while Dixie Boys League, the other group opening Monday, has already been established.

The two leagues, which will each consist of six teams, will present about 200 boys with an opportunity to play summer baseball.

A short dedication ceremony is planned for the opening night that will include a doubleheader.

The program will begin at 5:45 with the invocation. Judge McCormick will then present a welcome address, and introduction of the board members and city officials will follow immediately.

Both games Monday night will be Dixie Senior tilts. Kilpatrick's is slated to meet the City Council in the opener at 6:30 and People's Homestead squares off with Brown - Rivers - Scogin in the nightcap.

In the Dixie Seniors League Sponsors and managers include: Kilpatrick, Tommy Habert, City Council, Tommy Huff; People's Homestead, I. O. Beavers; McGuire Realty, Lewis Wiggins; Brown - River - Scogin, Bill Holloway and the Senior Boys' managed by Bill Burrows.

Charter Gives Bastrop Dixie Senior League

BASTROP (Special) — A charter has been presented to the city which gives Bastrop a Dixie Senior Baseball League that will include five teams. The presentation was made at a meeting at the VFW home here Thursday night.

Four teams have already been organized with plans for another to be added later. The present teams and their managers are the Sheriff Department by Bobby S. Winnon, VFW by Edward Sistrunk, L&B by Grover Grimmitt and Mer Rouge by C. L. Clark Sr.

The Bastrop season begins the first week in June with three games slated each week at Baron Park. Saturday games will be played at Mer Rouge.

END WAS SHOCKINGLY SWIFT

Ernie Davis Is Dead At 23; Leukemia Takes Away Life

By LARRY FRIEDMAN

CLEVELAND (AP) — Ernie Davis, America's greatest collegiate football player of 1961 and a symbol of tremendous courage to all who knew him, died peacefully Saturday in Lakeside Hospital after a 13-month battle against acute leukemia.

The 23-year-old former All-America halfback at Syracuse was the only Negro ever to win the Heisman Trophy, the highest honor accorded a college grid star. He was a member of the Cleveland Browns in the National Football League, but never played a game professionally.

He was stricken with the deadly blood disease at the College All-Star camp in Evanston, Ill., last July. However, doctors now have concluded the 6-foot-2, 212-pounder actually was afflicted in April, 1962.

For more than three months the news that Davis had leukemia was withheld from him and the general public. Then in October, doctors and Browns' officials told Davis his illness was in a remissive state, meaning the disease was arrested temporarily. That lasted for more than six months—or until 10 weeks ago.

Davis entered the hospital Thursday afternoon. First he stopped by the Browns' office to talk to Arthur B. Modell, club president.

"He was here for one hour," Modell said. "He told me he had to go to the hospital, but that it was nothing serious and that he'd be out of there in a couple of days. His neck was swollen considerably and we all knew what it meant. I think Ernie did, too. He was coming by to say goodbye to me and the others.

"I asked him how he was feeling," Modell recalled. "All he would say was, 'I've felt better, but it's nothing to worry about. My throat hurts a little.' He was apologetic about having to go into the hospital."

Jim Brown, Cleveland's great fullback and the man who preceded Davis at Syracuse, was deeply touched by Ernie's death.

"This is a great personal loss," Brown said. "He was a tremendous individual. He realized this was going to happen eventually, but he was courageous in the face of everything. He never showed his feelings to any of the guys.

"I never caught him with his head down. He just carried on normally as if nothing was wrong. Football was his life and he wanted so badly to play for the Browns."

Modell, who knew Davis for 18 months and went far beyond the normal relationship of owner-player in his association with Ernie, said he planned to start an Ernie Davis foundation for leukemia research.

"The Browns will make a substantial contribution to get the fund started," Modell said. "His mother has asked that instead of flowers, contributions should go to University Hospitals in Cleveland for the hospital's leukemia reresearch projects."

In his hometown of Elmira, N. Y., Davis' mother, Mrs. Arthur Radford said the death was a "terrible shock." She said she was numbed by the loss of her only son. His father is dead.

The body was being shipped by airplane to Elmira for funeral services either Monday or Tuesday. The Browns planned to charter an airplane for club officials and players who desire to attend the funeral.

Dr. Austin S. Weisberger, Davis personal physician and a blood specialist, said: "Ernie was a most impressive person. He was a real gentleman in all senses of the word. He had great courage and dignity. You couldn't help but admire him."

The doctor said Davis' form of the disease—acute monocytic leukemia—is the worst kind of all. "There are many kinds of leukemia and persons can live a normal life with it," he said. "I know one person who lived with it for 38 years."

Dr. Weisberger said Davis died shortly before 2 a.m., 36 hours after entering the hospital. "There was a rapid acceleration of leukemic cells in the past few days, but before that Ernie was able to carry on his normal functions without any pain whatsoever."

Davis was given heavy doses of medication in an attempt to shrink the malignant tissues and to arrest the blood deterioration. Then he was sedated with morphine.

"He just coughed once, spit up some blood and expired," one doctor said.

SPOKE WITH PERFORMANCE

Ernie Was Quiet, Shy Off Field But Explosive On It

By OTTO DOELLING

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP)—Ernie Davis, the first Negro to win the Heisman Trophy, found a means of self-expression on the football field where his electrifying performances attracted the attention that the shy athlete shunned off the gridiron.

Out of a football uniform, Davis bore little resemblance — other than in physique—to the flashing star of college football. Even when national fame came, Davis retained much of his early shyness and reticence.

In his final year at Syracuse University, where he majored in business administration, the school's equipment manager, Al Zak, said of the two-time All-America:

"Ernie still wears the same 7¼ hat size that I outfitted him with when he walked in here as a frosh. Even now, you'd never even know the kid was around."

Only after signing an $80,000 contract with the professional Cleveland Browns, did Davis remark:

"As a Heisman Trophy winner I believe I am one of the best, and I want to play with the best. A football player has pride."

In the late summer of 1962, Davis was riding the crest of football fame. On the surface, he looked the picture of health with his powerful 6-foot-2, 212-pound frame.

But he suddenly became ill as he prepared to play in August, 1962, All-Star game at Chicago. He was hospitalized for analysis of what was described simply as a blood disorder.

"It's the first big game I've missed in 13 years," Davis said upon leaving Evanston, Ill., Hospital on game day. "I'll be watching it on television, but it will be tough."

The product of a broken home, Davis was born Dec. 14, 1939, in Uniontown, Pa. He lived there with his grandparents until 1952, when he moved to Elmira, N.Y., where his mother lived.

Schwartzwalder recalled:

"Ernie was the ideal college football player in every way: talented, dedicated and easy to coach. On the field, he gave you 100 per cent all of the time. He could run with power, run with speed, catch a pass and even kick.

"He was an instinctive player for us and proved that as a sophomore when he gave us probably the biggest play of his Syracuse career. It was the third play from scrimmage in the Jan. 1, 1960 Cotton Bowl against a good Texas team.

"Ernie was to go into the deep flat on a pass pattern, but there were two men in that area, so he immediately cut back to the middle and went deep. Ger Schwedes hit him with a pass and Ernie went 87 yards with the longest touchdown pass-play in Cotton Bowl history. We went ahead, 7-0, and Texas never caught up. We won, 23-14, with Davis scoring 16 points and being named the top back in the game."

In 29 regular season games at Syracuse, Davis gained 2,496 yards in total offense, scoring 35 touchdowns and 220 points.

At the windup of his college career, Davis was one of the most sought-after players in the nation. He was the first draft choice in the rival American Football League. The Buffalo Bills reportedly offered Davis a three-year package worth $130,000.

When the possibility arose that Davis would be the first Negro to play with the Washington Redskins, he said:

"I wish they would quit bringing up this race stuff. I don't want to be another Jackie Robinson. I just want to play football, and I'll go where I can get the best offer."

Golf Tournament Starts Monday At Bastrop Club

BASTROP (Special) — The North Louisiana Pro-Am golf tournament opens at Morehouse Country Club here Monday.

The annual affair, which is held at a different course in North Louisiana each year, is expected to attract several professional and amateur players from the area. First rounds are scheduled to begin at 10 a.m.

The meet will be played on the Canadian handicap basis.

Nicklaus Wins Hickok Poll

The award makes him eligible for the $10,000 diamond-studded belt given annually to the outstanding pro athlete.

BASKETBALL BROTHERS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Among the brothers who have played in the National Basketball Association are Dick and Al McGuire, George and Ed Mikan, Connie and John Simmons, Rollins, George and Henry, Ken and Phil Pearcy and Tom and Sam Stith.

Budget Gives Wildlife Hike

With Sam Hanna

Funds From Rockefeller

The Louisiana Wild Life & Fisheries Commission should be in a better position to operate financially for the coming new fiscal year.

Because the budget given to the Legislature last Tuesday night by Gov. Jimmie H. Davis included an increase of about $1,2-million for the wildlife commission.

This, of course, represents most of the funds chopped in the commission's budget last year by the Legislature. The commission's total budget for the coming new year will be $5.8-million.

Director L. D. Young Jr. told us on the phone Friday that the commission's staff was going over the proposed new budget (which has to be approved by the Legislature yet) before he could determine the real improvements for the coming year.

But he added, "It's a step in the right direction."

The commission has been faced with a salary problem regarding some of its employes, especially the biologists. Several biologists have taken higher-paying jobs in recent months.

"At the present time I think we will be able to up-grade our department jobs," Young explained, meaning that the commission hopes to install a better pay scale for different jobs.

As we have pointed out before, this is important, since Louisiana has lost some awfully good game management and fisheries biologists because of the pay problem.

Perhaps the increase will help solve this problem to some degree.

At least one other point should be mentioned in regards to state funds regarding the wildlife program and that pertains to the Rockefeller Refuge Fund.

Located in Cameron Parish, the Rockefeller Refuge was deeded to the state with provisions regarding revenues from oil production there.

In short, money that the state makes off oil production on the refuge must go first to the improvement of the refuge. Surplus money can be used for education and health while the law provides that at least $1-million must be left in the fund at all times.

And that's exactly how much the state is leaving in the Rockefeller Fund in the budget offered to the Legislature. Some $3-million is going to education and another $3-million is being taken from Rockefeller for health.

But this is almost customary, since it's been done in the past.

Annual Fishing Contest

The Ouachita Wildlife Unit will sponsor its annual fishing contest beginning May 25 through August 25, according to contest chairman J. B. Thoman.

Contest divisions will include bass, bream and spec, and of course fishermen catching the biggest fish will win the contest. As in the past, the contest is open to only members of the Ouachita Wildlife Unit.

This is one of the club's methods of building membership, although it is a shame that a fishing contest must be sponsored to get sportsmen to join a conservation club.

Prizes will be awarded monthly to the monthly winners. At the conclusion of the contest, the fishermen with the biggest fish will win the grand prizes.

Thoman says numerous nice prizes have been obtained, contributed by sporting good dealers and other firms, for the winners.

In order to compete, fishermen must be paid-up 1963 members of the Ouachita Wildlife Unit at least four days before the catch is made. Fish cannot be cleaned or frozen before being entered and when the entry is made there must be two witnesses and a contest official present.

The fisherman must submit his membership card when registering the fish.

Active Man Gone

Fred Patterson, who died of cancer this past Tuesday, will be missed by the Ouachita Wildlife Unit and the Cheniere Lake Commission.

The 54-year-old Swartz postmaster was active with both groups.

Although he was active in other civic work, Fred contributed much of his time to the local wildlife club and also gave service to the lake commission.

He was a successful businessman and because of this added much to the club's work, which is always benefited when sound advice is available. Fred Patterson played a big part in that respect.

Fred always stood well among a group of men who have been together for several years to form the backbone of the local organizations.

He will be missed.

Sportsmen Growing

Sportsmen are growing in numbers, as all of us know, but the U.S. Department of the Interior released its annual report a few days ago.

According to the federal government, the United States had a total of 13,996,353 hunters in 49 states who purchased one or more hunting licenses during 1962.

The totals are based on information furnished to the federal government from the state departments.

On the hunting figures, there was an increase from 11,798,890 in 1961, and on fishing there was an increase from 19,394,177.

Actually, the number of fishermen is much larger, since millions of people fish but are not required to purchase a license, which is the case in Louisiana.

Michigan led the field in hunting licenses purchased with 1,086,506. That's the big deer hunting state. Louisiana had 249,338 licenses purchased.

California was tops in the fishing field with 1,485,809. Louisiana had 223,031 fishing licenses bought.

Little Man's Corner

Fishing was good and the little men made news afield.

Locally, bass fishermen are having good luck in Bayou DeSiard. The good fishermen are not having trouble landing bass.

There was a feeling among some fishermen that the rotenone projects sponsored by the Ouachita Wildlife Unit hurt the bass population in Bayou DeSiard.

But this isn't so. The good fishermen are catching big bass, and besides that, biologist Jim Davis' reports show that the bayou is good for bass fishing.

Bayou DeSiard also has been good for bream fishing. I. R. Rohvaugh landed the limit of bream at the Midway Dam a few days ago. Lots of other fishermen were doing the same.

At Lake St. John, Mr. and Mrs. Red Walker of Lake St. John caught the limit of chinkapins on worms. Carl Smith and W. A. Nance of Rayville landed the limit of bream with crickets. From Mangham, Mr. and Mrs. Buddy Jones landed the limit while M. W. Dent of Sicily Island had good luck with the bass in Lake Concordia.

Meantime, Claude Lancaster Jr. and Tommie Moore of Waterproof landed the limit of bream in Lake Concordia. Levon Smith and W. R. Priester got the limit of white perch at Deerpark.

And over around Winnfield, Mr. and Mrs. Teo Pullig of Atlanta caught the limit of bream in Saline Lake. Bob Bolton of Winnfield did too.

In the Lake Providence area, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Cooper of Lake Providence caught 45 white perch at Gassoway. Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Comans and Mr. and Mrs. Pat Comans of Tallulah caught 300 bream in Gassoway.

Mrs. Sam House Sr. of Lake Providence caught a nice string of bream in the big lake. Tom Bass did well with the bream also.

They'll Aim High At Houston Meet

HOUSTON (AP)—Pole vaulters will be aiming for the 17-foot mark at the national championship U.S. Track and Field Federation meet June 7-8.

"We're expecting to have a tremendous pole vault field," Johnny Morriss, University of Houston track coach and meet director, said.

"We hope to have at least six vaulters who have cleared 16 feet. We have new standards that will go as high as 17 feet 3 inches, so we'll be ready for some great performances."

One pole vaulter who has bettered the 16-foot mark already has entered the meet. He is C. K. Yang, the Nationalist Chinese athlete who recently became the first man ever to score more than 9,000 points in the decathlon.

SOME CHANGES LIKELY

Big NFL Meeting Slated; TV Policy Is Main Topic

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The first meeting of the National Football League since Commissioner Pete Rozelle lowered the boom on Paul Hornung, Alex Karras and the Detroit club will open Wednesday with future television policy up for consideration.

The NFL is operating on the last year of a two-year $9,300,000 TV package deal with the Columbia Broadcasting Co. which carries the road games of all 14 clubs. The recently-completed $926,000 contract for the championship game with the National Broadcasting Co. is only a one-year deal for 1963.

The owners will take up the question of the length of future contracts, the manner of bidding and kindred business matters. They probably will also take a look into the future and do a little off-the-cuff talking about closed circuit television and pay television.

The new championship game contract, considered a solid vote of confidence after the league's betting scandal, represented an increase of $311,000 over the old contract of $615,000. Under the old pact, $300,000 went directly into the players benefit plan and the remainder went into the player pool. The owners must decide how to split the extra money.

Still pending from the big investigation of the winter is a final determination in the case of Carroll Rosenbloom, president of the Baltimore Colts. When Rozelle announced the indefinite suspension of Hornung and Karras April 17 and the fining of five Detroit players at $2,000 each and $4,000 for the Detroit club, he said completion of the Rosenbloom investigation could be expected in the near future.

Rozelle's report said Rosenbloom had denied allegations of betting on league games during a period eight to 10 years ago and that the individuals who made the charges since had repudiated or withdrawn the allegations in affidavits or signed statements. He said the investigation had been delayed by legal proceedings involving Rosenbloom and those who made the accusations.

Several matters tabled at the winter meetings in Miami Beach in January will be brought up again. They include a suggestion to increase the player limit from 36 to 38 men and establishment of an injured reserve list to take care of disabled players.

The coaches who met in Dallas recently proposed that the present rule on a safety be changed, permitting an official to charge a club with a safety for holding in the end zone. Pittsburgh beat Dallas 30-28 last fall on a safety under this rule.

The coaches also suggested that a team using a double shift must use it three times in a game before it can be used inside the 20 yard line. Under the current rule, it must be used three times a period before it can be used up close.

The claim of the Pottsville, Pa., Maroons for the 1925 championsiph, submitted to a three-man committee last January, will be considered again. In 1925, the title was awarded to the Chicago Cardinals, now the St. Louis Cards, on the grounds that the Pottsville team had played an exhibition game in the home territory of another club without permission.

GENE GREEN of the Cleveland Indians came in flying, literally, trying to catch Twins batter Zorro Versalles' drive in the ninth inning of the game in which Minnesota defeated the Indians, 8-1. Rightfielder Green was unable to hold on to the ball and Versalles got credit for a double. He scored the final run a few minutes later. (AP Wirephoto)

OVER INDIANS, 8-1

Jim Kaat Gives Twins Another

CLEVELAND (AP)—Lefty Jim Kaat pitched a five-hitter Saturday and gave the Minnesota Twins their second straight victory over the Indians, 8-1.

Kaat won his second game against four losses with the help of a pair of two-run homers by Harmon Killebrew and Wally Post who was starting his first game for the Twins. Post was purchased from Cincinnati Thursday.

McDowell allowed only four hits during the first seven innings, but two of them were the homers.

He left in the eighth, when the Twins scored three more runs on singles by Killebrew, Bob Allison, Post and Rich Rollins. Rollins' bases - loaded grounder between third and short came against Barry Latman.

Kaat permitted four hits during the first eight innings, one of which was rookie third baseman Max Alvis' fifth homer. Kaat retired 10 men in a row entering the ninth inning.

The Minnesota infield, which has been guilty of some loose fielding in recent days, supported Kaat brilliantly on defense.

Shortstop Zoilo Versalles had eight assists and second baseman Bernie Allen five. The pair collaborated on two double plays to pull Kaat out of jams.

In the first inning, after Kaat had issued the first of five walks, a pass to leadoff hitter Vic Davalillo, Versalles turned Tony Martinez' sharp grounder into a double play with Allen the middleman.

Again in the fifth, after Alvis' homer had narrowed the Twins' lead to 2-1, Jerry Kindall drew a walk. This time Versalles was the pivotman in the double play.

LUCRATIVE AT THAT

Ellis Shuns Touring, Makes Only Big Ones

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON

WEST CALDWELL, N.J., (AP) — Let Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer have the gold and the glory; Wes Ellis Jr. has his family and a future.

After two relatively lucrative years as a full-time member of the pro golf tour he was 21st money-winner in 1958 and 20th a year later, Ellis left the tour to take a job as head pro at the Mountain Ridge Country Club here.

"I like to spend time at home with my family," he said. "You've got to sacrifice something if you're going to be a touring pro."

When the 31-year-old Ellis does catch up with the tour-he makes the major championships and selected tournaments during the fall and winter — he generally golfs with the best of them. He netted $14,000 last year as a part-time performer.

"I don't really have any regrets about leaving the tour," Ellis said. "I go out and play for three or four weeks, travel from place to place, live in small hotel rooms, eat out all the time. There are a lot of little inconveniences and I'm always glad to get back home."

Ellis plays a steady, consistent brand of golf that almost always puts him in the money.

"If I stayed on the tour full-time I don't think I would have been as good as Nicklaus, Palmer or Gary Player," he said, "but I'm sure I would have been fairly successful. On last winter's tour I played consistently well and I think I finished in the top 10 or 12 in most tournaments.

"I think I have a well-balanced game. My big drawback is that I don't hit the ball far enough and this is primary nowadays in winning consistently. Those big hitters can really birdie the long par 5 holes. But there's no particular shot I feel I can't hit."

Ellis, 6-foot-1 and 170 pounds, was born in Kansas City, and grew up in Brownsville and later San Antonio, Tex.

"I played golf a lot as a boy but I wasn't really interested in it," he said. "I took a pre-medical course at the University of Texas and the more golf I played the less I felt like being a doctor. By the time I was a junior I knew I wanted to be a golfer."

Penalty On Smith Gives Wright Lead

By BOB HARING

MUSKOGEE, Okla. (AP)—A two-stroke penalty for slow play against Marilynn Smith gave Mickey Wright a two-stroke lead after the third round of the $8,000 Muskogee Women's Open Golf Tournament Saturday.

Miss Smith shot a 1-over-par 71 for a 217, while Miss Wright had a 72. They would have been tied except for the penalty which boosted Miss Smith's score to 73 and the 54-hole total of 219.

Other victims of the slow-play penalty were Miss Smith's companions Judy Kimball and Beth Stone. Miss Kimball would have been third behind the two leaders except for the penalty.

The tournament committee, composed of Carol Mann, Barbara Romack and Marlene Hagge, would say only that an official complaint had been filed and declined to confirm or deny a report that the complaint was filed by Miss Wright.

The committee members said they talked with the groups just ahead and just behind of Miss Smith's threesome. Miss Wright was in a threesome behind Miss Smith. Mrs. Hagge said the committee members "did what we thought we had to . . . nobody is going to agree 100 per cent."

This is the first penalty this year for slow play, but a committee member said one previous protest had been filed this year involving Miss Smith.

The standings after the penalties showed Miss Wright at 217, Miss Smith at 219, Shirley Englehorn—a member of the threesome with Miss Wright—at 222, Miss Kimball at 223 and Joann Prentice and Kathy Whitwork at 226. Miss Stone would have had 226 also except for the penalty, which put her at 228.

Miss Wright's scoring was erratic and at one point she stood two strokes behind Miss Smith. A bogey by Miss Smith on the 17th and two birdies by Miss Wright on the back nine evened them up before the protest was filed.

Miss Smith continued her hot putting, using only 27 putts while Miss Wright said she started off well, then ran into trouble. In her words, "I got sloppy or something."

Miss Wright and Miss Smith stand one-two in tournament victories and money winnings this year. They have met twice in playoffs and each have won one time.

IN TRACK, FIELD

Indians Gain Three Top Louisiana Stars

Northeast Louisiana has signed three of Louisiana's top high school track and field athletes—West Monroe pole vaulter Paul Hobgood and quarter-miler Stefan Anderson and half-miler Barry Harwell of Fair Park — to athletic grant-in-aid pacts.

Signing of the three star athletes by Track Coach Bob Groseclose was announced by Athletic Director Jack Rowan Friday.

In Hobgood, Groseclose hopes he has a eventual successor to world record holder John Pennel, who closed out his college career in a blaze of glory this spring. Hobgood has been the state's prep vault champion for the past two years, going 13-2¼ last season and 13-8 this year. The West Monroe vaulter received coaching from Pennel during the past season and is rated one of the most promising vaulters in the state's history.

The son of Mr. T. V. Hobgood, the athlete ran on West Monroe's 440 and 880 relays team this year in addition to vaulting and lettered two years in football. Harwell, 17, had the state's best time in the 880-yard run in 1962, 1:57.5, but was hampered by injuries most of this spring. An outstanding student, the Fair Park runner is a member of the National Honor Society, vice-president of the senior class and student council senator. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. J .W. Harwell of Shreveport.

Anderson was second in the state triple-A meet in the 440. He recorded a clocking of 49.5 in the quarter this year and turned in a 1:59 time in the half-mile. The 18-year-old athlete is president of the Future Farmers of America at Fair Park and a student council representative. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Anderson of Shreveport.

CONSIDER THIS:

Big Boys Have Bad Days Too

BOSTON (AP) — So you stubbed your toe against the door this morning, hacked your ear shaving and then snarled at your wife.

Sometimes nothing seems to go right.

But cheer up. It happens to all of us. Even big league athletes have their off days. Consider, for instance, the following bad days or bad years:

On May 30, 1887, Bill George, a pitcher for the New York Giants, had a little control trouble. He walked 16 men in one game.

A few years later, Bill Gray of Washington couldn't quite find the plate in the second inning against Chicago on Aug. 28, 1909. Gray issued eight walks in the inning.

The Detroit Tigers made an even dozen errors playing Chicago on May 1, 1901.

Ed Wildman Knouff of Baltimore had a little difficulty with his delivery on April 25, 1887. Wildman hit six batters in the game.

Back on June 14, 1876, second baseman Andy Leonard of the Boston Braves went home terribly depressed-after committing nine errors in one game.

He didn't feel any better than pitcher Johnny Wadswroth of Louisville in the National League, who issued no fewer than 36 hits in a game against Philadelphia on Aug. 17, 1894.

Talk about frustration. The New York Yankees left 20 base runners stranded in a game with Boston in 1956.

Old Charlie Smith of Boston might as well have stayed home on April 17, 1890, for all the good it did him. Smith went to bat six times that day and never got up to the plate officially. He walked five times and was hit by a pitch the sixth time.

At least Smith wasn't hit twice in one inning — as Willard Schmidt of Cincinnati was in 1959 and Frank Thomas of the New York Mets was last season.

Carl Weilman of St. Louis wasn't any more successful on July 25, 1913. Carl fanned six straight times in a 15-inning game.

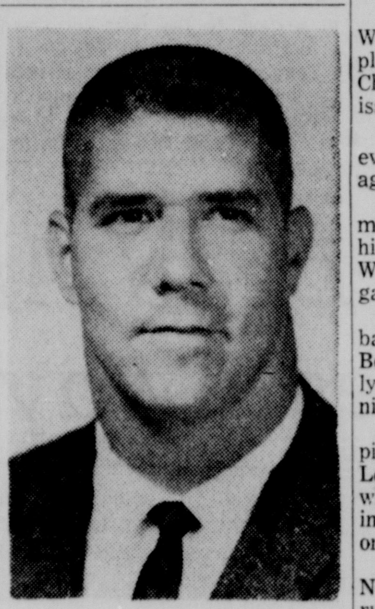
But Leon Goslin of Detroit knew how Carl Felt. Goslin hit into four consecutive double plays in a game with Cleveland April 28, 1934.

Apparently, pitcher George Weidman of the Tigers didn't have it on Sept. 6, 1883. Weidman was touched for 13 hits in one inning.

For that matter, John Coleman of the Philadelphia Phillies didn't have it for the entire 1883 season. Coleman racked up 48 defeats that year.

But for that feeling of all-time unsuccessfulness you've got to hand it to the 1899 Cleveland Indians, then in the National League. They dropped 134 of 154 ball games.

And to illustrate their futility, the 1899 Indians would have finished a full 18 games behind the 1962 New York Mets.



PAT PATTERSON

Pat Patterson Takes Position With Byrd High

Patterson said Saturday he will become a football assistant at the Shreveport school. The 1958 Louisiana Tech graduate had previously announced his resignation at Ouachita, effective at the end of the school year.

"I hate to leave Monroe and my friends here," Patterson said, "but I am tickled to death to be going to a system with the reputation of the Caddo Parish schools and particularly a fine school like Byrd."

Patterson has been line coach at Ouachita for the past five years. He also coached the baseball team in 1959, compiling a 10-8 record, and tutored the track team the past two seasons.

Patterson was an all-state end at Delhi, lettering four years in both football and baseball. He played on the 1951 Class B state championship team.

At Tech he played on two Gulf States Championship teams and lettered four years.

Patterson is married to the former Glenda Bates of Delhi. They have a son, Tony, age three.

Umpire To Report On Tilt Protest

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Umpire Frank Walsh will submit a full report to National League President Warren Giles on the protest staged by the New York Mets Friday night after they lost to San Francisco 4-3 in the 11th inning.

The Mets and pitcher Roger Craig in particular claimed the ball hit out of the park by Joe Amalfitano to win the game was a foul not a homer.

Jocko Conlan, captain of the umpiring team, said the report would be made. Although the Mets appeared to be cursing only Walsh, Jocko commented, "An umpire is an umpire."

Craig, who threw the pitch Amalfitano hit, admitted he used profanity but denied reports he challenged Walsh to a fight.

MOORE HAS ANSWERS

Modesto Relays Has Problems

By JACK STEVENSON

MODESTO, Calif. (AP) — Next Saturday, May 25, this community of 40,050 again stages one of America's top relay programs—a tribute to the townspeople's cooperation and the lasting interest of a former track and field star.

For with this relatively small population and a stadium seating only 8,000, the problems multiply for you to hold an athletic event of international consequence.

Modesto has proved it can be done with hard work and hospitality.

But how do you put on such a program with its $33,000 budget when the most you can collect at the gate is $22,000. Expenses to bring the field of athletes, including some of the best in the world, reach $20,000 alone.

The fellow with answers is Tom Moore, who has directed the California Relays most of its 22-year history. A slim, 49-year-old grandfather, Moore still holds the University of California 120-yard high hurdles record he set in 1935, the same year he was national champion for the 400-meter hurdles. You may have seen him starting the races in last year's U.S.-Russian meet.

Now the owner of a lumber yard, he contributes hundreds of hours each year to the sport he loves.

In explaining the success of the relays, Moore says, "Everybody cooperates. There is no paid help, and we have one of the fastest tracks anywhere."

Before the night meet, the director himself climbs the standards to adjust the lights so they'll be just right. And he's the race starter, a job he performs at about 20 other meets each spring.

Modesto Junior College collects only a token fee to pay the custodian and electricity bill at its track. In return, after years when there is a profit, the relays help improve athletic equipment at the school.

Sponsoring the event, the Junior Chamber of Commerce guarantees finances and contributes manpower. Many members of the present steering committee helping Moore are former Jaycees. Merchants donate trophies and about 500 sponsors pay $15 for two tickets and a program where the cost normally would be $9.50. But the tickets are for choice seats in a stadium certain to be sold out.

Program advertising and concessions help foot the bill for the non-profit enterprise which hosts the California State Junior College meet in conjunction with the relays.

Walt Disney annually dones art work for the program cover. This year Donald Duck will be depicted trying to pole vault, emulating the fiber glass record breakers of today. That cover also will remind veterans of the first California Relays in 1942.

"That might have been the first and last if Dutch Warmerdam hadn't set his world record," recalls Moore, who was a competitor that night.

"Everything seemed to go wrong. Even the standards for the pole vault wouldn't go high enough. They had to be sent to a welding shop for an extension while Warmerdam waited.

"But he cleared 15 feet, 7¾ inches which stood as the world record for so long and interest increased."

Still, one year shortly after World War II, the relays lost $1,600. Some firms waited patiently for a year to be paid.

"If it hadn't been for their generosity, we would have folded right then," Moore declares.

World records for the 880 and 440-yard relays, set at Modesto by Abilene Christian in 1958 and Texas in 1959 respectively, still stand—a tribute both to the runners and the fast track. In 1961, Ralph Boston became the first man to broad jump 27 feet when he went 27-½. That same year, Jim Beatty ran the mile in 3 minutes, 58 seconds.

New Zealand's Peter Snall and Murray Halberg, world record holders for the mile and 3-mile runs, are slated to compete this time with the California Relays sharing expenses with the Coliseum Relays in Los Angeles and the Compton Invitational.

"At first, we had to sometimes almost beg to get the top competitors," Moore recalls. "Now we have schools, clubs and individuals seeking invitations. They've seen what we have here and like it."

Junior Net Meet Slated At Crossett

CROSSETT, Ark. (Special) — Official invitations to the Eighth Annual Crossett Open Junior Tennis Tournament to be held here June 7 through 9 were mailed this week to tennis enthusiasts throughout the Mid-South.

Deadline for entering the tourney is 6:00 p.m. Wednesday, June 5. All entries must be filed with Jack E. Meadows, Tournament Director, Crossett.

Sponsorship of the tournament, which is sanctioned by the Southern Lawn Tennis Association and the United States Lawn Tennis Association, is by the Crossett Junior Chamber of Commerce in conjunction with the Crossett Chamber of Commerce. Local civic clubs are also participating.

Mr. Meadows said that play is open to any tennis player who wishes to enter and can qualify. Three divisions of competition will be provided. The divisions and ages are: junior boys singles and doubles, open to those players not 18 years of age before January 1, 1963; junior girls singles and doubles, open to those players not 18 years of age before January 1, 1963; and boys singles and doubles for players not 16 years old before January 1, 1963.

Entry fees are $2.00 for singles and $2.00 per team for doubles. Registration card from United States Lawn Tennis Association is required for entrance. These cards may be obtained for $1.00 from Mrs. Edward Back, 5812 Country Club South, Little Rock, Arkansas, or at the tournament site.

Solons End Loss Streak With 7-5 Win

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Washington Senators halted a losing string at six games by belting Detroit 7-5 in the windup of their Saturday twinight doubleheader after dropping the opener 6-3 on the Tigers' three-run rally in the ninth inning.

Jim King powered Washington in front in the second game, hitting a homer with two on that capped a four-run fifth and made it 5-3. The Senators clinched it in the sixth with two more runs on Chuck Cottier's triple between singles by Marv Breeding and Ed Brinkman.

All five Detroit runs rode in on homers. Norm Cash connected with the bases empty and Jake Wood hit one with one aboard in the fifth, and Rocky Colavito smacked a two-run homer in the eighth.

Left-hander Art Quirk was the winner in his first decision this year, going five innings for Washington. The loss went to Tom Sturdivant, who replaced Jim Bunning after the Detroit starter had faced only one man. Brinkman drew a leadoff walk for Washington, and Bunning was ejected for disputing the call by umpire Ed Hurley.

The Tigers had just one hit in their winning ninth inning rally in the opening game.

Longview Group Gets Win Over Local Swimmers

The Twin City YMCA team showed up well in its first home meet of the year Saturday but didn't have enough strength as the Longview, Tex. Y defeated them, 204-165.

The visiting team's 11-12 year old relay teams captured first place in the 200-yard medley relay and the 200-yard free style relay.

The group, composed of Sandra Bernston, Joan Scott, Amanda Gunter and Cindy Waters also faired well in individual events. Bernston won the top spot in the 50 yard breast stroke, 100-yard individual medley, 50-yard free style and 100-yard free style.

Other winner for the visiting team included the boys 15-17 year old medley relay and free style relay team, composed of Pete Velde, Nate Holt, Guy Harrionson and Bob Brabham.

Outstanding swimmers for the local team included the 8-12 boys free style relay team of Kip Sudduth, Scotty Dyer, Ronnie Hobbs and Steve Newton.

Aslo turning in a fine performance was the 8-12 girls free style relay team of Martha McGough, Patty Shoudy, Sandy Sherman and Janelle Gattis.

Individual winners for the local team included Hobbs, Shoudy, Patti Smith, and Sudduth with three wins each. Scotty Dyer, John Salisbury and Hank Bedenhorn had one victory each.

The next meet will be a return engagement with the Texans sometime in June at Longview.

Jones Shatters Speedway Mark

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Parnelli Jones easily shattered his own qualifying record in the Indianapolis 500-mile race time trials Saturday despite a brisk breeze that kept speeds under peak predictions.

The 30-year-old Torrance, Calif. driver, the third racer on the track, circled the 2½-mile asphalt oval four times at an average speed of 151.153 miles an hour.

His best lap speed was 151.847, also a record.

Jones' performance was before an estimated 150,000 fans who had turned out in anticipation of record runs.

Jones, driving the Agajanian Special, had hit above 153 three times in practice under ideal conditions, but the winds slowed the cars in the opening day of qualifications for the Memorial Day race.

Jones' old marks, set in winning the pole position last year, were 150.370 for the 10-mile tour, and 150.729 for a single lap.

His best time came on the second lap Saturday. He also soared above 151 on the first circuit.

Qualifications continue Sunday and next weekend, but the pole position in the 33-car field was to be determined by Saturday's fastest time.

Jim Clark, Duns, Scotland, piloting a Ford-powered Lotus, smashed the track record for a semi-stock, eight-cylinder racer Saturday as he ran qualifications laps at an average of 149.750 miles an hour.

That snapped the 147.886 mph mark set last year by Dan Gurney, Costa Mesa, Calif., in a Buick-powered Thompson Special.

Gurney, Clark's Lotus - Ford teammate this year, suffered a major setback earlier Saturday when his racer smacked the wall on the first turn during a practice lap.

Gurney was not injured, but the car was damaged badly, probably ending its chances of qualifying this weekend.

A third Lotus-Ford—a prototype used by Gurney in tests at the speedway in March—was at the track and officials of the racing team considered switching Gurney to it if his car could not be repaired in time to make the field.

Lisbon Beats Marion, 9-4 For C Crown

BATON ROUGE (Special) — The Saulters family won another state Class C baseball championship for Lisbon here Saturday by defeating Marion, 9-4.

Glynn Saulters, who pitched the defending champs to the crown last year, turned in a 5-hit performance and added a triple to the cause. Brother Larry Saulters who hurled a semi-final win for Lisbon Friday, had two hits in three tries to rank as the top Eagle batsmen.

Another Saulters, Grady by name, coached the Eagies to the victory.

The win gave Lisbon a 15-2 mark for the season, their losses coming at the hands of Triple A Jesuit of Shreveport and Double-A Homer.

Spectators Roar As Sledge Wins Hollywood Cash

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Sledge scored an upset victory Saturday in the $28,050 Hollywood Express as the favorite Winonly met defeat for the first time at his favorite distance of 5½ furlongs.

As a Hollywood Park crowd of 50,489 roared in excitement, Jack Leonard ushered the longshot Sledge home about a neck in front of the late challenging Winonly.

The time was 1 minute 32.5 seconds.

Winonly, from the stable of Fred W. Hooper, won the Express last year, as well as the Hollywood Premiere two weeks ago at 6 furlongs.

Winonly had won six races at the abbreviated sprint distance going into this one. He also was gunning for his fifth straight stakes victory at Hollywood Park, dating back to the 1962 season.

Meetings Set For Softball

The Monroe recreation department will hold three meetings Tuesday night to organize midget, junior and senior softball leagues.

The meetings are set for Benoit Recreation Center.

The midget league meeting will begin at 6:30, the junior affair at 7:00 and the senior meeting at 7:30.

Spencer Hits Reds To 9-7 Win In Tenth

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Daryl Spencer, in the starting line-up for the first time for Cincinnati, collected four hits and then drove home the decisive run with a 10th-inning sacrifice fly that gave the Reds a 9-7 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals Saturday night.

Reliever Diomedes Olivo hit Frank Robinson with a pitch, leading off the 10th, and Robinson advanced to third on a ground out and passed ball before Spencer's fly brought him home. A double by Tommy Harper and John Edwards' single gave Cincinnati an added run.

Each side collected 15 hits in the game, with the victory going to Al Worthington.

The Reds jumped on Cardinal starter Ray Sadecki for five first-inning runs, two of them unearned. Spencer, signed as a free agent two days ago, and Ken Walters singled home two runs and Sadecki walked home another.

Fairfield Takes Lead At Oklahoma Tourney

By NORMAN ROWLAND

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Affable Don Fairfield shot a 4-under-par 68 Saturday and slipped into the lead of the $35,000 Oklahoma City Open Golf Tournament with a 54-hole total of 211.

Fairfield's 68 backed up rounds of 72 and 71 over the 7,050-yard, par 36-36—72 Quail Creek Country Club course and gave him a one-stroke lead over six others.

The 33-year-old Illinois native, who hasn't won a tournament in almost three years, was elated over his round, but said there hasn't been any sudden change in his game.

"I just started making the putts," he said. "I used only 30 putts today—and that's the secret of the game."

Bunched behind Fairfield at 212 were Al Kelley Jr., Bob Rosburg, host pro Ernie Vossler, Frank Beard, George Bayer and Dow Finsterwald.

Showdown for the 72-hole tournament will come Sunday. Twenty players are jammed up within four strokes of the leader.

Finsterwald missed a chance to tie Fairfield for the lead when he chipped 10 feet past the pin on the par 5 No. 18 after putting his second shot within a few yards of the green. It took him two putts to get down.

Bruce Devlin, who led the tournament at the halfway point with a 139 total skidded to a 5-over-par 77 Saturday and will start the final round tied for 22nd at 216, five strokes behind Fairfield.

Two newcomers led for a while Saturday after blazing rounds. Jerry Edwards, a 26-year-old Texan who barely made Friday's cut, fired a course record 64 and moved from a tie for 59th into the lead momentarily. Later, Al Kelley Jr. took over the lead with a 66.

Defending champion Doug Sanders withdrew Saturday because of illness and Dick Mayer was disqualified for signing an incorrect scorecard Friday. Mayer had a 36-hole total of 143 and Sanders was at 146.

"This course will eat you up if you use a driver," he said. "You have to use caution."

Thirty-two pros bettered par Saturday as winds were absent for the first time during the tournament.

USL Virtually Cinches Weight Lifting Crown

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP)—The University of Southwestern of Louisiana virtually cinched the national intercollegiate weight lifting championship Saturday by winning three of the four early events. Three more were on tap Saturday night.

USL racked up 52 points to 12 for runner-up Michigan State, host team.

Two records were set.

NLSC Concert Band Will End 1963's Season

The Northeast Louisiana State College Concert Band, under the direction of Joe Barry Mullins, ends its season with its annual spring concert Friday night in Neville Auditorium.

No admission will be charged for the concert, which will begin at 8:15.

The band will play "Celebration Overture" by Creston; "Concerto For Piano" by Grieg with Ronny Brothers as soloist; "Symphony For Band" by Giannini; "Come Sweet Death" by Bach; "Chorale and Fugue in G Minor" by Bach-Albert; and "Salome's Dance" by Strauss.

The concert ends a successful year for the Band. It gave a well-received concert of classical music in Brown Auditorium in December and then performed at Greenville, Miss., High School before being featured in the Mid-South Clinic in Memphis Dec. 15. The Band was acclaimed one of the finest ever to appear in Memphis after the concert.

Mullins has been director of the Northeast Band since 1951. The bandmaster is a graduate of Southwestern of Memphis and George Peabody College and is an associate professor of music.

Broadcasters' Importance Is Cited At Meet

LAFAYETTE (AP) — John Aspinwall, radio-TV news editor of the AP, told Mississippi-Louisiana AP association broadcasters Saturday that broadcasters are playing an increasingly important role in the AP's cooperative news gathering efforts.

The Associated Press is a nonprofit news gathering organization with broadcasting stations and newspapers contributing news stories as part of their membership obligation.

Aspinwall urged further increase in the participation of broadcasters.

"You'll get as much out of the reporting as you put into it," he said.

He told the broadcasters that the AP maintains a staff to cover the major stories but said the news coverage of members is the backbone of the state and regional report.

Aspinwall outlined to the broadcasters the operation of the AP general radio desk which prepares the national summaries and relays stories of national significance. A staff of 38 men monitor fourteen wires in preparing news for the broadcast wire.

Plane Forced Down On Road

FERRIDAY (Special) — A light plane piloted by an airman from England Air Force Base, made a forced landing on a new stretch of highway between Ferriday and Vidalia Friday night.

Authorities reported the plane, with Kenneth Martin at the controls, was on its way from Illinois to Alexandria.

The landing was made on U.S. Hwy. 84, which is being four-laned, about midway between the two towns.

Martin's landing was successful, and he was uninjured. He took off Saturday for the air base.

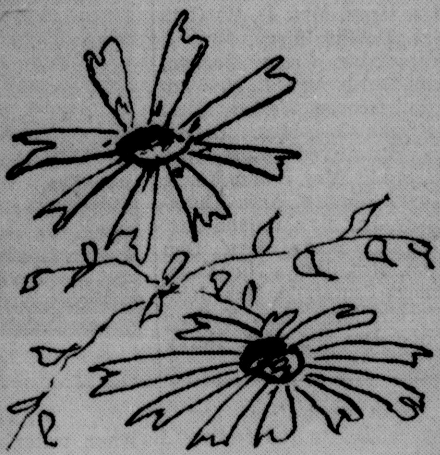
The World For Women

May 19, 1963



Above: Engagement of Miss Lenna Elaine Armstrong, daughter of Mrs. Elaine Hotze Armstrong, Mer Rouge and the late Cecil B. Armstrong, to Donald James Fries, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Clyde Fries, Lake Charles, is announced today by her mother. Miss Armstrong and her fiance are both students at Louisiana State University, where she is a member of Pi Beta Phi and Mr. Fries is affiliated with Kappa Alpha. The wedding is planned for July 13 in Mer Rouge Methodist church, following which the couple will establish a home in Baton Rouge, while continuing studies at LSU.

At left: Announcement is made today of the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Monnie Anne Turner, daughter of Mrs. L. H. Turner, Monroe, and the late Mr. Turner to Bill Presley, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Presley of Harrison, Arkansas. A June 29 wedding is planned in St. Matthews Catholic Church, Monroe. The bride-elect will graduate this month from Northwestern State College School of Nursing. Mr. Presley, who attended Northeast, plans to enroll at LSU in the fall.

On Dit'

by Denise

We quote . . . "Ooching merrily along the tree-lined shores of the Ouachita River in the parish of the same name is the capital city of serpentine and confetti—Monroe, La. . . . A party to a resident of Monroe is considered a necessity of life, an excuse for one as simple as the ripple created by a neighbors motorized pirogue putt-putting down Bayou DeSiard."

This statement, echoing sentiments which we are constantly reiterating, is quoted from the Houston Press column "Society Today" written by Press Society editor BETTY EWING. She was introduced to the jjoys of a visit to Monroe last weekend when she was a member of a houseparty at the home of ROSALIE and FRED FUDICKAR, JR. Others here, all school mates of some years back, were ANN and BOB ALLEN of Shreveport, and AUDREY and CHARLES MAYHEW of Mesquite, Texas.

The group were met at the airport with bouquets of magnolias and driven to the bayou at Loop road, where they boarded boats to approach the Fudickar home on Point drive from the water side. Pennants hung in trees and a red carpet stretched to the water's edge, where a white - coated manservant waited with iced drinks. Dixieland music in the background, of course.

Magnolias filled the Fudickar house for a party honoring the visitors Friday evening. About thirty friends, all in costume, were invited to meet the guests . . . Saturday at noon, PAULINE RILEY was hostess for brunch at her home. Quail highlighted the menu . . . That afternoon, mint juleps were served at the home of the BOBBY OLIVERS . . . and still later, the houseparty adjourned to the JAMAR ADCOCK home for an old fashioned fried chicken dinner, complete with homemade strawberry ice cream and sugar cookies.

After such a weekend, Betty naturally filled a column with ecstatic notices about Our Town. She also paid tribute to one of our favorite persons, as we quote again:

"Another Monroe party - giver par excellence just happens to be one of the fabulous women of the century — BLANCHE MARIE OLIVER . . . At 72, dark-eyed Blanche is younger than springtime with the mellow autumn patina of experience along the Ouachita and DeSiard . . . Her Cajun stories are delicious . . . She talk, she composes, she plays the piano, she sings, she dances!" — Indeed an eloquent tribute — and all true.

Meanwhile, back in Monroe, natives were busily entertaining other out of town visitors. Several parties early this week honored ANN SMITH of Edinburg, Scotland, guest of LOUISE and TOM LEIGH. Ann, whose husband TOM is presently lecturing at Harvard, flew to New Orleans, where Louise met her on Tuesday for the drive home. An impromptu party at the Leigh home introduced the visitor that evening. Friends had bedecked the house with pink roses and magnolias throughout. Some twenty guests met and visited and dined from the buffet table laden with stuffed ham, prune cake, chocolate nut cake, and other goodies.

On Wednesday, HILDA M'DONALD was hostess for luncheon at her home; and that evening, LOUISE and JOHN THEUS entertained at a family dinner party. Louise used all white flowers: magnolias and gardenias. Her Southern menu featured turkey and crabmeat. ANN left on Thursday to return to Cambridge.

Members of the young married set were invited for a sherry party Wednesday afternoon given by JOY M'CUE in honor of her daughter, KAY TORRANS. Kay has been here from MOBILE, Alabama, for a ten day visit "back home." Beautiful flowers were seen in the reception rooms. Roses in tones of pink to deepest rose were used with miniature ivy and fern in the living room. The dining room table was centered with a mass arrangement of gardenias, stock, and white double larkspur in a crystal container.

In the entrance to the playroom, were daisies and daylilies arranged in brass scales. The refreshment table in this room was covered with an aqua cloth and appointed with gold lacquer serving pieces. Flowers were yellow daylilies with variegated eleagnus.

A choice of sherry or bottled soft drinks was served by MERLE ADAMS, MARIANNE RAY, VICKY HILL, and POLLY FRANKS. Others who assited in serving were JANET MORGAN, JEAN WALLACE, LORETTA RIVERS, and DONNA LEWIS. Some seventy-five ladies attended.

MARION LEE RUSSELL WILLIAMS of Chattanooga, Tenn., who was here for the Neville Alumni banquet last week, stayed on for several days as guests of the W. I. NEELS. Marion and Roberta were members of the class of 1913. During her stay, Marion was honored with several small parties. HELEN ABELL and BENNIE ABELL were hostesses for luncheon at the latter's home. LILY DICKARD invited a group of old friends for coffee and an afternoon of reminiscing.

Senior golfers from all over Louisiana were in town for the State Senior Golf tournament last weekened at Bayou DeSiard country club. Guests of the H. G. M'DONALDS were ANITA and JERRY TUJAQUE of New Orleans, who were honored by their hosts with a dinner party Friday evening. Hilda decorated the house with magnolias and white petunias, and used pink roses and stock in a footed silver bowl on the dining room table. The menu included crab meat au gratin, tomatoes stuffed with shrimp, rice with water chestnuts, string beans Porto Rico, and chocolate coconut pie. There were twenty guests.

Claiming interest this weekend is the golf tournament being sponsored by Olin at Highland Park country club. Olin employees from throughout the area are in town for the event. Social affairs planned in connection with the tournament included a boatride Friday night and a supper dance last evening at Highland Park.

The porch at Bayou DeSiard country club was scene of a luncheon yeaterday given by JEAN GIFFEN for ladies whose husbands were golfing. Yellow daylilies centered the green-covered table. Ten ladies attended, including MRS. WILLIAM MESSMAN, MRS. DOUG WAGNER and MRS. CARL DALY of New Orleans; MRS. BUD DENTY of Fort Smith, Ark.; MRS. J. B. LANDRY of Jackson, Miss.; and MRS. ERNIE HORTMAN of Dallas.

Four out of town visitors were honored when LESSIE GARRETT and RUTH MADISON entertained at luncheon at Bayou DeSiard country club on Tuesday. A yellow cloth and green napkins were used on the table, which was centered with lemon daylilies and gardenias. Honored were SARAN WARREN of Indiana; SARAH MAE LOVE of Quincy, Florida; MRS. WINDSOR THOMAS of Alexandria; and MRS. WEBB MADISON of Bastrop. The guest list numbered eleven.

Other favorite reasons for parties are hale and farewell for those moving to or from Monroe. On Friday at noon, CODY ROSAMUND and ANN CHABOT entertained at luncheon honoring newcomer MARY ANN RITCHIE. The party was held at Bayou DeSiard country club, where the green-covered table was centered with magnolia blooms. Eight attended.

PAT MADDEN, who is to move to North Carolina in the early summer, was named guest of honor at a going-away party given Wednesday by FAY WINK and DIBBLE PATE in the home of the latter. Daisies in orange straw pots centered the table where dessert was served to thirty ladies.

After the conversational hour, five tables of players took part in bridge games. Tallies were cleverly decorated with cut-outs of Louisiana and North Carolina, connected by a curving road. Prizes in the games were awarded to FRANCES ADCOCK high; CHARLOTTE BRIGHT, second; VIRGINIA HARGROVE, low; and CLAIRE BROWN, travelling prize.

On Monday, VIRGINIA WARNER and MARIE COOKSTON were hostesses at luncheon honoring PAT and GLADYS PITT, who is moving to Shreveport. Magnolias centered the dining table at the Warner home, where ten guests were seated. The menu included raspberry ring with chicken salad, asparagus sandwiches, and snow pudding.

A Dutch treat dinner given by about one hundred friends honored GLADYS and THOMAS PITT at Bayou DeSiard country club Friday evening. Tables set up in the main dining room were decorated with May poles at either end, joined with swags of ivy and gardenias. The meal included the club's famous roast beef and shrimp salad, with apple pie for dessert. The honorees received a gift certificate from the group.

FREQUENT SUBSTITUTE LORRAINE GREGG invited the Thursday duplicate club to meet with her at home in Sterlington this week. Making it a party instead of the usual bring-your-own-sandwich, Lorraine served chicken casserole, congealed salad, and lemon dessert. Eight lucky bridge players were invited to share this occasion.

Patio Garden club's annual covered dish luncheon was held Tuesday at the home of CONNIE JONES on Forsythe. The party began at ten in the morning, with swimming before lunch and bridge after. The buffet table held such goodies as fried chicken; casserole of meat, olives, and noodles; assorted salads and desserts. The committee for the party was PAT SANDERS, PAT BAGWELL, NINA AUSTIN, and JEANINE AMMAN.

A gay event for the very young set this week was a clown party which honored LORI BERNAT on her fourth birthday Saturday last. Greeting arriving children was a doll dressed as a clown and carrying a large "Hello!" sign. Clown decorations and balloons added to the festive atmosphere.

Clown games were played with SAM MASUR and BETSY SUE KING winning prizes. Favors included noisemakers, paddles for the boys, and jump ropes for girls. Ice cream and clown birthday cake were served to about forty children.

A new non-profit cultural endeavor gets underway today with the opening of the MONROE ART CENTER at 1504 Riverside. The Center, which is being organized by a group of artistic and civic-minded citizens, will bring art shows to Monroe and offer other art-connected projects. Interested persons are invited to the open house at the Center this afternoon between two and six.

There are hermit souls that live withdrawn
In the place of their self-content;
There are souls like stars, that dwell apart,
In a fellowless firmament;
There are pioneer souls that blaze their paths
Where highways never ran. . .
But let me live by the side of the road
And be a friend to man.
Let me live in my house by the side of the road—
It's here the race of men go by.
They are good, they are bad, they are weak, they are strong,
Wise, foolish — so am I.
Then why should I sit in the scorner's seat
Or hurl the cynic's ban?
Let me live in my house by the side of the road
And be a friend to man.

Guest Meeting Concludes Season Of Review Club

The new Herschel Gentry Jr. home on Pargoud Blvd., was the scene Monday of the annual open meeting of the Review Club, which marked conclusion of the club year. Hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. E. P. Cudd, Mrs. James Aycock, Mrs. Robert Lewis, Mrs. N. R. Spencer, Mrs. Fred Huenefeld Jr. and Mrs. Gentry.

At the door to greet guests and members were Mrs. Spencer, Mrs. Gentry and the retiring president, Mrs. Claude Smith. The group gathered in the den where a massed arrangement of magnolias and foliage was placed on the hearth of the old brick fireplace.

Mrs. Smith gave an address of welcome to the guests and farewell as president to the members before turning the meeting over to the chairman of the advisory board, Mrs. C. P. Gray Jr. Mrs. Gray introduced the guest speaker, Dr. Harry Lemert, who has just returned from a European tour with the Northeast Jazz ensemble. On tour he visited parts of Germany where he was stationed while serving in the armed forces in World War II. Dr. Lemert used slides to show the contrast of war torn Germany of 20 years ago and the modern Germany of today. Of particular interest were Dr. Lemert's slides of the Berlin Wall. Other major cities Dr. Lemert visited in Germany were Frankfurt, Nuremburg and Munich.

Following the program Mrs. Gentry invited guests into the dining room where a bouquet of spring flowers in a crystal and silver epergne graced the tea table. Mrs. W. Tom Davis, president-elect, presided at the coffee service while Mrs. Smith served punch. Other refreshments were passed by the hostesses to the following members and guests Mrs. James Aycock, Mrs. W. E. Bennett Jr., Mrs. James Brown, Mrs. Thomas Dansby, Mrs. Allen Givens, Mrs. Gray, Mrs. D. W. Griffith, Mrs. DeWitt Henry, Mrs. J. C. Loftin, Mrs. Craig Morgan, Mrs. Sam Smith, Mrs. L. N. MISS WANDA JEAN JOHNSON

Wanda Johnson Engaged To John Arthur Bolin

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Johnson of Natchitoches, former residents of Monroe, announce the engagement of their daughter, Wanda Jean to John Arthur Bolin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Bolin of Singer, La.

The wedding is planned to be an event of August 17 at the Trinity Baptist Church of Natchitoches. Rev. Carl Smith of Dallas, Texas will officiate.

Miss Charlotte Breedlove has been chosen to serve a maid of honor and bridesmaids will be Miss Martha Johnson and Miss Janet Butler. Serving as best man will be Leonard Hedrick of Baton Rouge and ushers will be Leslie Slaton and L. C. Lutz.

Miss Johnson is the granddaughter of Mrs. Gladys Ingram Sulzer and the great granddaughter of Mrs. Sallie Lindsay, both of West Monroe. She is a junior at Northwestern State College and a member of Kappa Delta Pi honorary educational society.

The prospective bridegroom is a graduate of Northwestern State College and is a member of Blue Key Men's honorary fraternity and Tri-Beta honorary fraternity.

Following their marriage the couple will reside in New Orleans, where Mr. Bolin will attend LSU Medical School and his bride will enroll at LSU-New Orleans.

A-Sharp Coterie Honors Senior, Cynthia Leigh

The home of Mrs. Hugh G. McDonald, 1106 Riverside, was scene of a recital-tea given by the A-Sharp Coterie to honor Miss Cynthia Leigh, senior member and president of the organization, on Saturday, May 11 at 4 p.m.

Mrs. McDonald and Mrs. Grayson Guthrie are counselors for the club, which is composed of 21 girls of high school age.

Hostesses for the afternoon were Misses Kay Armstrong, Jo Ann Patterson, Cheryl Sinclair and Gale Smith.

The program announced by Miss Leigh, included Fantasy in C Minor, Bach, played by Miss Kay Armstrong; Prelude, Chopin, by Miss Carol Genung; Minute Waltz, Chopin, by Miss Theresa Langley; Impromptu, Schubert, by Miss Karen Walker; Rustle of Spring, Sinding, by Miss Sheila Butler; Blue Moon, Rogers and Hart, played by Miss Betty Wimberley; Waltz, Chopin, by Miss Gayle Smith and Impromptu in A Minor, Schubert, by Miss Ann Hobson.

MRS. JAMES EDWARD KELLY

Kelly-Ticheli Vows Read In St. Joseph Church

Fan shaped arrangements of gladioli banked the altars of St. Joseph Catholic Church for the wedding of Miss Anna Marie Ticheli and James Edward Kelly, which was solemnized Saturday, May 4 at 3 p.m. Father Clark performed the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Paul Ticheli, 2509 Rambo Drive and Mr. Kelly is the son of Mrs. Margie Horne, 417 Hudson Lane, and Howard L. Kelly of Vallejo, Calif.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a full length gown of white Chantilly lace, fashioned with Sabrina neckline, long sleeves and bouffant skirt which terminated in a chapel train. Roses marked the back waistline and extended over the train. Her fingertip veil of illusion was attached to a crown etched with pearls and she carried a white orchid, encircled with stephanotis.

Mrs. Mona Mecom, sister of the bride and Mrs. Jean Holloway, served as matrons of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Sandy Ussery, Miss Jo Ann Conti, Miss Sandra Kelly, sister of the bridegroom; Miss Jolene Ticheli, sister of the bride, all of Monroe, and Miss Mona Russo, Camden, Ark. They wore identical gowns of powder blue silk chiffon, styled with full skirts and scoop necklines. Streamers fell to the hem of the waltz length skirts from rosettes at the back. Their headdresses were crowns of blue net and they wore matching blue shoes and white gloves and carried bouquets of long stemmed red roses. Each wore a strand of pearls.

Flower girls, dressed identically to the other attendants, were Mary Ticheli, sister of the bride and Elizabeth Conti. They were escorted by Richard Ticheli, brother of the bride, who served as ring bearer, and James Ticheli.

Edward L. Caldwell, uncle of the groom, served as best man and ushers were Buddy Embanato, Joseph Pitarro, Joey Coon, Harvey Ray Sweet and Anthony Anzelmo.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in St. Joseph's Hall. The blue and white theme of the wedding was carried out in the reception. Centering the bride's table was an arrangement of white gladioli, flanked by silver candelabra holding white tapers. The blue and white tiered wedding cake and silver punch bowl were at opposite ends of the table where Mrs. Connie Jungina, Mrs. Angie Embanto, Mrs. Lena Savana, Mrs. Dollie Sweet and Mrs. Annette Anzelmo presided. Miss Veronica Conti had charge of the guest book and rice bags were distributed by Miss Diane Ticheli, sister of the bride and Miss Maria Anzelmo.

For a wedding trip to Minden, Shreveport and Texas the bride wore a beige dress and coat ensemble, trimmed in tangerine with accessories to match. She also wore the orchid from her bouquet.

MR. AND MRS. RALPH B. BIRD JR.

Ralph Bird Jr., Bride Arrive From Germany

Home from a tour of overseas duty with the U. S. Marine Corps is Ralph B. Bird Jr., with his bride, the former Kirsten Von See of Bremerhaven, Lehe, Germany. She is the daughter of Mrs. Lisa Von See of Bremerhaven and Mr. Bird is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph B. Bird Sr., 132 Lomaland Drive, West Monroe.

The couple was married in Bremerhaven, where their attendants were Miss Waltraudt Becker and Robert Chisam.

Mr. Bird, a graduate of West Monroe high school, has just completed four years service with the Marine Corps and received his discharge prior to his arrival in Monroe. During his tour of foreign duty he visited 12 countries, among them Germany, Turkey, Greece and Spain.

Glenda Roberts To Wed George Foster Brown

Engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Glenda Lee Roberts to George Foster Brown, both of this city, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Roberts of Winnsboro. The future bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Brown, 3900 DeSiard, Monroe.

The wedding is planned for Sunday, July 14 in the First Methodist Church of Winnsboro. Rev. Fred Schwendimann will perform the ceremony.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Winnsboro high school, attended Northeast Louisiana State College and is presently attending Bish Mathis Institute in Monroe. She is the granddaughter of Mrs. Lula McDowell of Winnsboro.

Mr. Brown was graduated from Louisiana Polyteshnic Institute in Ruston in 1961 and is presently a senior in the School of Pharmacy at Northeast Louisiana State College.

Following their marriage the couple will reside in Monroe.

MISS GLENDA LEE ROBERTS

Graduate, Jeanne Rowan Honored At Gay Luncheon

Another in the gay round of parties honoring graduating seniors was the 1 o'clock luncheon given Tuesday, May 14 by Mrs. George Thomas Walker and Mrs. Jack C. Rowan to compliment the Rowan's daughter, Miss Jeanne Rowan, Neville High School senior.

The Walker home at 221 Chauvin was scene of the event, where appointments carried out the school colors of black and gold.

Guests were greeted in the foyer by the hostesses and Miss Rowan. For the occasion the honoree wore a spring frock of flax in shades of beige and avocado with a corsage of gold daisy chrysanthemums.

Luncheon was served buffet style to 30 guests who were seated at three tables, each of which was centered with a mortar board filled with gold daylilies, carrying out the black and gold theme.

Fort Miro DAR Ends Season With Installation

Fort Miro Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution installed new officers at the last meeting of the season at the Chapter House. The regent, Mrs. Richard D. Kellogg, called the meeting to order and the pledge of allegiance to the flag was led by Mrs. O. C. Roddey, chaplain.

Miss Carrie Dee Drew, program chairman, presented Mrs. John Salisbury, who introduced Robert Clay as speaker for the afternoon. Mr. Clay gave an informative address on communism and how it is making advances in our country. He warned that all genuine communists are deadly serious in their desire to destroy the United States.

Mrs. Eugene Flournoy and Mrs. Mabel Ratliff gave reports on the National DAR Conference which they attended in Washington D.C. recently.

Mrs. Harry Lemert gave the national defense report on resolutions: 1, that the National Society, DAR be alerted to oppose any action by any international body to gain control of public, private or religious school systems; and 2, resolved that the National Society oppose legislation which requires all American citizens to register privately owned firearms with the proper authorities and commend the program of the National Rifle Association and other simular programs designed to teach youth safe and efficient handling of firearms for healthful recreation and the defense of their homes and country should the need arise. She reported that a publication of the U.S. Office of Education entitled "A Federal Education Agency for the Future," reveals the plan of the federal government that under the guise of federal aid it is a means to gain control of education from its constitutionally based states rights.

Mrs. Lemert called attention to the project to celebrate the Fourth of July by spontaneous ringing of bells across the nation at 2 p.m.

Mrs. O. C. Roddey installed the new officers for 1963-65 who are regent, Miss Carrie Dee Drew; vice regent, Miss Harriet Boyle; recording secretary, Mrs. Henry Montgomery; corresponding secretary, Mrs. S. C. Strausser; treasurer, Mrs. John P. Zoll; assistant treasurer, Mrs. Culbert Lee; registrar, Mrs. W. E. Smith Jr., assistant registrar, Mrs. Duncan Cook and counselors, Mrs. R. D. Kellogg and Mrs. A. E. Montgomery.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served to Mrs. Herbert Steed, Mrs. J. S. Drew, Mrs. J. A. Salisbury, Mrs. Mabel Cole Ratliff, Mrs. Culbert Lee, Mrs. W. E. Smith Jr., Mrs. B. B. Handy, Mrs. J. E. Middleton, Miss Noel Standley, Mrs. Duncan Cook, Mrs. O. C. Roddey, Mrs. Minnie Boughton, Mrs. L. C. Slater, Mrs. R. L. Junod, Mrs. W. B. Matthews, Mrs. C. E. Give Yourself A 'Cool Foot' In White Shoes

This summer, try giving yourself a "cool foot." When summertime turns to simmer time, stay snowflake - cool and comfortable in frosty white leather shoes, suggests Shoe Fashion Service of Leather Industries of America.

Nothing is quite so effective in setting off the bright hues of summer apparel as white shoes. These are available in a variety of textures — smooth, grained or sueded leathers, as well as patent leather.

Whether they are perforated spectator pumps, smartly - styled walking shoes, elegant d'Orsay pumps, white leather shoes are right for any occasion — from lemonade on the lawn to formals at the country club. Set on slim leather soles, they give you a balanced walk and a graceful stance.

Accenting the striking effect of gleaming white leather are trims and underlays of color. Sometimes the color is used boldly, as in alternating strips of blue and red across the vamp. Sometimes it is applied discreetly in tiny saddles of black or deep brown across the toe.

The beauty part of the new white leathers, apart from their crisp appearance and cool comfort, is the ease with which they can be kept spotless. Grass stains can be wiped off patent leather with a damp cloth. Grained and polished leathers come clean with a minimum of effort applied to a moistened sponge and a dab of mild soap. To heighten the lustre, you can use a dab of neutral polish.

From a health standpoint, leather is unsurpassed for summer shoes. An animal skin, it "breathes" as no synthetic or other imitation can, thus assuring the active foot an ample supply of fresh, cool air. And because it is a natural product, it absorbs perspiration, allowing the feet to stay dry the long day through.

Fashion Flashes To Look For

. . . the furry look as a big fall fashion, in handbags, shoes and hats, often combined with leather, in vests and pullovers with knits.

. . . lace hats for summer frosting on the cake, in heavy guipure, in handkerchief print brims, as a toque with appliqued flowers.

. . . summer chiffon evening gowns, long and flowing, very simple, with high waists and necks, but dramatically low in back.

Alpha Omicron Pi Holds Annual Spring Formal

Guests entered the foyer under a white trellis entwined with ivy and topped with large Greek A.O. Pi letters. They registered at a white wrought iron table bearing a single red candle, encircled with red ribbon, capped by a matching rosebuds. Ivy and a red rose, the sorority's official flower, added to the effect. Adjacent was a small trellis with Dorothy Perkins roses.

Suspended from the ceiling was a hand made candelabra with silver prisms, flanked by fringed streamers forming an overhead canopy.

Magnolias banked the band stand in the center of which were the sorority's Greek letters. On either side were large butterflies decorated with rosebuds. Adding to the spring motif was an ivy covered white summer house against a background of magnolia branches and blossoms. The garden arrangement included a wrought iron seat and bird bath filled with rosebuds. Completing the setting was a rock garden with fountain in which magnolia blossoms floated, opposite a rose covered pedestal.

Tables where couples were seated were decorated with English ivy and small crossed flags of red and white on which Greek A.O. Pi letters were inscribed in gold.

Highlight of the evening was the presentation of an arm bouquet of crimson roses by Norma Jean Magee, sorority past president to Paula Lawrence, the new president. Ann-ellen Harter, a former president, gave similar bouquets to Miss Magee and Carol Baker, social chairman.

Miss Magee with her escort, Robert Vance, presented as favors of the evening to each sorority member a white coffee cup with A.O. Pi Spring Formal lettered in gold.

Keith Sigrest and Duane Schnendimann; Linda Truett and L. W. Simple New Fashions Call For Jewelry

Casual and classic lines in spring '63 fashions beg for jewelry. Simple but elegant necklines and sleeves inspire jewelry ideas to complement their lines.

Pins lead as a popular jewelry form due to their versatility. They can be worn on all types of fabric, on most apparel and changed about in every conceivable angle. Flap-pockets on spring suit jackets can be dramatized with single bold clips. A burnished gold pin touched with diamonds lends elegance to snap-on-and-off stoles featured on wool suits.

Collarless suits demand adornment; a scarf anchored with an impressive pin, or a choker necklace worn in combination with a pin set at the shoulder level. Coats, also collarless this season, yield to scarf-pin accents for soft flattery to the face.

THIRSTY PLANTS

Flowering plants — and those with lots of foliage — require more water than whose without blooms or with sparse foliage, says the Society of American Florists. By watering your plants faithfully while they are in bud and flowering, and providing light, they will last longer.

Summer's Carefree Fashions Born For Outdoor Activity

Fashion plays host to summer's carefree hours with clothes that beg to go hiking, boating, picnicing and loafing. Born to be outdoors, almost animate with anticipated activity, summer sportswear separates truly have the open air look that fashion hinted at in cooler weather.

Back wrap skirts play with a summer breeze; some are even reversible for summer's varied moods. Culottes bring chic comfort to ladylike cycling or tree climbing. And shifts, the newst love for ing. And shifts, the newst love for fashionable sidling, will be doing just that in town and country, on a boat or on a beach.

Tops for Jamaica shorts and mid calf pants are mostly pullovers while trim checked tuck-in shirts best complement culottes and skirts. Collars are definitely absent except tiny Bermuda ones on the shirts. Otherwise, necklines are round, boat or V.

Proving that fashion is not only smart but sensible — exciting against a summer tan and cool against a summer sun — white and its cousin ivory will reign in color importance. Either may stand beautifully alone or white may be combined with black, ivory with colors which are soft or crisp. Allover prints, too, find a natural niche in summer and are prettiest this year in soft tones and floral designs.

Marvelous for traveling about — or sitting about — cotton knits and double knits have fashion news to tell in combinations of stripes with solid colors as well as in prints with solids. And cotton coolly continues importantly through summer separates in duck, denim and pique.

PEELING ONIONS

It's easier to peel an onion if you first slice it, then slip off the bands of skin in thin circles.

Fox-Posey Wedding Plans Made

Wedding plans have been completed by Miss Linda Claire Posey of Crossett and her fiance, James Nicholas Fox of Paris.

The wedding will be solemnized Friday, June 7 in the First Methodist church of Crossett at 7:30 p.m. Officiating will be Rev. Clinton Atchley with nuptial music to be provided by Mrs. W. B. Anderson, organist and Mrs. Michael Smith, of Conway, soloist.

Sandy Riddle Honored At Graduate Party

In honor of her niece, Miss Sandy Riddle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David E. Riddle, Mrs. James Lawler entertained eight Neville high school graduates at luncheon Wednesday, May 15 in her home, 1013 Milton.

An arrangement of magnolias and black - eye Susans centered the luncheon table, where clever graduate cards marked places for the guests.

Graduates entertained along with Miss Riddle were Miss K. K. Kite, Miss Marcia Taylor, Miss Janet Nolan, Miss Sage Redding, Miss Gretchen LaFrance, Miss Daria Dunckelman and Miss Suzonne Moseley.

All Flowers Good Buys Now

Virtually all flowers are considered "good buys" in May and June because they are in abundant supply, reports the Society of American Florists. Among the flowers in plentiful supply are carnations, snapdragons, daisies, peonies, and roses.

To preserve the life of these and other cut flowers, recut their stem ends diagonally with a sharp knife; place stem ends in a containers of warm water; remove all foliage—including the thorns of roses—below the water line; and add a commercial flower preservative.

Should stem ends become soft or decayed, recut the stems diagonally to remove that portion. If any flowers look wilted, recut their stems and place them in very warm water.

Shaved Seal Blouse Is Far-Out Spring Fur Idea

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON

NEW YORK (AP) — Next time your husband rails about inflation, sigh and say you know just what he means. Tell him you saw a photograph of a simple little spring blouse that costs $500.

After that, anything else you may want to buy will seem dirt cheap. Trouble of it is, though you may really want to buy that simple little spring blouse.

It is simple in line and detail, yet it is hardly the thing you would slip on over your washable capri pants to wheel the dirty linen to the laundromat. There is a good reason for the astronomical price, though, which has nothing to do with the value of a dollar.

It is made of fur. Fur for spring? Sure.

It is not hot and hairy fur like those mink and sable slipover blouses Parish designer Hugh de Givenchy shaped up last season. It is cool, lightweight natural Alaska fur seal with the hairs shaved off. The resulting golden tone is flattering to so many things in your wardrobe that you don't really need many more blouses.

Still, it would probably be difficult to sell your husband on that money—saving virtue alone. Better tell him instead that the prosaic mink stole is as passee as pinafores, and that the far—out fur blouse is one of a number of new spring fur ideas designed to replace it.

MISS MARY EMILY SMITH

Couple Plans June Vows In Baton Rouge Church

Mr. and Mrs. George Daniel Smith of Baton Rouge, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Mary Emily Smith to John Jared Long. He is the son of Dr. and Mrs. J. Quitman Long of Baton Rouge, formerly of Farmerville.

The June 8 wedding will be celebrated at 7 p.m. in the First Methodist Church of Baton Rouge. A reception will follow in the church parlor.

Miss Smith will be graduated in May from Texas Women's University, where she is a member of Chaparral Literary - Social Club, Women Recreational Professional Club and Campus Government Association. She is listed in Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges.

The prospective bridegroom will be graduated in June from Louisiana Polytechnic Institute, where he is a member of the Institute of Electrical and Electronic Engineers, Louisiana Tech Golf team, and Louisiana Tech Engineers Association. He won the Chicago Tribute Award for outstanding freshman in AFROTC 1958-60.

Mr. Long is the grandson of Mrs. Alberta Taylor of Monroe and the nephew of Dalton Taylor and Lawrence Taylor, both of West Monroe and John C. Taylor of Calhoun.

White Walls Advised With Blue-Green

By BETTY PEPIS

Q: We are redoing a small dark den. For it we have a sofa in blue-green and a chest. What color do you suggest for walls, a chair, rug, draperies and accessories. Since we have a lot of blue and green in the house, we would like a different color for walls in the den.

A: White walls would go very well with the blue green sofa, so would pale yellow. Have draperies in same color as the walls. If walls are white, have a blue-green rug; if they are yellow have a yellow rug. In any case, have the chair and accessories in bright lemon yellow.

Q: We just decorated our living room, but it needs some bright colors to pick it up. Theme is oriental with black tables, Japanese prints and bamboo blinds for summer. Walls and sofa are moss green. Loveseat and contour chair are dark gray. A chair is persimmon. What color for rug, draperies and an occasional chair?

A: I think the rug should be moss green too. Have a print in a pale, moss green ground with gray and persimmon in the design for draperies and a slip cover for the occasional chair.

Q: I plan to redecorate my bedroom for the winter. I have a beige rug and Italian provincial furniture. Please tell me what color to use for walls, bedspread and draperies. I'd like orchid for walls if possible.

A: If you have pale orchid for walls, I suggest a print for the dust ruffle and draperies, one with a pale orchid ground and beige and white in design. Bedspread tops could be white, also lamps and have some accessories in yellow-green.

Q: I would like some help in decorating my living room which faces north. A three-piece sectional is brown, a recliner is beige and a Danish chair is covered in orange. Please suggest colors for walls, rug, draperies and accessories.

A: Would you like a pale sand color for walls, rug and draperies? It seems to me it would be the best background with your furniture. Have bright yellow and orange for accent colors.

MISS JO ANN GRIFFIN

Strong Color Fashionable For Houses

Color the house red, or green, or grape, inside and out! It's the fashion now to use color, strong color inside and out the house.

It's a complete reversal of the past 10 years with the all-white, all-beige look that predominated.

Among the new products colored up for interior use is Formica, the laminated plastic material that covers kitchen and bathroom counters by the millions throughout the country.

This firm has just introduced such tones as Midi, a clear, bright blue; lemon twist, persimmon, bittersweet, grape and emerald as well as chutney, sagebrush, concord, absinthe, heather and matador for the new high fashion look.

These colors are available to introduce a fresh note into the kitchen and bath areas which have all gotten pretty much the same look-alike decorating scheme, especially in Dallas.

Instead of the gold-spattered whites, champagnes, light green or yellow and tan linen patterns which have been the style leaders in the laminated surfacing field for years, clear, solid colors are newer-looking.

Use the lemon, blue or absinthe green colors to freshen up fruitwood cabinets; choose the orange or red or emerald or grape to contrast with the all-white look. Chutney or sagebrush with the gold-trimmed white cabinets will give a sophisticated new look in dressing rooms or dining areas.

These products tie in with the whole trend toward more emphasis on daring accent, clear color in all home furnishings.

Floating Swim Suit Is Newest Safety Measure

NEW YORK (AP) - A swim suit that floats is the newest safety aid for youngsters.

It is so buoyant that it holds a child safely on the surface of the water while he develops the confidence and the know-how to swim without it.

Contoured to the shape of the body, the suit can also be worn as protection by toddlers who go boating or fishing with their parents, instead of the bulky life jackets usually strapped to them.

Jerrold Robinson, swimming instructor and director of teenage boating activities in Mamaroneck, N.Y. for the past 12 years, developed the suit after learning of a new buoyancy principle which had been worked out in England.

Buoyancy in water is accomplished by trapping air, a lighter substance, explains Robinson, who calls himself "the original bug on water safety." However, air-filled containers, such as the usual swimming aids and water toys are bulky, unpliable, and leak easily.

Robinson uses a polyethylene foam substance with a cavity in the middle. As the swimmer moves the suit breathes, pumping air into it. But when the suit is wet the material automatically seals the air in until it dries again.

Actually the one-piece bib-type garment is an underliner which is not visible beneath a girl's bathing suit. The buoyant principle extends across and supports the whole front body, as if the child were lying on a sled.

Yet the beginning swimmer does not build undue reliance, Robinson claims, because the material is so light in weight and body-molding that the child is not conscious of having it on.

Thus far girls up to 6-years old are the only ones to benefit from Robinson's sinkproof suit because boys wear trunks. The buoyant suit must cover the entire front of the body to keep the child from flipping in the water.

Jo Ann Griffin Engaged To Wed Charles Enright

Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Griffin of Ferriday, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Jo Ann to Charles A. Enright, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Enright of Sicily Island.

The wedding will take place in San Diego, Calif., on Saturday, June 15.

Miss Griffin is a graduate of Ferriday high school and is now attending Northeast Louisiana State College in Monroe, where she is majoring in business administration.

The future bridegroom graduated from Sicily Island high school and attended Louisiana Tech in Ruston. He is now connected with the Medical Corps of the U.S. Navy, stationed at present at Camp Pendleton, California.

A PEDIGREE

The word "Sterling" on silver flatware accompanied by the name or mark of a reputable manufacturer, is its informative label. It means your flatware is made of a precious metal of the highest uniform standard of excellence and purity; 925 parts of pure silver to 75 parts of alloy, usually copper, for added strength.

Why Grow Old

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

The Ford Model Agency in New York City is fantastically successful. It is headed by Jerry and Eileen Ford with the latter acting as director-in-chief. Each year three to four thousand young women knock on the door of this agency because they wish to become models. Only a few of them make the grade.

I receive so many letters from my younger readers asking what it takes to become a model, that I thought it would be interesting to talk with Eileen Ford about this.

I learned that modeling is no picnic and that it is very hard work. But, it is very rewarding if you have what it takes and are willing to pay the price for success. I was told that it takes more than a pretty face and a lovely figure to become a successful model. It requires a certain type figure and face. For instance a bony structure is important.

10 POUNDS LIGHTER

A model must weigh about 10 pounds lighter than she considers to be her perfect weight in everyday life because the camera adds that much. The successful model leads a very healthy life. Any fatigue in her face or posture is highlighted by the camera. She knows that her hair, face and figure are no better than the care she gives them. She works hard all day long and therefore her social life is somewhat curtailed since late hours are not conductive to looking her best the next day.

Most models come straight from high school and some of them are college graduates. It is not necessary for them to attend a modeling school before applying to an agency. Actually, Eileen Ford prefers to train the girls hereself. However, she pointed out that this would not be true outside of New York City.

When asked what special personality traits are important for a model, Mrs. Ford replied, "She must have confidence. Belief in herself makes the difference between a good model and a half-baked model." Then she added—"But that is an essential for success in any walk of life!"

THREE CATEGORIES

First, juniors: These girls must wear size five to nine dresses. They should appear to be about 16 years old.

Then, high fashion: These are the supersleek sophisticated ones. Age doesn't matter too much. They may be right out of high school or college, but they must be the right height and type.

JUNIORS

Height—5 feet 5 inches to 5 feet 7 inches in stocking feet.

MISSES

Height—5 feet 7 inches to 5 feet 8 inches in stocking feet.

Bust—33 inches; waist 20-23 inches; hips 33-34 inches; average weight 106-110 pounds.

HIGH FASHION

Height 5 feet 8 inches to 5 feet 9½ inches in stocking feet.

Bust 33-34 inches; waist 22-24 inches; hips 33-35 inches; average weight 115 to 120 pounds.

Most models are through by the age of 31 although there are some exceptions.

Eileen Ford is an attractive, extremely alive, woman. She is so youthful looking that it is difficult to remember that she not only has a high powered career but also four children, ages ranging from 5 to 16.

Plans Announced For June Weddings

SHASHY-BARNARD

Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Barnard of Ruston announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Miss Alice Ione Barnard of Tampa, Fla., to Ronald G. Shashy, son of Mr. Abdo Shashy and the late Mr. Shashy of Ocala, Fla.

The wedding will take place June 15 in the St. Thomas Catholic Church of Ruston with Father Donard Paulus officiating.

Miss Barnard, a graduate of Ruston high school, received her B. S. degree in home economics from Louisiana Polytechnic Institute in June, 1962. She is presently employed as a home economist with a Tampa firm.

The future bridegroom received his education from Ocala high school and from the University of Florida with a bachelor's degree in industrial engineering. He is a member of Sigma Kappa Epsilon.

LAING-BERRY

Engagement of Miss Carolyn Berry to Arthur Ray Laing, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Laing, Harrisonburg is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Berry, also of Harrisonburg.

June 8 is the date chosen for the wedding which will be solemnized in Bird's Creek Baptist Church, Harrisonburg at 7:30 p.m.

The bride - elect is a graduate of Harrisonburg high school and attended Northeast Louisiana State College. She graduated from the Monroe School of Cosmotology as an instructor and is currently employed in Lake Charles.

Mr. Laing is a graduate of Harrisonburg high school and Louisiana Tech in Ruston where he received his BS degree in education. He is presently a member of the faculty at DeQuincy high school.

Following their marriage the couple will reside in West Lake.

GRUBBS-MAY

Announcement of the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Lynda May, daughter of Mrs. Charlie May of Oak Grove, to James R. (Bud) Grubbs Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Grubbs of McGehee, Ark., is made by her mother.

The wedding will be solemnized June 16 at 2:30 p.m. in the First Baptist Church of Oak Grove. Rev. J. D. Cheatham will officiate.

MARTIN-SEALY

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Fuller Sealy of Epps, announce the engagement of their daughter, Shirley Jeane to Billy Joe Martin. He is the son of Mrs. John Frank Martin and the late Mr. Martin of Tuscaloosa, Ala.

The wedding will be an event of June 8 in the Epps Methodist Church at 6 p.m.

Mink Newest In Fake Furs

After a great season on the outside, fake fur is taking cover, and just as it was beginning to look like mink.

A trade publication reports that a breakthrough has been accomplished with a mink-like lining fabric that is electronically treated to give it realistic stripings contoured to the shape of the coat. In addition, it imparts a feel somewhat like pelts.

The lining in black, white, light and dark brown, is expected to be used by producers of leather cloth, real fur, and even fake fur coats.

Knee Socks Invade City

AP Newsfeatures

Knee socks and walking shoes, as English as heavy tweed and as rustic as berry patches, are invading the city Two American designers, Bill Blass and David Kidd, encourage their use with woolen suits.

Cable - stitched knee highs in classic grays, camels, and black sport striped cuffs. Mohairs in brilliant yellow, blue-green or red are combined with less colorful clothes. Cashmere socks have an English rib. There are also tweed knee-highs for city streets.

New Rounder Styles Replace Pointed Shoes

AAH—you can almost hear women sigh with relief. Fashion has taken the painful point out of shoes, replacing it with new rounder, softer-toed styles. And, a galaxy of open shoes and barely-there sandals will win prominence on this year's spring-into-summer scene. Sage beauty authorities predict a change about face—a more beautifully at-ease look—which will be traced directly to cooler, more comfortable, less confining shoes.

New styles will bare toes, and not just their tips. Others free heels completely except for a tiny strap. Still more focus on sides and arches, parts of the feet never before exposed to the fashion eye.

This revolution in shoes calls for feet first beauty attention. Pumice to buff away dry skin, rough areas and pump bumps caused by closed shoes, apply hand lotion all-over, from toe tips up over heels. Here's an extra special bit of strategy: if closed shoes have caused little blue or red marks on the sides of your feet, camouflage them with make-up, slip on stockings and your new open sided shoes. No one will be the wiser.

On beaches, by pools, at patio parties many of the new sandals will be worn, sans stockings. And, the bare foot craze, which stems from the charming "little boy," sportive look, will be adopted by many of the young-at-heart beachcombers and sun fans. You've guessed it—a weekly pedicure is an absolute essential. Why not incorporate it with your beauty bath. Before climbing into the tub, clip toe nails straight across, smooth edges with nail file or emery board. While soaking in your bath, push back cuticle around toe nails.

After your bath apply nail polish in favorite shade. Choose new excitingly beautiful colors as your wonderful fashion color-tie between lips, fingertips and toes. Every shade is perfectly color-keyed to newest costume and play clothes shades

Popularity Of Doubleknits Continues Big

So overwhelming is the fashion wave of doubleknits that today just about every knit and sportswear house is making them. Doubleknits are one of the big success stories of recent seasons.

Doubleknits started in Europe, particularly in Switzerland, on a new kind of machine. This new kind of knit wouldn't sag, stretch or become eight inches longer if hung up in a closet. Unlike jerseys, which are tubular knits, doubleknits are warp knits done on a very wide, flat loom.

Wrinkle - resistant, packable, taking a beautiful shape, doubleknits could also be made into coats and suits, not just dresses. In this new field, many fabrics still come from Europe, but more and more are being knitted here, as the popularity of doubleknits continues to grow.

Doubleknits have just about buried boucle type knitted dresses, which clung so that only a perfect figure could wear them with out looking like a battleship fore and aft. Doubleknit dresses stay in the size and shape they were meant for.

Now doubleknit technique is being used on the synthetics, as well as for wool, thus bringing the knits into every price range. For fall, watch for the word "doubleknit" on knit fashions. It opens a new world of fashion satisfaction in knit clothes.

U.S. Ship Tries To Stop Vessel, Cubans Claim

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — A U.S. minelayer briefly blocked a Russian merchant ship as the Soviet vessel was approaching Cuba, Havana radio claimed Saturday.

The broadcast said the Russian ship involved in the alleged incident was the Cosmonaut, a vessel of 21,400 tons displacement described as the most modern in the Soviet merchant fleet.

Officers of the Cosmonaut, which reached Havana Friday, were quoted as saying that when the ship was near Cuba, "the North American boat withdrew, then tried to escort it (the Cosmonaut). This proved impossible because of the speed of the modern USSR vessel."

The broadcast did not give the exact position of the ships at the time. There was no suggestion that the incident took place in Cuba's territorial waters.

The Cosmonaut brought 61 large trucks, sulphur, newsprint, cotton, repair parts and other cargo to Cuba, the radio said.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Exhibits Colorful

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

Dr. John Wright, horticulture professor from Louisiana Tech, brought a very colorful, beautiful and informative program to the T. V. and Fifth District Garden Center last Wednesday. It was on artistic flower arranging demonstration.

Four outstanding designs were made by Dr. Wright, demonstrating the use of unusual materials, containers, and interpretive themes.

The first design, interpreting summertime (heat and coolness (combined), "sprit of Summer," was made by using one tall, curving white glad stalk with only two open florets in a tall absenth green colored usabata. Three glad leaves strengthened this line at the base in a vertical position, thus giving contrast of line, creating interest.

One thickly flowered stalk of white larkspur was placed within the line of these leaves —stimulating the transition of color (white) in the design. This was the cool part of the design. Then to add the focal interest (heat), two small white (edged with red) amaryllis were placed low. A filler of holly leaves placed low, finished this design. Very striking and very suitable for the summertime design. A good way to use one glad stalk.

MANY GLADS

The next design featured many glads of one color, a vivid red. These were massed together to form a symmetrical design. The tips of the glads curved gracefully enough to give a very pleasing touch and add interest and rhythm. The container for these glads was a lovely ivory finished compote, a copy of a period, with basket type etching. This design was finished by adding a filler to the back, slightly showing in several places in the design, of golden privet. It was in harmony, and a wonderful design when glads are plentiful.

An arrangement of the French period was created by Dr. Wright in a cherub container in antique ivory finish. Pink glads, larkspur in three shades of pink, formed the graceful triangle line (massed) symmetrically. Low in the design were placed two small white amaryllis stripped with red. These were accented by the placement of deep pink larkspur near the lower edge of the container. It would be very beautiful to view in an entrance hall or on the buffet in the dining room — or the tea table. The back of this design was finished with native fern. It could be filled in with the same flowers that were used for the front, thus making it a free - standing design which would make it more adaptable for a tea table.

UNUSUAL FLOWERS

The last design made by Dr. Wright contained the unusual flowers that make it a most outstanding arrangement. Tall spikes of the Fox lily (Eremurus). These were placed in a tiered vertical manner in a tall green footed container. The next placement within this vertical line was two tritomas (better known as Torch - Lily, Red-Hot-Poker, and Flame-Flower.) These were yellow with tips of orange. Next in line were placed three sunflowers (Sungold). These are very unusual, golden in color, resembling large dahlias. For filler Dr. Wright used the golden privet and native fern. This extended far to the lower right forming a triangle to the overall design. The back of this design was almost as attractive as the front since it was filled in with a cluster of the sunflowers.

This week the program will be brought by the Bastrop Garden Club of which Mrs. Emmet Barham is president. Be watching.

Of interest to many were the awards won at the beautiful flower show, "Wedding Bells," presented by The Garden Gate Garden Club of Winnsboro recently. The president of this club is Mrs. Si Willing.

Plan Ahead For Color

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

If you, Mrs. Homemaker, are interested in fall color in your landscape you should begin planting chrysanthemums. Our horticulturist specialist, Neil Odenwald, suggests you use new plants if you want top quality. The old ones may be divided by cutting away the outer shoots. You can have color for about 10 weeks if you select a series of early to late varieties to plant.

Select a well drained site with as much sun exposure as possible. It is best to grow them in a different spot each year or at least take the old plants out of the bed, and rework, fertilize and then reset in the same space. Set plants about two feet apart, or for more vigorous types an even wider spacing is better. Never set the plants less than a foot apart.

For more branching and flowers remove the top ¼ to ½ inch of the plant after it is established in the bed. This is usually seven to 14 days after planting.

The amount of fertilizer will vary with the soil types. In general, Neil recommends using three pounds of a complete fertilizer to 100 feet of growing area. On light soils, nitrate of soda will prove beneficial if applied at 1½ pounds per 100 square feet of growing area during mid summer.

COUNCIL MEMBERS

Home Demonstration members your president, Mrs. Fred Riser, asked me to remind you of the council meeting Friday at 10 a.m. in the Agricultural auditorium Mrs. Earnest Grubbs, vice president, has a good, good program outlined for you. So, support your council by your attendance.

POISON IVY

Each year many children, as well as adults, suffer painful experience of severe skin inflamation and water blisters from coming in contact with poison ivy. Neil Odenwald, our horticulturist, says that gardeners and campers would do well to learn to identify poison ivy. It may be in the form of a low shrub or a vine climbing into trees or fences. In climbing it is supported by aerial roots along the stems.

The leaves are in groups of three large shiny leaflets, each two to four inches long and pointed at the tip. Only one, three parted leaf grows from each joint on the stem.

The flowers and fruit are always in clusters on slender stems that originate in the axis of the leaves along the side of small branches.

CANDLE WAX

Many candles, however, are not dripless, and after the party is over, the hostess may find wax deposits on her best table cloth. These stains take special care, but with the right method they can be removed.

A THOUGHT

Wasting Acreage In Home

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

People bemoan that they haven't more space to spread their wings outdoors in summer, but forget to look at the "acreage" going to waste in their homes.

"You can convert indoor rooms to outdoor living — a porch, family room or recreation room to double your enjoyment of the outdoors," points out interior designer Erica Lemle of Hewitt, Long Island. "The trick is making the indoor area look like it is part of the outdoors, and vice versa."

INDOOR GARDEN

If this is accomplished you can entertain without fear of rain spoiling your barbecue. You just move into your indoor garden.

"I've done this in my own home and in many other homes for a very successful effect. The trick is in coordination, color and accessories," Miss Lemle says.

She suggests that the same flooring be used indoors and out. She often uses flagstone, but one could use brick or another flooring. Highly waxed flagstone makes an elegant flooring indoors for this purpose.

She chooses furniture that is compatible to both indoors and outdoors. That way you can use the indoor furniture outdoors in summer and the out door furniture in winter, if you like. The coordination of furniture helps to spread the "one big room" idea.

HELPS THEME

"I love plants in the indoor room and this helps the theme along. I use lots of plants in groups, individually or hanging types. I hang oxen yoke from the ceiling, and these hold copper pots of plants," she says.

Miss Lemle likes a hi-fi speaker hidden under a table indoors, so that the music may be heard softly outdoors.

"You can freshen the dreariest room with color, and I personally feel it is more important than the actual pieces of furniture used. People have definite reactions to color, and it can make them happy or sad."

She has done red, black and white rooms with red linen on walls, white leather furniture, white rug and white draperies trimmed with black burlap braid. She often uses inexpensive matchstick blinds at windows, spraying them in bright colors or black, and "they look terrific with white curtains," she says.

"Whatever you build or remodel should have large areas of glass," she advises, "linking the patio and indoor room to give the all-one-area illusion."

In one porch-converted area she used slipcovers of yellow, red and black, the same material used in Roman window shades, and its background color, yellow, was carried out in draperies.

ROOMS can be made to appear part of the outdoors and, in this case, a part of the outdoors, a porch, has been made into a room. A wall of windows overlooking a terrace has been retained, and shades of a material matching chair upholstery have been used. Main colors in the bright room are yellow, red and black.

Plant Mums Early For Fall Color

By NEIL ODENWALD
LSU Extension Horticulturist

Homeowners interested in having fall color should begin planting chrysanthemums. It is best to secure new plants if you want top quality chrysanthemums. However, if you have old plants, these may be divided.

Use only the outer growing shoots or stolons that form at the crown of old plants. Use a sharp knife to divide the plants. Chrysanthemums are popular because you can depend on this perennial to give as much as 10 weeks of color if a series of early to late varieties are planted.

SOIL TYPES

Select a well drained location with as much exposure to the sun as possible. Chrysanthemum plants will thrive on a wide range of soil types, but the soil should have a relatively high organic matter content. It's best to grow chrysanthemums in a different location from year to year or at least take the old plants out of the bed, rework, fertilize and then reset in the same location if necessary.

Space plants one to two feet apart. Some varieties will grow large and spread over a wide area. For the more vigorous types an even wider spacing will prove helpful. In no case would plants be spaced less than one foot apart.

Proper moisture conditions will likely have more to do with successful growing of chrysanthemums than any other factor. Often times the lack of sufficient water at certain times becomes important. Not enough water will slow or stop the growth of plants.

We're experiencing extremely dry conditions in many areas of the state and for top quality chrysanthemums extra watering is imperative. Thoroughly soak the bed each time water is applied. It is especially important for plenty of water to be available at the time the blooms are opening.

PLANT FOOD

Chrysanthemums respond readily to fertilizer. The amount will vary with the type of soil. For a general suggestion use three pounds of a complete commercial fertilizer or equivalent to 100 square feet of growing area. On light soils nitrate of soda will prove beneficial if applied at rates of 1½ pounds per 100 square feet of growing areas during midsummer.

If you want more branching with more flowers, the top one-fourth to one-half inch of the plant should be removed after the plants have become established in the bed. Usually this is about seven to 14 days after planting.

As with all plants, chrysanthemums are subject to a number of diseases and insects. Good cultural practices that result in healthy plants will aid in the prevention of a big loss as a result of insects and diseases. The Agricultural Extension bulletin on chrysanthemums gives a description of the pests which attack chrysanthemums. Ask your county agent or home agent for a copy of this bulletin. It also gives practical information on growing chrysanthemums for the yard.

The chrysanthemum has many possibilities for home use. Being a favorite for the fall harvest theme the chrysanthemum may prove to you to be a special enrichment for the landscape.

Ways Vary In Control Of Insects

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

Chemicals are the simplest way to control insects, but there are other ways if you have patience and know-how and are willing to take a chance.

One is climate, which is a natural means of control. For instance, corn maturing late in August or early September in New York is quite worm free. But corn planted earlier for an earlier harvest may be hit by the European borer. Harvest after Labor Day may mean corn infested by fall army worm and corn ear worm.

EXAMPLE

To illustrate, he said the pea aphid is destroyed by a fungus, the cabbage looper may be stopped by a virus, and milky disease causes a high mortality among Japanese bettle larvae.

More than 90 per cent of the insect species cause no damage because they are kept under control by natural agents, experts say.

Watch out for the birch leaf miner, which spoils the appearance of your decorative lawn birch in early summer. Hold a leaf from your tree to the sun. If you see a white spot an eighth of an inch in diameter, that's a newly hatched miner. Spray with lindane or malathion and repeat the application in 10 days.

A Washington State University researcher, Dr. Dan Tompkins, says he has worked out a way to short - circuit nature — by spraying gibberellic acid on rhubarb crowns (root clusters). The acid already has been used experimentally on ornamentals and potatoes.

The root clusters must lie dormant two or three years before sprouting, Dr. Tompkins explains. The cold weather of fall breaks the dormacy and the crowns are moved indoors around Christmas. The so-called "hot house" stalks are marketable in mid-January or late that month.

But spraying the crowns with the acid ends the dormancy early. The plants could be moved indoors in October, making Thanksgiving Day rhubarb available.

Rhubarb is a million dollar crop annually in the rich Western Washington valley. A lot of such "hot-house" rhubarb is raised for market in Washington and Michigan.

A double duty, indoor and outsdoor plant that thrives in the shade is the fuchsia. These flowering plants, which are available in many colors, like cool temperatures.

Last summer a friend built an outdoor rack for his collection of trailing fuchsias beside his house where a tree provided shade. He had a succession of blooms during the summer. A daily mist with cool water will encourage new growth.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Tender Rose Varieties

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

The south ought to be full of the more tender kinds of climbing roses which will not grow in the colder sections of the country without elaborate winter protection. Even extremely cold winters such as we have just undergone do not kill these tender climbers. They may be cut back a few feet, but whole parts of them which occasionally die back only leave room for new growth.

TEA ROSES

Almost all the old tea roses come in climbing forms which bloom heavily in spring and fall and all along in between. In the older parts of most southern towns, you can find whole porches covered with the pink-and-white Devoniensis, pink Maman Cochet, pink-tinged creamy yellow Marie van Houtte, the very fragrant golden yellow Perle des Jardins which blooms over and over again, the pink-and-buff Gloire de Dijon, cherry-red Reine Marie Henriette or the slightly lemon yellow tinted everblooming Snowbird.

In a few neighborhoods you may find a very striking climbing tea rose called Elie Beauvillain. It is another two-toned pink and yellow that seems to bloom continously. All of the teas are quite winter hardy. About the only thing that really defeats them is a heavy pruning by some pruning-happy rose lover. Of course, it does not harm them to cut out dead wood, but that is about all they need. If your teas were damaged this winter, nurse them back without much cutting.

HEAVILY SCENTED

The heavily scented old climbing musk rose can be bought from the old rose dealers in California. This one was immensely popular in the warmer countries like Persia, Spain and Abyssinia in centuries gone by. Even in Kew Gardens near London, it grows 20 to 30 feet high and rambles all through a tree. There are several forms of this wild Asiatic and Southern European climber. All of them are fragrant of "musk," but I have always noted that the single form has the strongest scent at Kew. This strange and fascinating scent seems to come in the morning and evening.

Belle Portugaise, the flesh pink climber which blooms so very profusely in spring is often killed back badly in colder sections of the south. Mme. Gregoire Staechelin reacts the same way in cold sections, but both are such breath-taking climbers as to be very worthwhile anywhere you have room for them.

In addition to the abovementioned climbers, of course, we are fortunate to be able to grow tender climbers like the white and helloy Banksias Marechal Niel and the superb evergreen Mermaid that blooms on and on after it is established. Hot weather is welcome to all of these climbers.

Planning on buying one or more power tools? Here are some things to keep in mind:

With both table and handsaws of the electric variety, the maximum size saw blade that can be used establishes the size of the machine for purposes of convenience. Thus, when you see or read an advertisement about an 8-inch machine, you know it refers to the maximum blade size.

With a portable electric drill, the size of the drill refers to the maximum diameter of the bit shank that can be held in the chuck. The quarter-inch drill is the usual home size and, with accessories, can perform an amazingly large amount of tasks around the house. The three - eights drill is for medium heavy purposes, the half-inch drill for heavy duty work.

SIMPLE MATTER

It's usually a simple matter to change the belts on a portable belt sander once you know how, but because different makes vary in this operation, have the dealer demonstrate the correct procedure for the particular machine you select.

The usefulness of a router is determined by the number and variety of bits and cutters on hand; when you buy one, therefore, make a careful selection of those applicable to the kind of work you will be doing.

Stamp News

To commemorate its 15th Independence Day, Israel issued a set of three new stamps depicting wild flowers, reports the Israel Philatelic Agency in America.

One value shows the white lily which is mentioned frequently in the Bible, especially in the Song of Solomon. Another value highlights the "tower of bells" which has rose pink blossoms. The highest value features the tulip which is found growing wild on the coastal plains of Israel.

Also issued within a few days of this set was the second part of the fourth airmail series — a set of three showing birds of that nation.

U. S. Postmaster General J. Edward Day announced that a commemorative stamp will be issued on Aug. 17 to honor the second anniversary of the "Alliance for Progress." There will be simultaneous stamp issuances by El Salvador, Costa Rica, Panama, Nicaragua, Honduras and the Canal Zone. The Alliance For Progress multiple stamp issue, initiated by the United States, is the first such endeavor by this country.

Belgium has issued three new stamps commemorating the 300th anniversary of the founding of the "Royal Brotherhood and Signet Ring of St. Michel," an organization devoted to fencing. The 1 franc depicts the "Musketeers" fencing. The 3 fr illustrates two fencers in action. The 6 fr features the coat of arms of the Royal Brotherhood.

Nicaragua has issued an airmail stamp commemorating the 150th anniversary of its first Declaration of Independence. Depicted on the stamps is a Liberty Bell. Also issued by Nicaragua were three stamps honoring the tricentenary of the death of St. Vincent De Paul and Ste. Louise De Marillac.

Somalia has honored its women in uniform by issuing a set of six new stamps entitled "Women's Auxiliary Forces." The designs show women in their work in the police department and the armed forces.

CAMERA Angles

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

The New York Photography Fair, now history, is rated as having been highly successful for the public, exhibitors and the show's management. But it was not perfect and here are some suggestions by a Monday - morning - quarterback which could improve any photo show anywhere.

When photo fans are invited to bring their cameras to any affair in order to take pictures, they should be given some preferential status or position to back up the invitation.

LARGE TURNOUT

More than 75,000 visitors were clocked at the New York gathering. Those who brought their cameras were often unable to use them before their vision was blocked by other spectators. But it wasn't the spectator's fault, since he was entitled to see the proceedings and he managed to get to the spot perhaps a few minutes earlier than the person with a camera.

Wouldn't it be a good idea to reserve a section for picture takers only? Such a section could be tiered so that nobody's picture - taking view would be blocked in front. And at large gatherings, somebody should be on hand with a light meter to provide exposure information or to assist camera fans with on-the-spot shooting problems.

Secondly, besides an unobstructed view, the matter of lighting is all important to camera fans. Each stage or area of activity should be illuminated so that it will help, not hinder, picture taking. At the New York show the center stage provided audience visibility on all four sides but the lighting was equally unprejudiced. No matter where a photo fan faced, some lights were glaring into his lens.

SOLUTION

A photo show runs at a dizzy pace once the doors are opened and the public streams in. Too often, there isn't enough advance planning or preparations made for the specific needs of scheduled speakers. This includes adequate or special lighting on the platform so the audience can see the speaker and what he's doing. And proper loud speaker arrangement so that people in the rear can hear everything. Sometimes a special lapel microphone is needed so that the speaker can use his hands for demonstrations or move around freely. And there should be someone present to introduce the speaker, giving his background and subject.

LIKE CIRCUS

The New York show was like a three - ring circus, so jam - packed with entertainment, personalities and lectures going on simultaneously that you were bound to miss more than what you could see. Perhaps careful spacing of individual programs could be made so that major attractions do not compete with each other at the same time. Special programs can be repeated to give viewers another chance to catch something they missed.

And what about these camera fans, always found at every photo show: 1. Those who set off a flash when taking a picture, no matter how brightly lit the area. 2. Those who snap away in a dimly lit corner — without a flash — with a box - type camera while remarking, "This'll look great in color!". 3. And those who shoot picture after picture of the same model or scene from the same spot without any change in the pose, camera angle or exposure setting. I'm sure it isn't you . . . or is it?

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

QUESTION: Can you tell me how to paint window sashes without getting paint all over the glass? I understand there is some perfect way to do this.

ANSWER. You have picked up some erroneous information. If there were a perfect way to do it, professional painters would use it — yet when window sashes are painted professionally, some paint always gets on the glass. However, a good painter will remove the excess paint from the glass, either at once or preferably after it has dried, in the latter instance with a single-edge razor blade or a double-edge blade encased in a holder.

There are several methods that help to keep paint from getting on the glass. One is to use a painting guide, a straightedge which is held on the glass while the brush is being used on the sash. The idea is that any paint which ordinarily would fall on the glass falls on the straightedge instead. It's a considerable help, but it takes great care to prevent a little paint from sneaking under the straightedge now and then.

Another method is to run tape all around the edges of the glass before you begin painting. This is also effective, but takes quite a bit of time if a lot of windows must be painted. Actually, no matter which method is used, you have to work carefully. And you can do this better by using a small sash brush.

CONSERVATIVES

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — In a survey of Baptist and Methodist clergymen in Oregon, Dr. Benton Johnson, University of Oregon sociologist, has turned up a striking parallel between theological conservatism and political conservatism.

He said he found nearly 100 per cent of the Baptists were theologically conservative, while 60 per cent of the Methodists were theologically liberal, and that the overwhelming majority of the theological conservatives carried over their religious beliefs into the political arena. Ninety per cent listed themselves as politically conservative and supporters of the Republican Party.

Theological liberals followed a less fixed pattern, he said, noting that while 87 per cent said they were politically liberal, only 48 per cent said they supported the Democratic Party.

CURTAIN CALL

Rehearsals and set construction for "The Miracle Worker" are both in progress. Executive director Richard M. Clark is devoting particular attention to the long, difficult scenes between Annie Sullivan and Helen Keller, played by Feejee Carmack and Martha Maxwell. Broadway audiences were deeply stirred by this battle of wills between the dedicated young teacher and her little deaf - blind pupil.

"The Miracle Worker" set is complicated because one structure must serve for a variety of scenes. Richard and technical director Ray Lucero are building a two - story set in which the upper floor is cantilevered out from a central core. Ron Robinson is working with them.

SENIOR TALENT

The graduating class at Neville High School includes 10 seniors who have lent their talents to Little Theatre. Appearing onstage, backstage or in the orchestra pit have been Wade Brisbin, Edmund Burton, Frank Eason Jr., Jan Evans, Gerrie Frasier, George Hargus Jr., Gretchen LaFrance, Greg Moore, Ronnie Smith and Bobby Taylor. Perhaps current graduates of other high schools could be added to the list.

One of our most active participants from the high school ranks, Juanita Gentry, is to be married in a few weeks. In addition to much backstage work, Juanita appeared in "Teahouse Of The August Moon," and "Annie Get Your Gun." The father of the bride, of course, is Horace Gentry who has just completed a role in "The Best Man."

Patron member A. V. Breard has returned from a business trip to New York where he saw "Never Too Late," which he thoroughly enjoyed, and "Hot Spot," the Judy Holliday vehicle, on which he reports less warmly.

SUCCESS

According to all reports, the Phi Beta theatre supper was an artistic and gastronomical success. Gail Shoudy and Mike Parkerson rewarded the efforts of their director, Jerilyn Gilstrap, with some high style scenes from "The Fourposter" which pleased the some 50 guests.

Phi Beta also passed out some awards to Little Theatre people at Honors Day at Northeast last week. Francis Yeldell was honored for outstanding contributions to school and community, Shirley Allen as best member, and Janice Hattway as best pledge. Jesters recognized Mike Parkerson as best actor, Bill Wells as best supporting actor and Murray Burford as best supporting actress. These students have all worked in many Little Theatre productions.

We pass along some information on the state of the drama on the Monterey Peninsula in California where the total population is roughly comparable with Monroe - West Monroe. Quite a few Monroyans have been stationed there at one time or another, either at Ford Ord or the famous Army Language School.

THEATRE GROUPS

Three "little theatre" groups on the peninsula are currently presenting "A Taste Of Honey," "The Sound Of Murder" and a melodrama, "Shaun Aroon." The Fort Ord Little Theatre, an outgrowth of a service club, is in rehearsal for "Guys and Dolls," while Monterey Peninsula College is about to open Anouilh's "Antigone."

The well - known Monterey Wharf Players are out of action at the moment, but perhaps will resume during the summer months when as many as seven theatres compete for tourist patronage. Monterey, Carmel, and Pebble Beach form an artistic and cultural center favored by vacationers, so it is no wonder the theatre thrives there.

Of particular interest to us, the Golden Bough Circle Threatre and Fresno State College are embarking on their second annual joint workshop in arena stage production in Carmel from June 17 to September 3. It sounds much like the summer workshop of Northeast State College and the Little Theatre of Monroe, which is soon to enter its third year.

URGES CHANGE

HUELVA, Spain (AP) — Spanish law should be changed to provide greater religious freedom, says Catholic Bishop Pedro Cantero. Citing ecumenical directives of the Second Vatican Council and new conditions in the world, he said there also must be a change of Spain's application of church principles "in relation to freedom of conscience."

Mother Admits Mutilating Son In New Jersey

HACKENSACK, N. J. (UPI)—The mother of a seven-year-old boy whose mutilated body was found in a woods about a mile from his home has confessed to killing the youngster, police said Saturday.

Mrs. Phillis Rosay, 28, of Palisades Park, N. J., was taken to Bergen County courthouse here for arraignment before Judge Benjamin Gitanti. He ordered her returned to Bergen Pines Hospital for further psychiatric tests pending a court hearing.

Little Jeffrey Rosay disappeared from his home May 7 and his body, badly mutilated, was found the next day about a mile away.

His mother at first told police the youngster had left at noon to go to school but never got there. She later changed her story, police said, and said she had gone to the store in the morning and when she returned Jeffrey was gone.

Mrs. Rosay entered the psychiatric ward of Bergen Pines County Hospital last Sunday as a voluntary patient.

Weightless Water Drops 'Annoying'

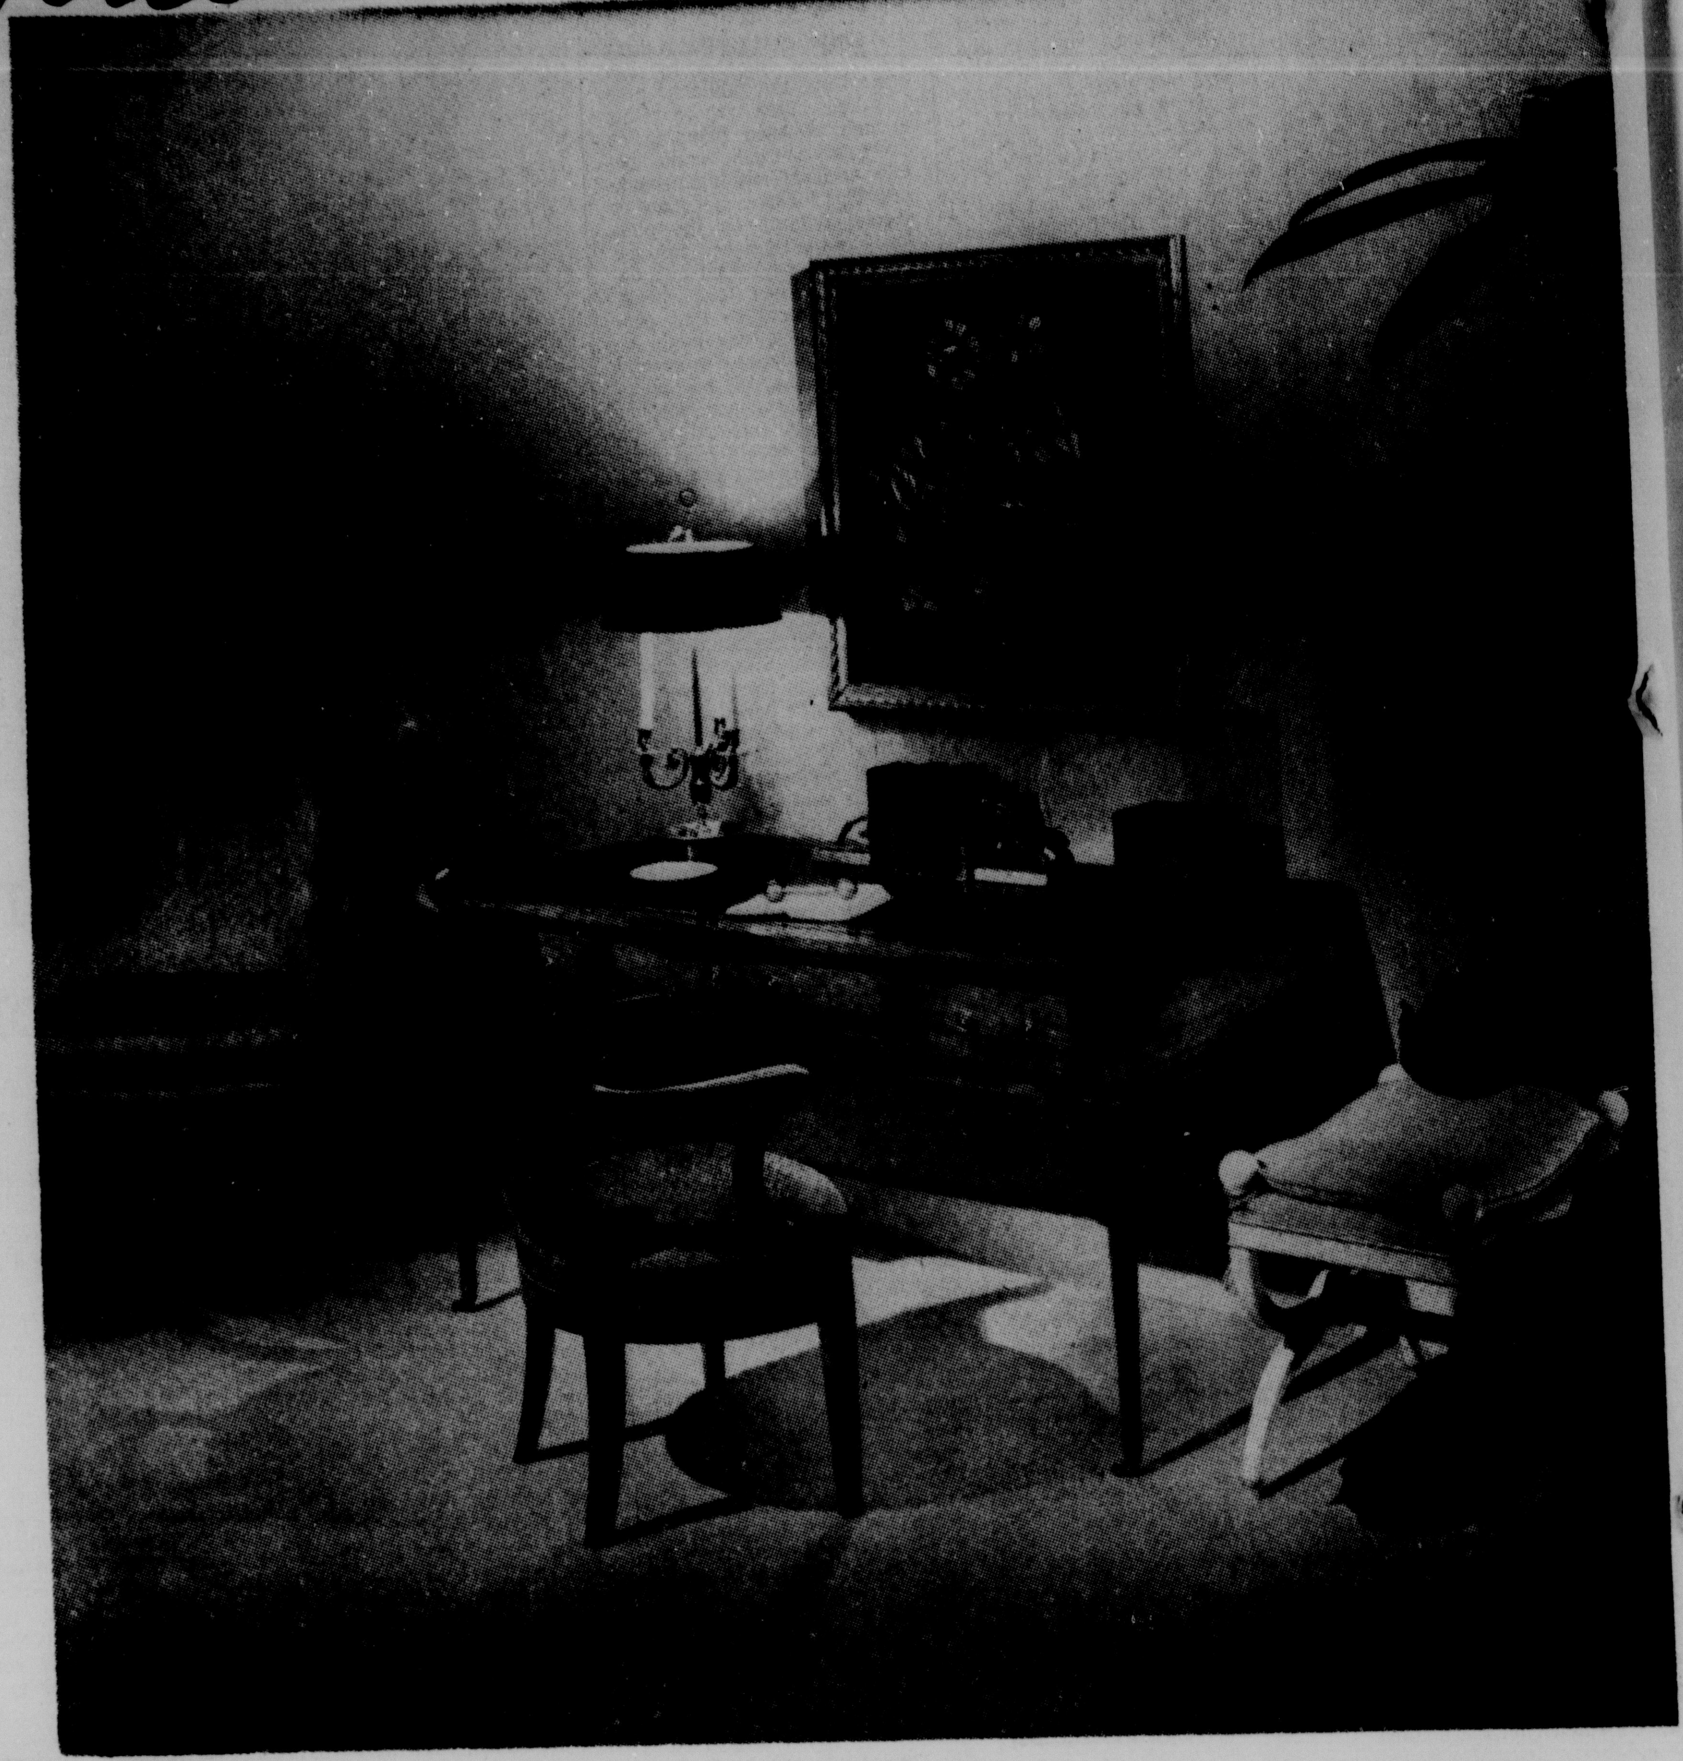
ABOARD USS KEARSARGE (AP)—Weightless drops of water bounced around in astronaut Gordon Cooper's capsule, it was disclosed Saturday.

The drops leaked from Cooper's drinking flask. They were considered annoying rather than dangerous although they sometimes obscured the instrument panel.

Cooper used a hankerchief to catch the water and wipe his face. He suggested future spacemen carry spare handkerchiefs.

AT Trend House

THE ESSENCE OF ELEGANCE



BAKER FOR THOSE WHO APPRECIATE THE FINEST

It is fitting that you find distinguished Baker furniture at Trend House where so much emphasis is put on fine quality, good taste and genuine value. To say that Baker is elegant is an understatement. Knowledgeable people recognize, at first glance. Baker's selection of fine woods and unequalled finishes contributed by the skilled hands of the finest master craftsman. In an age that is turning more and more to the temptations and short-cuts of mass production, it's reassuring to recognize Baker as one of the few manufacturers who refuse to sacrifice quality materials and superlative hand workmanship for price alone. That is why their products are so widely accepted by connoisseurs of fine furniture. Come in tomorrow and see this lovely furniture... remember, there is no substitute for quality, and it costs no more at Trend House.

SEEKS BUILDUP OF FORCES

McNamara May Resort To Gentle Prod At NATO

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, who has spoken bluntly at past North Atlantic Treaty Organization meetings, is likely to resort to a gentle prod this week in urging the Alliance's member nations to build up their conventional forces.

Authoritative sources said Saturday they expect McNamara to use a "gentle reminder rather than a sledgehammer."

It was emphasized that the U.S. objective has not changed, but the tactics probably will be different.

"They know our position by this time," one informed official said.

It was understood that McNamara has prepared a briefer than usual presentation for the NATO ministers conference in Ottawa May 22-24.

Sources familiar with McNamara's thinking said he expects the chief accomplishment of the meeting to be approval of a new command structure for NATO's striking power.

Pentagon authorities acknowledge that this move will add little real power beyond what already is present—unlike the proposed force of some 200 Polaris missiles mounted in surface ships manned by mixed crew or NATO nationals.

It will, however, give the nonnuclear countries of NATO more direct participation in and knowledge of plans relating to use of nuclear weapons in event of war.

Conversely, authorities said, it may give the European more assurance that the United States plans no nuclear disengagement from the Continent.

An important feature of the new structure is that it will send representatives to U.S. Strategic Air Force headquarters in Omaha, Neb., to mesh targeting for the European force with that of SAC and other U.S. nuclear striking elements.

The Ottawa meeting is expected to approve creation of a deputy to Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, supreme Allied commander in Europe. This deputy would take charge of the Allied nuclear force.

There had been talk this slot would be filled by a Briton. But it now appears he will be a senior officer from the Netherlands, with the post rotated among the participating members periodically.

Included in the new organization will be the three U.S. Polaris submarines the United States already has committed to NATO, Britain's 150 Vulcan bombers and nuclear capable fighter-bombers which she made. The United States still will control the atomic weapons assigned to striking elements of the nonnuclear NATO countries.

The new structure may not be given a name, such as the proposed "inter-Allied" title, to avoid ruffling the French.

It was understood the French are amenable to including their two fighter-bomber squadrons in Germany—and already assigned to NATO—as part of the organization which will be tied more directly under Lemnitzer.

But it was believed they would balk at anything that might suggest they are yielding on their refusal to become part of a mixed national force, such as the proposed surface Polaris missile ships.

In the interests of Allied unity the final communique winding up the NATO ministers' meeting will be in low key, it was reported.

5 Are Hurt In Collision

Five persons were injured, one seriously, in a two-car collision on U. S. Highway 165 south of Monroe Saturday night.

Henry E. Wells, 35, of Columbia Rd., Monroe, suffered serious injuries when he was pinned in a car driven by Jack S. James, 42, of 712 Plum St. Wells was rushed to St. Francis hospital for emergency treatment, where the extent of his injuries were unknown late Saturday. James was treated at St. Francis for bruises and lacerations.

Occupants of the second car involved in the crash were rushed to Glenwood Hospital for treatment by Hixson ambulance. Edward L. Jackson, 37, of 201 Ada St., West Monroe, sustained minor lacerations, while his wife, Lois Jackson, 45, sustained a dislocated knee and their nine-year-old daughter, Karen, suffered a broken nose.

Investigating state police said the accident occurred shortly before 8 p.m. on U.S. 165, just south of Monroe. James told officers that he was driving south, he applied his brakes to avoid hitting another vehicle, his car skidded into the northbound lane and was struck by Jackson. Jackson's vehicle hit James' car in the right door, pinning Wells until help could be summoned to extricate him. No charges had been filed late Saturday, pending completion of the investigation by state troopers.

Other activities were quiet in the Twin Cities, with the Monroe department probing an attempt to burglarize the safe at Carver Housing project on Texas Avenue. Entrance to the safe was not gained.

Attorney Of N.O. Elected Trustee For University

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Lester E. Kabacoff, New Orleans attorney, has been elected an associate trustee of the University of Pennsylvania, it was learned here Saturday.

Kabacoff, a 1934 graduate of the university's college of arts and sciences and a 1937 law school alumnus, also has been named chairman of the Gulf states division of the national council of the university. The division comprises Louisiana, Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas, Alabama and Georgia.

NEW MISS CROSSETT is Susan Marie Etheridge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Etheridge Jr. First runnerup was Carol White and second runnerup was Suzanne Elizabeth Lawson.

Yugoslavian Head Lashes At Red China

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — In a scathing attack on Red China, President Tito said Saturday Yugoslavia will go on seeking good relations with the West and will fully support Soviet Premier Khrushchev's policy of peaceful coexistence.

Tito called the Communist Chinese war-seeking Trotskyites and charged that their errors in trying to build China's economy were mountainous.

Referring to a meeting between the Chinese and Russians in Moscow on July 7 to iron out ideological differences, Tito issued a warning that any compromise at the expense of Yugoslavia would greatly harm the Communist movement.

Yugoslavia has been Peking's bitterest target in its feud with the Kremlin on how Communists should seek world supremacy. Tito has been branded repeatedly as a traitor to the Communist cause because he has sought ties with the West.

By assailing Yugoslavia, the Chinese fired indirect blasts at the Kremlin, which under Khrushchev has been following the line that communism will eventually win out over the West by peaceful means, especially in economic fields.

Dominican May Press Haitians For Sanctions

SANTO DOMINGO, D.R. (UPI) — The Dominican government probably will press for diplomatic and economic sanctions against Haiti if necessary to get three refugees out of the neighboring Negro republic, informed sources said Saturday.

The sources said President Juan Bosch's government probably would make the move if the Organization of American States (OAS) investigators leave Haiti without having secured the release of the three men.

Bosch made it clear Friday he considers the three just as important as the 20 that Haitian President Francois Duvalier already has let out of the country. All had taken refuge in the Dominican embassy in Port au Prince.

The remaining three are Lt. Francois Benoit, Lt. Col. Pierre Alvarez and Maj. Roger Holly who have been cashiered out of Duvalier's army.

A two-thirds vote in the OAS—12 of the 18 nations, excluding Haiti and the Dominican Republic—would be needed for approval of sanctions.

The United States has suspended diplomatic contacts with the Haitian government, although the U.S. ambassador has remained in Port au Prince.

Informed sources said the Dominican government is thinking of the same type of sanctions against Haiti that were applied to the Dominican Republic under the Trujillo dictatorship.

Former Trujillo officials and relatives are living in Haiti, according to authoritative sources here.

They said the OAS investigators were told before leaving for Port au Prince that former Santo Domingo Police Chief Arzeno Colon is the moving force behind Duvalier's Tonton Macoute secret police.

to deliver electricity wherever people need it

Over the years, America's investor-owned, taxpaying electric light and power companies, including the five companies that serve Louisiana, have interconnected their power lines to form what engineers call transmission grids. A grid lets one company instantaneously send electric power into the lines of another company.

Thanks to grids, electric companies are "pooling" their power supplies. Such pooling is an added guarantee of good service, efficiency and low cost wherever investor-owned electric utility companies serve.

DO YOU KNOW . . .

That 12 of the federally-financed rural electric co-ops in Louisiana have asked the Rural Electrification Administration (REA) in Washington for a 'generating and transmission'' (G&T) loan of $53,353,000 to build two electric generating plants and 1,777 miles of transmission lines? These tax-financed facilities would not bring electricity to a single Louisianian to whom electricity is not now available. This 2% cut-rate loan would cost American taxpayers about $1 million a year. Also, federal, state and local governments would lose tax revenues that all taxpayers would have to replace.

The Answers To Life's 4 BIG QUESTIONS

Man has split the atom and aims rockets at the moon. He compounds a drug that halts an epidemic . . . invents missiles that can destroy a city oceans away. He finds ways to make men grow taller . . . live longer . . . enjoy comforts once not even imagined.

But with all our gains in learning . . . all our progress in science . . . life's four most important questions remain to be answered in the mind and conscience of each individual.

Sooner or later, every man must ask himself: What am I? Whence have I come? Why am I here? Where am I bound?

These, of course, are questions which the physical sciences do not even pretend to answer, for such questions deal with something beyond the physical . . . something that cannot be seen or heard or touched—man's spiritual soul.

As with people of other faiths, Catholics also instinctively ask themselves these four most vital of all questions. And, like anyone else, they would be lost in bewilderment and fear if they depended on their own reasoning alone for the answers. But the answers become clear . . . and convincing to their human understanding . . . in the light of the teachings of Jesus Christ.

With only reason to guide us we might conclude, as some do, that man is merely a creature with a higher IQ than other creatures. We might conduct our lives, as some do, with the evident conviction that this life is the only one we will live, and that we should get all possible material pleasures from it.

We might contend, as some do, that we are merely a composition of chemical elements and not the product of divine creation, and that we owe no obligation to a Creator.

But if reason alone cannot answer these four most perplexing questions, it should at least warn us that these questions do demand an answer. Catholics find the consolation of completely credible answers in the age-old teachings of the Church, expounded by Our Lord and perpetuated by the Apostles and their successors.

Even though you may not want to be a Catholic, it will be a help and inspiration to you to understand what the Catholic Church teaches and what Catholics believe concerning man's origin, purpose and destiny. It will help you, we are sure, to answer satisfactorily in your own mind, the questions: What am I? Whence have I come? Why am I here? Where am I bound?

Death occurred Wednesday in a Jena nursing home.

Survivors include one son, Clarence W. Wells, of Carlsbad, N.M.; two brothers, Jeff Wells of Jennings and Jess Wells or Urania; a sister, Mrs. Allen Bronson of Mangham and two grandchildren. He is also survived by several nieces and nephews.

Pallbearers were: Leon Dearmon, Odell Tam, Dewey Mosely, Max Fogleman, M. P. Kees and Lewis Tarver.

NO PATERNITY TEST

LONDON (AP) — The High Court of Appeal has ruled a woman cannot be compelled under British law to submit to a test on paternity of her child.

The decision came in the case of Keith Webley, 21, who sued his wife Rita, 21, for a dissolution of marriage on the ground that she was pregnant by another man when they were wed and demanded a blood test which she refused. The daughter now is 13 months old.

EXPERIMENTS IN SPACE FLIGHT

Cooper's Job Is Completed; Now It's The Scientists' Job To End

By JULES LOH
AP Newsfeatures Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —Gordon Cooper is enjoying the sort of adulation America reserves for very special people, and space experts here believe he deserves every hoarse hurrah. He has done his job well.

Now it's their turn.

Cooper, whom his fellow astronaut Alan B. Shepard Jr. referred to as a human computer, was sent aloft in Faith 7 to gather the enormous amount of medical data scientists must have before man takes his next step into space.

That will be in about 18 months when pilots of two-man Gemini spacecraft will remain in orbit for up to two weeks, rendezvous with other spacemen and perhaps even step outside and drift alongside their spaceships.

Essentially Cooper was an orbiting medical laboratory. Gadgets were attached to his body so doctors on the ground could keep track of his heartbeat, respiration, temperature and other physiological factors as he floated in the eerie world of weightlessness.

As soon as he landed—even before he wriggled out of the capsule—physicians aboard the recovery ship put him through detailed medical tests to find out, for example, how quickly his heart could readjust to pumping blood against the pull of gravity.

From the initial tests, and from his general appearance, doctors said Cooper was no different, medically speaking, after 22 orbits than Astronaut Walter M. Schirra Jr. was after six.

But the astronaut was more than just a human guinea pig to float about and have his temperature taken. He also had to perform a full schedule of experiments and make a variety of observations—all aimed toward the Gemini program.

For example, he had to release a flashing light from his spacecraft, judge its distance from him as it orbited nearby, and photograph it. From the photographs scientists will be able to tell how close he came in his judgement of distances in space, an important item for spacemen attempting a rendezvous.

Cooper wasn't able to perform all the experiments assigned him however.

He was supposed to eject a balloon and trail it along behind on a string to see how taut the string became, testing the amount of drag in space. But the device that was supposed to eject the balloon didn't work.

The astronaut also neglected to take some photographs he had hoped to make during his next-to-last orbit—he was too busy preparing for his breathtaking do-it-yourself landing.

The experiments Cooper did perform have not yet been analyzed. That job will take weeks, or months in some cases.

From liftoff to insertion into orbit and from time to time during the first orbit, a television camera took pictures of Cooper at the controls. Most of the pictures were poor; some very good. The experiment proved that television can be transmitted from space, allowing ground technicians to monitor visually a space vehicle.

On the second and fifth orbits Cooper was supposed to exercise with an elastic cord. He hasn't reported, at least to the public, whether he did or not. On prolonged flights doctors feel some sort of exercise would be necessary.

During the third orbit Cooper released his 5.75-inch diameter sphere with its two flashing lights. Then he looked outside and could not find it. Finally he saw it on his fourth orbit, and again on his fifth. He photographed it both times. This was the distance judgment test.

Near the end of his fourth orbit Cooper turned off his cabinet coolant system and didn't turn it on again until the 21st orbit. The purpose was to find out how much heat escaped into the frigid air of space. Apparently little or none did. This would be important on lengthy flights, allowing the passengers to conserve electricity used for heating.

On the sixth orbit the astronaut was supposed to look for a huge light bulb—3 million candlepower —glowing for three minutes in the village of Bloemfontein, South Africa. He saw it, and thereby proved such beacons could be used to guide men back from moon trips.

Cooper stargazed during the nighttime portion of his seventh orbit. There's no twinkle to the stars when viewed from above the light-dispersing atmosphere, and learning to recognize them in this naked condition will benefit future space navigators.

On his eighth orbit Cooper got his spacecraft in trim so he could knock off work for a while. That he did, snoozing during the ninth to the 14th orbits.

Even while sleeping, he was a valuable component of the MA-9 space mission. Doctors continuously checked his pulse, temperature, and so forth.

During the 16th orbit Cooper was busy with his cameras; he had three of them aboard with him.

He had to photograph the zodiacal light, airglow layers on the horizon and other celestial phenomena. The pictures will be used by weathermen and other scientists for a variety of purposes.

Southeast of Cuba, during the 19th orbit, Cooper was supposed to photograph the moon and horizon in another lunar navigation experiment. Cooper didn't say whether he performed this chore or not.

Also during the 19th orbit he poked from his capsule a 28-foot high frequency radio antenna to be used on the Gemini spacecraft. The antenna was given a communications check, but the results haven't been reported publicly.

Those who put him up there said his was a textbook flight. Now it's their job to read the textbook.

AMERICAN INTEREST

Latin Business Spurred By Tax

By FRANCIS L. McCARTHY
UPI Latin American Editor

Briefly, and of major import, Uncle Sam is working out a program for giving a 30 per cent tax credit on such investments. Other similar incentives also are envisaged.

The first area south of the border to benefit will be the countries of the Caribbean and Central America, minus Cuba.

Economically speaking, four years of Fidel Castro rule have driven Cuba into the ground. Sugar production, long a key index to Cuban wealth, this year will not exceed 4-million tons, lowest since the end of World War II. In pre-Castro times, the U.S. alone purchased almost this much sugar from its neighbor.

PROSPERITY BECONS

In Central America, however, and, specifically, Nicaragua, prosperity beckons. Westinghouse Electric International with financial aid from the newly-formed Central American Bank for Economic Integration has announced the first link there in a chain of Central American electrical appliance and equipment plants.

The first unit will be a $2-million refrigerator plant in Nicaragua. The bank, which will channel U.S. development aid to the five Central American nations also will earmark about $6-million for new electrical plants in Guatemala, Honduras, Costa Rica and El Salvador.

The bank estimates the value of external aid needed to finance Central American development exceeds $140-million.

In Central America, five republics—Guatemala, Costa Rica, El Salvador, Honduras and Nicaragua—have closed ranks in a Central American common market which already has eliminated tariffs on 70 per cent of the region's internal trade.

By 1966, according to schedule, they will have eliminated all internal tariffs and erected a common outside tariff wall.

Esso and Shell, for example, are erecting a $25-million refinery in El Savador. Phelps Dodge Corp. has plans for a $4-million copper wire factory in the same country.

Hercules Powder and Pennsalt Chemicals Corp. plan to make caustic soda, chlorine and insecticides in Nicaragua. General Mills, Inc. plans a flour mill in the same country.

California Standard is building a refinery in Guatemala. General Tire and Rubber already has a plant there. Evans products plans a pilot plant for plywood in Honduras.

Sears Roebuck has plans to use its Costa Rican operation as a springboard into all of the Central American capitals.

American Broadcasting Company, with local capital, has set up Regional TV network using taped programs. It plans live telecasts throughout the area within three years.

Dow Chemical plans a chemical plant in Panama. Continental Oil, national bulk carriers and British Ultramar already have investments there.

Of the sharp gains in trade and economic benefits in Central America through the economic integration achieved so far, Felipe Herrera, president of the Inter-American Development Bank has this to say:

"There has been a dramatic increase in intra-regional trade. In 1962, it accounted for about 10 per cent of total imports as compared to only 3.6 per cent 10 years earlier.

"Central America is moving ahead at an ever-increasing speed towards the establishment in this decade of an economic community in which perfect mobility of labor, capital and products will take place and payments will be made in a common currency.

"It is safe to expect a common economic policy of financial, social, fiscal and foreign trade affairs . . ."

German Party Faces First Test Since Adenauer

HANNOVER, Germany (AP)— West Germany's dominant Christian Democratic party Sunday faces its first test at the polls since it chose Economics Minister Ludwig Erhard to become chancellor when Konrad Adenauer retires.

The test comes in the election of a new state legislature in Lower Saxony, which the opposition Socialists and their coalition allies have controlled for years.

The Christian Democrats hope the people's regard for Erhard, acclaimed for his guidance of West Germany to economic prosperity from the ruins of World War II, will help to check a trend to the left visible in state elections for several years.

Since 1961 eight consecutive elections in other German states have shown a steady Socialist gain, mostly at the expense of the Christian Democrats. And pre-election polls bolstered the Socialists' optimism.

But the Christian Democrats feel they have a better chance since Erhard won the party's backing for the chancellorship Adenauer is to give up this fall.

WANT-AD WONDERS Trade Mark

Want Ad Started Clark Gable's Career

In 1922, when Clark Gable was just 21 years old and a struggling young actor, he took a job as a Classified advertising solicitor for the Portland Oregonian, at $15 a week. Being associated with want ads proved to be a key spot for him. He was able to keep an eye on available jobs offered through ads. The telephone company advertised for a lineman, Clark took time off to answer the ad and got the job. One day he got a call to repair a phone at Portland's Little Theater. Clark watched Josephine Dillon direct her players. When rehearsal was over, he spoke to her about his theater interest. She was impressed and accepted him in the group. Her coaching was the key start in his acting career.

$5 to first sender of each true newspaper Classified Advertising result story we accept. Howard Parish Associates, P. O. Box 126, N. W. Br., Miami 47, Fla.

HOUSE OF THE WEEK

Cape Cod Ranch Style Is A Boom To These Newlyweds

By JULES LOH

Couples just starting their married life would do well to take a close look at today's House of the Week. It was designed specifically to meet the three major needs of a budding family.

"Most young couples have a fairly modest budget," says archietect Samuel Paul who designed today's model. "Economical construction therefore is an elementary need, but not the only one.

"Nobody wants to lay out a lot of money for a house his family will outgrow before the ink on the mortgage is dry. So expansion room — economical expansion room — is a second need.

"The third is resale value. When the time does come for a well-established family to move up, profitable sale of the present home will mean a much larger down payment on the new one."

This house, design J-75 in the series, solves all three problems beautifully.

Basically it is a two-bedroom ranch with 1½ baths, living room, dining room, family room and kitchen occupying only 1,413 square feet. But tucked away in the attic is enough builtin extra room to add two more bedrooms and a full bath, all with standard eight - foot ceilings. Lastly, its quiet facade with an elongated Cape Cod silhouette is an exterior of proven popularity for decades and surely will remain so for years to come.

With the garage, breezeway, covered rear porch and front portico the over-all dimensions are a modest 67' by 35'5" which means it will fit easily on an 80' by 80' lot.

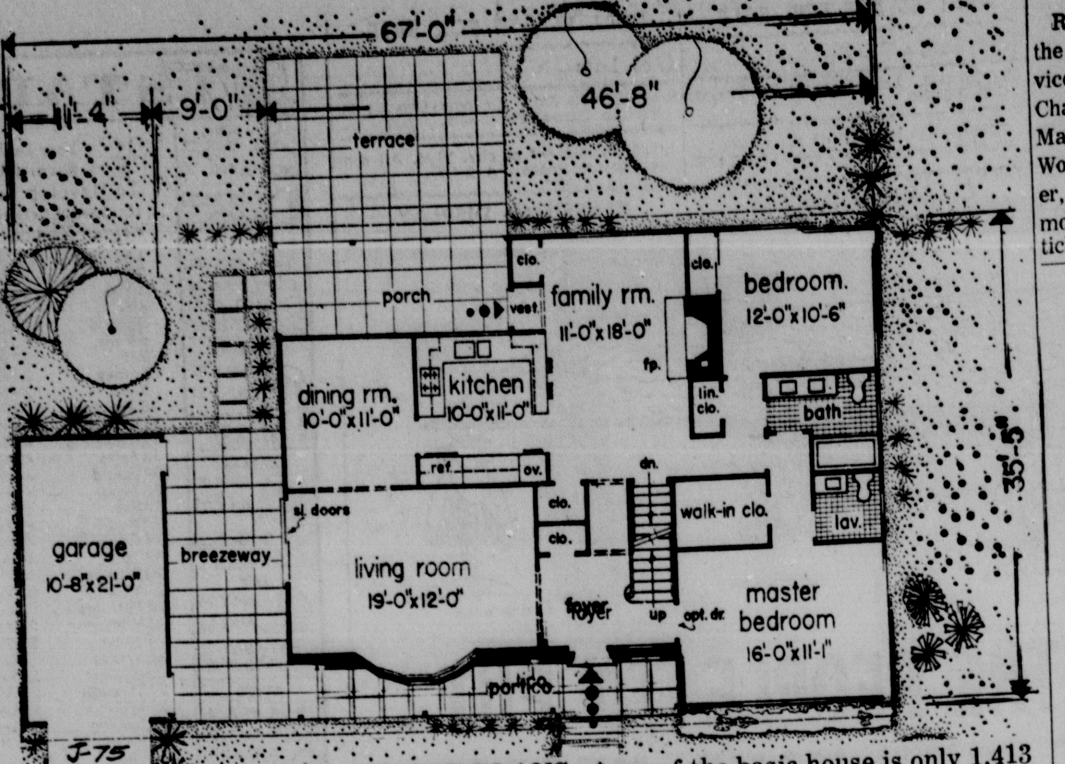
ADDITIONAL DETAILS

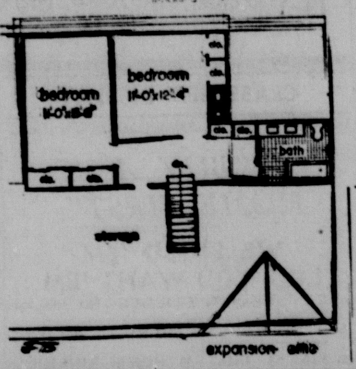
Architect Paul's floor plan shows an optional door to the master bedroom from the front foyer. The main value in this would come when the upstairs is completed. The front bedroom then could be converted into a den, or even a professional office.

Another ingeniously placed door is in the main bathroom, leading to the second downstairs bedroom. This gives the bedroom, in effect, an adjoining full bath.

The family room-kitchen-rear porch ensemble makes an excellent informal area. The porch could be screened if desired. Highlight of the spacious family room is the brick fireplace which has a wood mantel with bookshelves above, and a stone forehearth. There are two closets in the family room — a necessity often overlooked. One is well placed near the rear door making the vestibule a modest mud room.

The kitchen is an efficiently arranged hub of this informal zone. It has 22 lineal feet of countertop, part of which can serve as a breakfast bar with the stools in the family room. There also is a double bowl sink under a double window overlooking the rear porch and terrace.

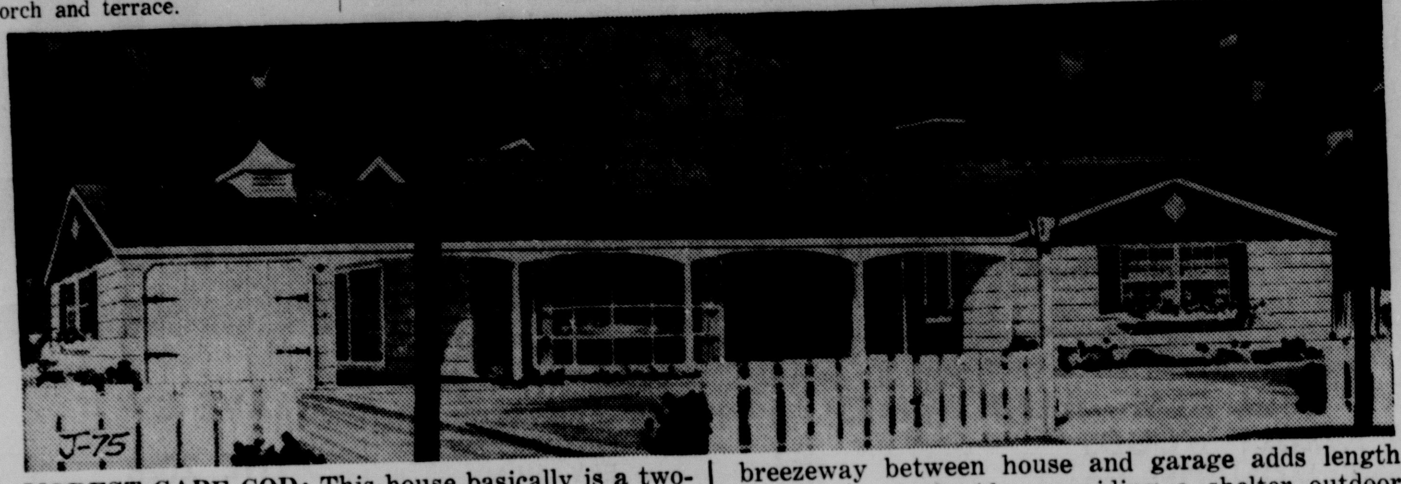




FLOOR PLANS: Area of the basic house is only 1,413 square feet, with an extra 570 square feet available for attic expansion. Over-all dimensions of 67' by 35'5" permit construction on an 80' by 80' lot. House has full cellar. Garage could be increased to double size.

J-75 STATISTICS

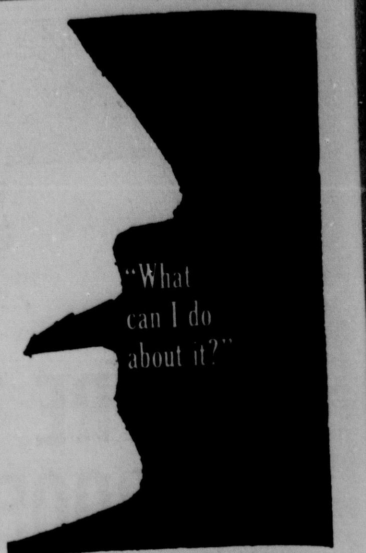
A two-bedroom ranch with attic expansion room for two more bedrooms and bath. Basic house contains 1,413 square feet; expansion attic contains 570 square feet; rear porch 126 square feet; portico 114 square feet; breezeway 195 square feet; garage 246 square feet; cellar 1,407 square feet. Over-all dimensions including garage and breezeway are 67' by 35'5".



MODEST CAPE COD: This house basically is a two-bedroom ranch, but it has attic expansion room in the rear for two more bedrooms and a full bath. The breezeway between house and garage adds length to the facade besides providing a shelter outdoor area.

WOMAN VEEP

ROME (AP) — A woman for the first time has been elected a vice president of the Italian Chamber of Deputies. She is Maria Lisa Cinciari-Rodano, 42, World War II underground fighter, re-elected to Parliament last month on the Communist party ticket.



"What can I do about it?"

That's what parents often say when told about the decline in our children's physical fitness. To be sure, parents can't assume full responsibility for this problem. But parents should see to it that their children get proper health care—and that physical fitness isn't neglected in schools.
Urge your local school officials to provide a physical education program that calls for at least 15 minutes of vigorous activity every day for all girls and boys.
A basic program has been developed that is improving the fitness of our children. It is easy to administer in any school. It costs little to get it started. It can improve any child's physical fitness.
If you'd like to know more about this program, write to The President's Council on Physical Fitness, Washington 25, D. C.

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
Behold the lowly beer-can opener! And, in so doing, visualize the many uses I put it to in my kitchen, besides the one for which it was designed. I refer only to the slightly pointed end.

For a strawberry huller

For cucumbers . . . insert the point deep through a whole, unpeeled cucumber at one end and bring the opener firmly toward the other end of the cucumber. I do this in rows about one-fourth inch apart. The result is attractive fluted rounds on the cucumber. Naturally, you slice it later. This adds the tiny attractive touch of green when it is thinly sliced.

Gadgetly yours,
Gay Fulton

Dear Gay:
You are exactly right! About the shrimp deveiner. It's fantastic. So easy and no mess.

Thanks,
Heloise

BABY BLOCKS

DEAR HELOISE:
Three packages of colored sponges make the nicest building blocks for a youngster.

My 18-month-old granddaughter enjoys building with them. Best of all, nothing is broken when they are thrown!

KNITTING YARN

DEAR FOLKS:
For those who crochet or knit, I have found that you can take a wide-mouthed mayonnaise jar and put the ball of yarn or thread into the jar. Take your ice-pick and punch a big hole in the top of the lid.

After putting the yarn inside the jar, thread it through this hole.

You will find that this will keep the yarn clean, it won't tangle and get mixed up with other things, and the weight of the jar keeps it from rolling all over the floor.

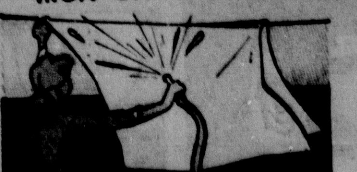
IRON ON THE LINE



DEAR HELOISE:
How can I keep my sheets from wrinkling when I put them in my washer? I refuse to iron them by hand after they have dried on the clothesline.

Faye Clark

* * *

DEAR FAYE:
Hang your sheets on the clothesline across their middle, with the tails or hems or selvage hanging down towards the ground.

Take your garden hose and turn it on strong spray. Wet the sheets thoroughly with the spray of water.

The water will wet the wrinkles and the weight of the water will pull practically every wrinkle out of your sheet. Just let them drip dry in the sun.

When dry, remove from the line, fold, and bring them in. That's all there is to it.

I also do my kitchen towels and most other flat work the same way . . .

Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
I save all baby food jars—the kind with the screw top—to keep my spices in.

I write on the lid what the jar contains and put a piece of clear tape over the lettering.

With a quick glance into the DRAWER (where I keep my spices) I can tell where my oregano is without pulling ten other jars out.

The jars are all the same size and are wonderful for storing small birthday candles, toothpicks, and all sorts of little things.

NOW HEAR THIS

DEAR HELOISE:
When the battery went dead in my transistor radio I took it out of the radio and wrapped it in wax paper. I placed it in my refrigerator—not the freezer part—for a few hours.

It played like new again.

This is also wonderful for hearing-aid batteries.

DEAR HELOISE:
If your vacuum cleaner cannot reach the stairs, especially if they are carpeted . . . rip up some old newspapers. Wet them and squeeze them out thoroughly.

Mrs. M. C. L.

* * *

Now, aren't you tricky? I think you are the greatest!

Another way to do this is to sprinkle newspapers which have been torn the size of your steps. Lay one piece on each step as you go up.

Start your sweeping on the top step. After each step has been swept . . . remove the lower paper and start over.

IN THE [illegible]

DEAR HELOISE:
Here is a work-saver:

I use plastic table place mats on my refrigerator shelves. When cleaning, all I have to do is wash the mats, and the shelves are kept clean. The spilled food all goes on the mats! Result . . . No messy refrigerator shelves to clean.

FRUIT STAINS

DEAR HELOISE:
I would like to offer a tip for removing fruit stains from table linens and white materials:

Sprinkle salt on the stain, hold the material over a bowl or pan, and pour boiling water through it. Hold your tea kettle (containing the hot water) a few inches above the stained area for best results.

Mrs. R. W. T.

This feature is written for you . . . the housewife and homemaker. If you have a hint, problem or suggestion you'd like to share . . . write to Heloise today in care of this newspaper. 5-19

I BET I COULD TAKE A BATH ALL BY MYSELF. I SAW MOMMY DO IT HUNDREDS OF TIMES...
FIRST YOU TAKE OFF ALL YOUR CLOTHES AND PUT ON A HAT...
THEN YOU TURN THIS KNOB AND THEN THAT ONE AND THEN THIS ONE AGAIN AND THEN THAT ONE AGAIN
THEN YOU LOOK IN THE MIRROR OVER YOUR SHOULDER LIKE THIS...
THEN YOU GO OVER AND STAND ON THIS THING, AND YOU'RE DONE!
